"KING ANTHONY" CLAIMS GERMAN THRONE NOW

And He Has Colonies Plan Ready

MR. ANTHONY WILLIAM HALL—ex-inspector of the Shropshire Police, ex-Canadian business man, ex-American citizen who enlisted in the British Army (R.A.M.C.) in 1914—has for some years styled himself "King Anthony I. of England, and Prince of Wales."

He has also flirted with the idea of reviving the ancient Irish Kingdom with the Crown upon his own head, as his mother's maiden name was "Eire." But now...

He is so worried about the danger of European war that, to avert it, he has issued a manifesto laying formal claim to the Imperial Throne of Germany.

The tall, slim pretender with the harsh voice that comes from shouting to crowds—he has addressed more than 2,000 meetings—sat in his room in Stoke Newington and explained the basis of his claim.

"You know all about my claim to the English Throne. Now we come to the German one. I know nothing of Germany, though I am in correspondence with many people over there. I don't intend to go to Germany. And yet I claim the style and titles of the Kaiser. Why?"

"MY ARMIES—"

"Because I claim that my armies defeated the Kaiser's armies in 1914-18; because my forces pushed him off the throne; and I therefore claim his territories and titles by right of conquest."

If he succeeds he plans to exercise a control over foreign policy in this way:

"I would say to Hitler 'You want colonies. To get them under the present system you would have to fight for them. Accept me as Kaiser and you shall have them.'"

"Instead of worrying about over-populated States in Europe, you Germans would be subjects of the British Empire. As such, you could share in the colonies of Britain. You could colonise Canada, for instance."

"I'M THE MAN"

"Ultimately, should I succeed in this matter, there would come into being the Empire of the West. France would eventually come in. I shouldn't be surprised if America joined too. The Empire of the West would ensure peace."

"It isn't so ridiculous as it sounds. George I. was a German and we didn't complain about him. So why should the Germans object to having an English Kaiser?"

"It would be the first step towards the creation of the Empire of the West." "Kaiser" Anthony's fist came down on the table. "And I think I'm the man to do it."

England Being Tidied Up: No One Knows Why

NO ONE QUITE seems to know why, but a great revival in hedge-laying appears to have taken place throughout England in the past year.

The overgrown, gap-toothed muddle of thorn and bramble, straggling and sprawling far out into the field that the hedge should be protecting, has been trimmed and cut down and reduced to some show of tidiness.

The hedges thus dealt with recently must run into many thousands of miles.

Maybe there is a little more money and confidence in farming than there was ten years ago, or maybe the farmer is learning to organise his staff better so that time can be found for such work.

But the most likely explanation is that farm hedges had got so bad that something had to be done.

KILLING, NOT HELPING

Not only were they ceasing to be any protection or restraint to livestock, but also they were encroaching upon the land and harbouring all manner of vermin.

It was not to be expected, after a generation of neglect, that an army of expert hedgers could be let loose upon the land to restore the English countryside to decency again at a moment's notice.

GREAT SKILL USED

Usually it seems to be an inherited craft, like thatching; but probably it is inherited because son has picked it up from father "when he took dad his lunch," and at an early age was allowed to try his hand at pleaching, plashing or plashing a hedge under relentless paternal criticism.

To see a really good hedger at work is almost to watch a miracle take place. For he seems to make a hedge out of nothing.

Much of the old hedge is cut away, leaving, perhaps, only three or four tall branches. These are brought over lengthwise with a deft blow of the billhook that does not quite sever them from the old stool.

The hedger thrusts in uprights, frequently brought from somewhere else and preferably of whitethorn, hazel or willow; for these are the hedge trees that will take root and grow best, and one living upright is worth six of dead wood in making a substantial hedge.

Then the pleacher, or wenger, branches of the old hedge through the uprights, and in an incredibly short time a symmetrical barricade of living hedge, strong enough to keep in a wild bull, has been made.

CUTS, NOT BENDS

A good hedger always cuts the "pleacher," or lengthwise pleacher, nearly through, and never merely bends them; this prevents cracking and splitting of the wood.

The cuts are made close to the stool, for this helps the flow of sap from the stool to the branches.

And every hedger worthy of the name cuts his hedge with upward strokes, for the downward stroke tends to split the remaining stem and also makes it more likely that the rain and weather will penetrate the cleft to the heart of the wood.

Rattler Commits Suicide

SANTA ROSA, Cal. James Keegan, foreman of a weed extermination crew, is confident he has complete verification of the belief that a rattlesnake, seriously injured, will commit suicide. Keegan shot one, partly severing the body, whereupon the rattler, throwing its head back, imbedded its fangs in the open wound and died in less than a minute.

EMPIRE NEWS

NEW CONSTITUTION FOR JAMAICA

Kingston. A meeting of Legislative Council members recently considered proposals for a new constitution for Jamaica.

It was decided to recommend that in future there should be an Upper and Lower House with an executive committee maintaining connection between the two. The Lower House would consist of 14 members, and the Executive Committee of 10.

The recommendations are to be placed before the Council for submission to the Secretary of State for the Colonies.

The question of a reform of the Jamaica Constitution has been agitating public opinion for a long time.

SOUTHERN RHODESIA

BUDGET DEFICIT ANNOUNCED

Salisbury. In presenting the Budget recently Mr. J. H. Smill, Minister of Finance for Southern Rhodesia, said last year showed a deficit of £70,500. The previous surplus was £172,325, leaving a net surplus of £101,825.

He estimated expenditure for 1939/40 at £3,770,210, and revenue at £3,670,000, making a deficit for the year of £100,210, and a net deficit of £13,854. There would be no increase in taxation.

Defence expenditure was estimated at £600,000, of which £168,000 would be loan expenditure. The public debt at March 31, 1939, was £13,370,000. New loan expenditure for the current year would be £1,653,200. Increased expenditure was mainly for defence and social services, including health and education.

Of this 37,000 tons was in new ships and 3,000 tons ships taken into service after being laid up.

Foreign vessels laid up in British ports included 24 Spanish vessels with a tonnage of 47,717.

Among the British vessels laid up are 17 tankers of 59,006 net tons, of which nine are motor ships. In addition four other motor ships of 0,122 net tons and three sailing vessels of 280 net tons are laid up.

MARY ASTOR SCINTILLATES IN "MIDNIGHT"

"You rang, Sir?"

"How did I get on this ship?"

"This isn't a ship, Sir. This is the Hotel Magnificent."

"H'm. I see. Can't you do anything to stop it rolling?"

"Rolling, Sir? Oh—yes, of course. I'll speak to the manager, Sir. We'll have it stopped at once."

"Don't go away. Do you happen to know precisely what I'm doing in the Hotel Magnificent? My memory isn't too good. Must have had a nasty fall!"

"You had several jars, Sir, if I may say so. You arrived with three other gentlemen. I succeeded in undressing you, Sir—but you insisted on retaining your silk hat. I understood it was a very valuable one, Sir. Belonged to your great-grandfather."

"H'm. Yes. I see. Er—have you got anything—er—that is to say—"

"A nice, long, cool, Rose's Lime Juice, Sir. Ice of course. Taken before, it is a valuable neutralising agent. Taken after, an excellent corrective. It is not too much to say, Sir, that in Rose's we have a new therapeutic agent to combat a condition which, alas, is—"

"Dreads follow—no words! Begone! Speed hence—returning with your life-restoring draught of Rose's."

Book Stolen; Author Pleased

CHICO, Cal. Dr. Francis Haines, geography instructor in the Chico high school, feels that he has had a rare distinction conferred on him. A copy of his book "Red Eagles of the North," a study of the Nez Perce Indians, was the first book to be stolen from the Pacific House book exhibit at the Golden Gate International Exposition, out of a total of 7,000 books on exhibition there.

Husband On Cellar Murder Charge

TWENTY-FOUR hours after a woman's body had been found buried in the cellar of a house in Rose Street, Nottingham, Harry Herbert Gamble (42), labourer, was charged recently with the murder of Beatrice May Gamble, his wife, who disappeared in October, 1935.

Detectives found the body in the house where the Gambles had lived with their four children. Eight hours later Gamble was arrested in London.

Gamble's 23-year-old daughter was in court at Nottingham and when Gamble was put in the dock she jumped to her feet and cried "Dad, Gamble, where's your head, look at her and was about to speak, but was told to sit down.

Detective-Superintendent Ellington described the arrest of Gamble in London.

"I was in Railway Street, King's Cross Road, with Chief Inspector Burt, of New Scotland Yard," he said, "when I saw the prisoner enter a house. We followed and I stopped him on the staircase. I said to him: 'You are Harry Gamble?' He said: 'Yes, where is Nora?'"

"I then told him who we were and said: 'I am investigating the disappearance of your wife from Rose Street, Nottingham, in October, 1935.' He said: 'I know nothing, only what I have told you before.'"

"I KNOW NOTHING"

The superintendent said that Gamble accompanied him to King's Cross Road police station.

Here Gamble was told of the discovery in the cellar in Rose Street. Superintendent Ellington, continuing, stated that he said to Gamble: 'I believe that is the body of your wife and that you know how it got there.' He replied: 'I know nothing about that, but I will tell you all I know about that day.'"

At Gamble's dictation he took down a statement, which Gamble signed. A remand was granted.

She Was A Teacher By Accident

HIGH WYCOMBE (BUCKS). WHEN Miss Gertrude Williams walks through Naphill, a village near High Wycombe, middle-aged mothers smilingly greet her as "Teacher," for once they were her scholars at the village school.

Their children succeeded them, and they in turn have left and gone out into the world, but Miss Williams, although now retired, is still "Teacher" to all the village.

Not that she ever intended to be a teacher. The job was thrust upon her 50 years ago.

"I was born in the village" she said. "I wanted to be a nurse when I left school, but the vicar, Mr. Bladen, said to mother, 'A new teacher is coming, but until she arrives we are short-handed.'"

"NEVER ARRIVED"

"Would you mind if Gertrude came back to school and helped with the children? So I went back, and I was paid 2s. 6d. a week. That was 50 years ago."

"The new teacher never arrived."

"Now I get letters, Christmas cards and messages from former scholars in countries all over the world." A presentation was made to Miss Williams by the school when she left at Easter.

Professor Dorothy At Cambridge

CAMBRIDGE.
MISS DOROTHY GARROD celebrated with a picnic recently her attainment of a professorship—greatest honour bestowed on a woman by Cambridge University in the 700 years of its existence.

Three carfuls of her Newnham colleagues were her guests.

The picnic was held at Grimes Graves, site of some 8,000-year-old flint mines, through which Miss Garrod conducted the party during the visit.

Miss Garrod was chosen from among other candidates, all men, to succeed Dr. E. H. Minns as Disney Professor of Archaeology.

"I am very happy over it," she said.

DISCOVERIES

These, she explained, are some of the qualifications which she submitted in her application to the Vice-Chancellor:

- 1.—Discovered in her first excavation the skull of a Stone Age child in the Devil's Tower, Gibraltar.
- 2.—In Palestine found the remains of 20 individuals, representing a hitherto unknown type. (These are still being studied by Sir Arthur Keith and the American archaeologist, Mr. T. D. McCown.)
- 3.—Classified more than 87,000 prehistoric stone implements from Palestine alone.

Until recently, Miss Garrod has spent from four to eight months a year digging on sites abroad and living under canvas.

WORTH THE SACRIFICE

Now she will have to give up "tent life," as she calls it. But she considered this carefully beforehand, and decided the honour was worth the sacrifice.

Her election as first woman professor here will mean the setting up of many new precedents.

Among other things, the university authorities will have to decide if she may wear university robes to her lectures.

Women at present have not that right.

SCIENTIST'S TRIBUTE

Castle Lit By Candle

VISCOUNT Mandeville, son and heir of the Duke of Manchester, has spent £14,000 in making Kimbolton Castle, Kimbolton, Huntingdonshire, habitable.

Before restoration the castle was in the same state as when last reconstructed in 1707.

Lord Mandeville disclosed this at Westminster County Court recently when he was used by Messrs. Gleeds, quantity surveyors, of Regent-street, W., for £75, alleged to be due for professional services in connection with the installation of central heating, and lighting and other structural alterations at the castle at the end of 1937.

Judge Sir Mordaunt Snagge asked Mr. Philip King, a partner in Messrs. Gleeds: How was the castle lit?

Mr. King: By candles. Our surveyors had to use torches.

He did not consider Messrs. Gleeds had done anything to warrant his paying them £75.

The hearing was adjourned.

and has taken and developed thousands of films of the objects she has discovered.

Sir Arthur Keith, the scientist, has said: "In my opinion, the researches carried out by Miss Garrod place her in the front rank of European archaeologists."

Prohibition Of Exports

LONDON.
A statement was made in the House of Commons recently regarding the reply from the Japanese Government in connection with the British protest against their prohibition of exports from North China.

Commander Marsden asked the Prime Minister what reply has been received from the Japanese Government to the protest of His Majesty's Government against their action in prohibiting exports from North China unless the foreign exchange proceeds are sold against Japanese federal reserve banknotes at 1s. 2d., and whether the foreign trade of Tientsin is still affected by this prohibition?

Mr. Butler: As the reply is necessarily rather long, I will, with my hon. and gallant Friend's permission, circulate it in the Official Report.

Following is the reply:

The reply of the Japanese Government stated that the measures taken were intended to secure that the Federal Reserve Note, which were the only legal currency in North China, should adequately fulfil the functions of a trade currency. It was not the case that general control of trade and foreign exchange transactions in North China was under contemplation. Endorsement of transactions would be obtained without discrimination provided that traders conformed with the prescribed procedure, and British interests would meet with no unfair obstacles. The Japanese Government considered that no question of treaty rights could arise in connection with such measures, because the Provisional Government had full sovereign rights in the matter of import and export systems. For these reasons the measures in question did not conflict with the Japanese assurances that the interests of third Powers would be respected, and the Japanese Government were therefore justified in co-operating in the establishment of the new system.

These measures continue seriously to affect the foreign trade of Tientsin. His Majesty's Government regard the Japanese reply as unsatisfactory, and further strong representations are under consideration.

JUNK DEALER IS FRANK

A little thing like a jail sentence didn't discourage a "Kooluk" junk dealer. He advertised: "Will reopen my place of business, have completed my 60 days in our county jail. Old and new customers appreciated."

By-Pass London: Vision Of An Architect

HUGE railway stations, ten miles beyond the centre of the city they serve, and expresses that by-pass London are advocated by Professor A. E. Richardson, A.R.A., F.S.A., in calling for stations suitable for the next 50 years.

Professor Richardson, who is the University of London Professor in Architecture, told the Royal Institute of British Architects recently that the stations outside the city should be served by a centurion line—a sort of suburban belt railway—which would call for the reorganisation of the whole suburban system in all directions up to 50 miles from London.

Japanese Battleships

LONDON.
Certain information was given in the House of Commons recently in reply to a question regarding the number of battleships built by Japan.

Mr. Day asked the Parliamentary Secretary to the Admiralty particulars, according to the latest information he has received, of the number of battleships that have been built by the Japanese Government carrying guns of a larger size than 14 inches?

Mr. Shakespeare: The battleships "Nagato" and "Mutsu," completed in 1920 and 1921 respectively, are the only Japanese ships mounting guns larger than 14 inch which are known to have been completed before the London Naval Treaty (1930) expired on 31st December, 1930.

Mr. Day: Has any information been received about Japanese intentions?

Mr. Shakespeare: No, Sir, we have no reliable information on this subject.

Six Strawberries Fill Box

PLANT CITY, Fla.
When a farmer near here brought a pint of strawberries to market and it needed only nine berries to fill the box, L. D. Higgins, another farmer, just smiled. A few weeks later he brought to market a pint of berries with three berries on the bottom layer and three on top—and the box was full.

Engineer Crosses The Channel in Glider

GLIDING history was made recently by Mr. G. H. Stephenson, 27-year-old television engineer, of Hayes (Middlesex), when he crossed the English Channel on a soaring flight.

This is the first time that this has been achieved. The Channel was crossed in a glider some years ago, but on that occasion an aeroplane was used to give the glider altitude.

Mr. Stephenson, who is a member of the London and Surrey Gliding Clubs, took off from the ground at Dunstable and landed three hours later at Wast, near Boulogne.

His flight, which covered 125 miles, was made in a British-made sailplane—a Kirby Gull.

He returned by boat after dismantling his glider.

AIR CADETS START
Forty boys, aged between 16 and 18, began flying training at the London Gliding Club aerodrome at Dunstable.

They are the first contingent of 700 air defence cadets who are to learn gliding this summer at eight clubs in various parts of the country. Seventy squadrons of the Cadet Corps are each sending ten boys to camp for a fortnight's course. Flying instruction and living expenses are free, the cost being met by an Air Ministry grant.

Dunstable resembled a military camp after the forty cadets, accompanied by their officers, arrived.

Overpowered By Water

were only able to shut the door partially. Thus the two forward compartments were flooded.

Replying to the criticism that something further might have been done to save the men, Mr. Johnson insisted that the Admiralty had done everything possible to save life. That was the only thing anyone cared about.

Mr. Johnson described the difficulties of the rescue work as "terrible." The currents were very strong and the divers were forced into an almost horizontal position.

Asking why a hole was not cut in the protruding tail, Mr. Johnson declared that this would only have endangered the ship. He added that they could have cut a hole, but they would have been unable to get any one through.

Air Line Failed

Asked why an air line was not connected to the submarine, Mr. Johnson declared that the divers could not get near the connections.

Mr. Johnson stated that one of the survivors told him that he did not think he could have lived another half an hour if he had stayed in the submarine.

Cammel Lairds would pay the men's dependants the men's wages over a period and the company would look after the people.

At the present, continued Mr. Johnson, attempts were being made to raise the ship slowly and she would gradually be towed short distances above the seabed and beached.

Mr. Johnson advanced the opinion that the submarine was now full of water.

He revealed that when the first two rescued men came up through the killed trying to escape with the first party and were withdrawn into the submarine.

The Premier, in the course of his narrative of the salvage operations, said that wire was passed round the submarine and a "camel" placed in position, but the submarine slipped the wire and had to be re-located.

It was not possible to say how soon the submarine could be raised.

Public Inquiry

A full public inquiry would be made, promised Mr. Chamberlain. The Premier expressed the profound sorrow of the Government and the Houses of Parliament at the loss of so many valuable lives, and expressed deep sympathy with the relatives.

Mr. Chamberlain said that with a view to facilitating escape for the personnel, all possible measures were taken by the crew to lighten the submarine, and the stern came to the surface.

After the rescue ship Brazen had located the submarine and indicated its presence by sound signals, two survivors came to the surface by means of the Davis escape apparatus.

One of these was Captain Oram, who with great gallantry, took upon himself, before he knew the submarine had been sighted, to escape from the Thetis under conditions which were realised to be most dangerous, in order to direct operations.

All Were Alive

Captain Oram reported that conditions in the submarine were becoming bad, although all aboard were still alive.

Later two more men came to the surface and, as soon as possible, a diver from the Vigilant went down, but he had the greatest difficulty in working.

An endeavour was made to lift the stern of submarine higher with a view to cutting a hole above the water as soon as conditions allowed. To have attempted to cut a hole in the conditions then obtaining would have incurred severe risks of flooding which would have been unjustified.

Later, a fresh effort was made to lift the stern, but this was again unsuccessful, as the Thetis was becoming less buoyant.

It was believed that three men were killed when trying to escape with the first party and were taken back into the submarine.

No further escapes could be made by the Davis apparatus.

Shortly before low water, wire was placed round the Thetis, but it slipped, cutting away the indicator buoy.

The submarine was re-located after some hours, and by this time deep-sea divers from Scapa Flow had arrived, and diving operations were again carried out.

All Hope Abandoned

By this time it was clear that there was no further possibility of saving life, and they proceeded with the task of salvaging the vessel.

The Premier added that it was while adjusting the trim of the submarine after diving that the flooding of the forward compartment occurred.

The main ballast tanks were immediately emptied by compressed air with the intention of bringing the Thetis to the surface, but she continued to dive, took an angle of 35 degrees, and hit the bottom at 130 feet.

Mr. Chamberlain said that Cammel Lairds were making provision for the dependants of the staff, and the Lord Mayor of London, in accordance with the feelings of the country, had opened a public subscription.

The Premier expressed on behalf of the Government profound sorrow at the loss of so many valuable lives.

Public Inquiry

Answering questions whether the public inquiry would await the salvaging of the Thetis, the Premier replied that it would be opened as early as possible, but it would be quite impossible to bring it to a satisfactory conclusion until the submarine was salvaged, and conditions inside of it ascertained.

He added that exceptionally strong spring tides made diving operations impossible except in slackwater. Divers taking part in the rescue operations had the greatest difficulty in working.—Reuter.

JAPAN'S BLOCKADE ILLEGAL, DECLARES FOREIGN OFFICE

was understood to reply: "Yes, as far as it goes."—Reuter.

Tsingtao Blockade

LONDON, June 5.—In the House of Commons to-day Sir Stewart Sude-man asked whether the Prime Minister was aware that the Japanese Naval Mission at Tsingtao now required landing permits for each separate bill of lading in respect of goods shipped on British vessels; that cargoes have to be stored for several days in an open wharf, and that no restrictions were placed on cargoes arriving by Japanese vessels?

He also asked whether the Prime Minister would indicate to the Japanese Government that unless restrictions against British trade were removed, it may be necessary to impose similar restrictions on Japanese vessels arriving in British ports.

Mr. R. A. Butler said that the reply to the first two parts of the question was in the affirmative. He added that discriminating existed so far as warehouse accommodation was made available for Japanese ships, but not yet for British vessels.

The matter had been taken up with the local Japanese authorities at Tsingtao, and representations had been made by Sir Robert Craigie in Tokyo, pressing for the allocation of further berths, or reasonable warehouse space.—Reuter.

No Discrimination

LONDON, June 5.—Questioned in the House of Commons to-day by Sir Alfred Knox as to whether there was any truth in the rumours that the Export Credit Trade Department had advised the Chinese Advisory Committee to deal entirely with an organisation called Trading Facilities, Ltd., and why the interests of British traders in China had been disregarded, Mr. R. S. Hudson, Secretary for Overseas Trade replied that he had looked into the memorandum from Sir Alfred Knox which formed the basis of the question and had found that "Most of the statements were entirely unfounded, and that there was a large number of deliberate misrepresentations."

Sir Alfred Knox gave notice that in view of the reply he would raise the matter at the earliest opportunity.—Reuter.

Shot Fired At Duchess

"No, don't." She waited, and the Duke was carried away by the train, which was held up by the signals and brought back to the platform.

Nearly two years ago, the Duchess was involved in a nasty motor accident at Whithorn Hill, Kent. Her car, in which she was travelling with her two children, Prince Edward and Princess Alexandra, met in collision with another car. The royal car was badly damaged, but the Duchess and her children escaped with nothing worse than a severe shaking.

the Hon River area, but the general line held by both sides remains the same.

The general situation in the International Settlement in Shanghai remains substantially unchanged.

There had been no reduction in the number of landing parties at Kiangsu. Negotiations for a settlement there continue, and British and American marines are still on the island.

Regarding the British officers held by the Japanese, Mr. Butler said that he understood the Chinese secretary to the Embassy and the British military liaison officer were returning to Peiping and were expected there yesterday with the latest news.

The whole matter has been taken up with the Japanese military authorities and the Government.—Reuter.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—Congressional action to-day completed the bill authorising the appropriation of $100,000,000 for Government acquisition of strategic raw materials. The bill will now go to President Roosevelt for his signature.—Reuter.

AVIATION COMPANY

Japanese Committee To Tour China

Tokyo, June 5.—An extensive tour of aerial inspection will be carried out through North and Central China by members of the Japanese Committee on the Organisation of the Japan Airways Company which, headed by the Minister of Communications, Mr. Harumichi Tanabe, includes the representatives of Government Ministries concerned, the Army and Naval air forces, and industrial and financial circles.

Fifty-seven members of the organising committee have been appointed. The new aviation company will formally be inaugurated at the end of October. It is understood that the Japan Airways Company will effect close co-operation with the China Aviation Company in developing air transport industries in China.

The first group of the inspection party left the Haneda Airport in Tokyo this morning en route to Shanghai. It will visit Nanking, Hankow, Hsuehchow, Tsinan, and Tientsin.

The second and third groups are leaving Tokyo to-morrow morning for Peiping by aeroplane. The second unit will fly through Kalgan, Tating in northern Shanai, Khouin in Suifu, and Taiyuan, while the third unit will visit Peiping, Pooting, Shihchiachung, Kaifeng in Honan and Tientsin.—Domei.

Air Mail Delayed

The week's first air mail from London which was due at Kai Tak yesterday afternoon did not arrive, having been delayed at Bangkok owing to non-connection with the plane from England. The mails are expected to arrive this afternoon.

One Imperial plane with mails from Australia and Malaya, however, arrived at 5 p.m. The plane also brought Dr. D. J. Grant and Dr. M. C. Balfour as passengers for Hongkong.

Three passengers are due by today's plane from Calcutta, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Weston and Mr. Neum.

Singapore Collision

Singapore, June 5.—Two R.A.F. warplanes were in collision over the airbase to-day, as a result of which one is dead, 2 missing, one seriously injured and 4 others with minor injuries.—United Press.

Only One Plane Involved

Singapore, June 5.—The crash occurred while a Sunderland flying battleship was taking off from the air base. Only one aircraft was involved.—United Press.

Test Flight Starts

Canberra, June 5.—The first attempt in the history of commercial aviation to fly over the Indian Ocean was made yesterday, when the flying-boat Guba started from Port Hedland, Western Australia, for Mombassa, Kenya.

The flight is intended to test the possibilities of a second air route between Australia and England.—Trans-Ocean.

Falls To Find Cocos

London, June 5.—The flying-boat Guba, which is on a survey flight from Australia to England via the Indian Ocean, landed at Batavia to-day.

The flying-boat failed to find Cocos Island, which should have been the first stopping place and from where she was to hop to Mombassa. Flying conditions did not permit the machine to locate the island after circling in the vicinity it decided to land at Batavia.—Reuter Bulletin.

STOCK MARKET REPORT

Hongkong Stock Exchange—Official summary issued yesterday says: After a long resistance buyers gave way to-day resulting in an all round improvement in the market. This was possibly precipitated by the Telephone Company announcing their interim dividend making intending buyers realise that they must make up their minds to meet sellers prices, and that at present levels there is still room for considerable further improvements.

ROBBERS IN FLAT

European's Evidence Of Fight With Men

That he thought the three men who had confronted him with knives in his house had been joking, was part of the evidence given by Mr. Ronald John Egan, 21, to Mr. E. Himsworth at the Kowloon Magistrates' court yesterday.

The defendants, Chung Hung, 20, Au Hing, 34, Lui Hoi, 24, and Chung Chuen, 22, were accused of assault on Mr. Egan and his mother, Mrs. J. Egan, with intent to rob. With the exception of Lui Hoi, who was discharged because of absence from court, the defendants were committed for trial.

Detective Sub-Inspector R. Cunningham, who prosecuted, said the complainants lived at 36, Hillwood Road, top floor, Kowloon. On May 12, after 10 a.m., three men entered the house by the backdoor and went into the dining room where they met Mr. Egan, who thought the men were delivery coolies from a comrade. He asked them what they wanted and was told in Chinese "keep quiet". One of the men then produced a knife and held it up in a threatening attitude. He was struck by Egan.

Two of the other men went into Mrs. Egan's bedroom where she was present with Mrs. C. Mason, preparing to go out. One of the men, but she spat the gag out and screamed. In the meantime Mr. Egan had run out to the street calling for help and was followed by Mrs. Mason.

Chase Down Street

A few minutes later three men came down the front stairs of the house and ran towards Austin Avenue, pursued by Mr. Egan. Reaching Austin Avenue Mr. Egan, was told by a European woman that she had seen a man running towards Kimberley Road. On going there Mr. Egan arrested the fourth defendant, Chung Chuen.

Chung was later released because Mr. Egan could not definitely say he had been one of the robbers. In the house, Mr. Egan had been stabbed on the right arm by one of the robbers and had to be taken to hospital for treatment.

Continuing S. I. Cunningham said nothing was heard of the robbers until May 19 when the Police arrested Chung Hung, first defendant, in Shanghai Street near Pitt Street. Acting on information received from him, Au Hing, second defendant, was arrested in Kun Chung Street. Au took the Police to a house in Woon-sung Street where Lui Hoi and Chung Chuen, third and fourth defendants, were arrested. An identification parade was held in the Water Police Station but this proved negative.

In evidence, Mr. Egan referred to meeting the men in the house and said that one of the men tapped him on the chest, and thinking that he might have been on trial working in the Naval Dockyard, he tapped him back on the chest.

"After tapping me on the chest," said Mr. Egan, "the man drew a knife. I thought that it was still a joke and I didn't realise it was serious. After that I thought about two of them pushed passed me and I walked away, as I thought it was a joke. I definitely saw one of the men in the bedroom."

"I Punched Him"
"One other man stood opposite me with his knife and then he drew out of his pocket a piece of cotton waste from his waist, and as soon as I saw this I realised that it was not a joke. I stepped back and punched him. As I did so, he brought the knife down on my arm."

Mr. Egan then said he went to the street where he called for help and arrested the fourth defendant.

Referring to the fourth defendant's arrest S. I. Cunningham asked "Did he put up any struggle?" Egan replied "He struggled."

Asked if he had any questions to put to Mr. Egan, fourth defendant said, "I didn't intend to stab him. The witness stretched out his hands to catch me. The knife was raised to threaten him, but he went to grapple me, and so his hands struck my knife."

Mr. Egan: "No. I reckon that when I punched at him he brought the knife down on my arm."

Mrs. Egan testified to being confronted by one of the robbers in her bedroom.

To S. I. Cunningham, Mrs. Egan said: "I thought that he was going to kill me so I shouted."

THE MORNING CATCH

rows away taking with it all Ah Hoi's men folk. Where?

AH HOI waits, numbed with cold and shivering with fear and doubt, for a full half-hour before she dares make known her presence to those on board the junk.

She is drawn on deck with glad surprise, cared for in their rough and ready way. The little fleet sets sadly out for home, full of inward queries for the troubled future; one less craft and three fewer humans than that hopeful outward posse of the morning.

So Ah Hoi, bereft at one wheel's twist of husband, growing sons and all her belongings (those precious, priceless nets); left with the toddling two-year old waiting warm-clad and cork-jacketed upon the beach that fateful morning, betakes herself and baby girl away.

The fishers pitied; consulted long and low. But what could they do?

Fearing to fish lest they, too, lose their all; markets becoming rarer and less accessible day by day.

Will they soon revert to type? Follow in the trail of their pirate forebears? And if they do, and when the last account is balanced, to whom the big black debit?

HER sombre, brooding, yet soft and pleading eyes seem fitter to the liquid, mellow orbs of Southern India than to this sturdy Hoklo woman.

Ah Hoi squats within the swaying sampan, scans the landing piers in search of tardy passengers too late to board the launch.

Then soothes the tiny girl, fretting her little mind in inability to use her growing limbs upon the tiny craft.

JUDGMENT RESERVED

Alleged Falsification Of Company's Books

Mr. E. Himsworth, at the Kowloon Magistrates' court, giving judgment in a busy account case against Wong Chung, 24.

Mr. A. Y. Hon prosecuted on behalf of the Ping Yuen Fun Dim, and Mr. C. A. S. Russ represented Wong, who denied a charge of having falsified an entry in the account book of the complainant on December 20. It had previously been said that Wong had altered a sum of $280 to $400.

Yesterday, Wong Fat, a contractor, said he met the defendant in December and was given instructions to carry out certain work of alterations and decorations for a firm. The price charged for the whole work was $280 and not $490.

A document produced in Court was shown to the witness and he said that the sum originally written on it was $280.

The amount of $490 was not on it when he had at first seen it. Actually, he had received $280 for the work done. The defendant had given him another receipt and the $280 was the amount noted on it.

Mr. Hon: Has the defendant spoken to you about two or three weeks ago requesting you not to give evidence here?—He said "so and so asked you to give evidence" and I replied "I don't care what he is I won't come and give evidence."

Mr. Hon: Was any threat over made?—No such thing.

SUMMER SERVICES
Sunday evening summer services at St. Andrew's Church, Kowloon, will be resumed on Sunday at 7 p.m. The new time of these services has been specially chosen for those who go to the beaches but who like to return after tea to attend service.

Prof. L. Forster, of the Hongkong University, will preach at Evensong on Sunday.

A Look Through The "Telegraph"

50 YEARS AGO

June 6, 1889.
We would again take the liberty of strongly recommending Governor Ma Voeur to at once take whatever steps may be legally necessary to annul the Sanitary Board as at present constituted. This hybrid institution, which was expected to perform so many wonders in improving the sanitary condition of Hongkong, has been in existence for many months, and the sum total of its useful labours in any and every direction practically amounts to nil. But more than this—it has become a discredit to the Government and a laughing stock to the community. Its members from the commencement have been chiefly conspicuous for paltry squabbles and petty bickerings amongst the members, and this deplorable state of affairs has been steadily going from bad to worse. Surely the Governor will consider the proceedings at yesterday's jambores as "the last straw," and an ample justification for saving the colony from being made the object of further ridicule throughout the world.

The paper's correspondent at Melbourne states that Mr. Sagar, manager of the Federal Dockyard in a report to the Minister of Defence, says warship-building in Australia is largely futile.

Those who still regard Lord Haldane's Territorial Army as a sufficient substitute for national service have lost the only expert witness for their case. Three years ago General Sir Ian Hamilton, who was a book-steady disapprover of the idea of compulsory service for England in the form advocated by Lord Roberts, and his evidence was much quoted by Lord Haldane and pacifists. Inspector General of the Overseas Forces, has had experience of the Australian system of compulsory military training, and now he confesses that his opinions have entirely changed.

The papers give prominence to a letter addressed by Admiral Sir Percy Scott, declaring that submarines and aeroplanes have revolutionised naval warfare and that Dreadnoughts are useless. He wrote a book, "The Future of the Submarine," and aeroplanes, with a few fast cruisers.

New difficulties have arisen in the relations between the Vatican and the Italian Government, giving rise to grave anxiety. The development follows certain statements made by Signor Mussolini on religious issues, which the Pope apparently views with apprehension, and the possibility is envisaged of a repudiation of the Lateran Treaties.

The Round Table

IF THE new appeal to the Democracies by His Holiness the Pope is based upon fears that an alliance between Great Britain, France and Soviet Russia may pave the way to the bolshevisation of Europe it should meet with scant sympathy.

That contingency, we believe, is remote. Russia desires no more today than to be left alone in peace. She does not want war, and she is in no position to attempt to spread her ideology to other lands.

Rather should His Holiness the Pope oppose the real menace that is threatening Europe. So long as Hitler rules Germany, the peace of the world will be menaced, and no reliance can be placed on any pledge he may give.

Everyone would welcome the conference of nations proposed by His Holiness, but suggestions of negotiations on "outstanding grievances" need to be watched by the Democracies with care, even with suspicion. For such phrases appear to imply that past aggressions have arisen from just grievances, and that they should not be re-opened.

An international conference which does not place the destruction of Czechoslovakia and Albania at the head of its agenda of problems for discussion would simply be condoning, instead of attempting to redress, injustices.

The real move towards future peace came from President Roosevelt. It was spurned by Germany and Italy. That is the reply Hitler and Mussolini have given—and would have given even if the appeal from President Roosevelt had been from Pope Pius himself.

Hitler's Reichstag speech is not so old that it should be forgotten in any future plans for conferences. Only two nations in the world today refuse to give an assurance that they will not commit aggression in the future. Can our statesmen be trusted to sit around a table with the dictators, especially when we remember what has happened at previous conferences of this nature—at Godesberg and Munich, for instance? The Democracies have gained nothing and lost much at the round-table.

All this talk of injustice to Germany at Versailles should be viewed in the light of history—as published elsewhere on this page. Hitler himself admits in "Mein Kampf" that if Germany, and not the Allies, had won the Great War, there would be only one nation in Europe to-day—Germany. He seeks—as his speech to German Ex-Servicemen yesterday indicated—to rectify that mistake. If there is a war and Germany wins, there will be less mercy for the Democracies than they showed the Germans at Versailles.

WHO WON THE WAR?

Hitler's Baseless Charge About The 14 Points

THOSE who nurse their grievances feed upon them till they become a habit of the soul. That would seem to be the case with the Fuehrer and the Peace Treaties.

He has persuaded himself that Germany was fully tricked when she sought—the initiative came entirely from her—an armistice on the basis of President Wilson's Fourteen Points.

He studiously avoids all reference to the Notes which passed between the German Government and the U.S.A. before the Germans realised that nothing was to be gained by manoeuvring and that it only remained to take what was offered. Herr Hitler ignores whatever is inconvenient to his case.

Here is his specific charge as presented in his carefully prepared speech at the rally of German ex-Servicemen yesterday:

WAR GUILT

"Germany never had any war aims, but the Treaty of Versailles revealed that all the others then had war aims. The robbery of our colonies, the destruction of our fleet, and the destruction of our trade in the world—these were the British aims in those days, and they haven't changed."

"Germany's 'War Guilt' was that she frivolously neglected her armaments before the war. If the armistice policy covers the same as before the war, there is no excuse to-day as far as Germany is concerned, namely that Germany's policy of defence has fundamentally changed."

ADMISSION OF DEFEAT

That is what Herr Hitler has persuaded himself. That is what Nazi Germany has been taught by years of intensive propaganda to believe. That is what some foolish people in England and Hongkong are inclined to accept for no better reason than that they have heard it said so often. Yet it is demonstrably untrue.

Who would suppose from the Fuehrer's words that Mr. Lansing, President Wilson's Secretary of State, had been at particular pains to make it absolutely clear to the Germans that their pressing request for an armistice was only acceptable at all on the basis of admission of defeat?

The only Armistice (President Wilson) would feel justified in submitting to the Allies," Lansing wrote on Oct. 23, "is one which would leave them in a position to enforce any arrangement that may be entered into and make a renewal of hostilities impossible."

The Germans had begun by suggesting "a mixed Commission, which should arrange for the evacuation of the occupied territories from which their own armies were withdrawing, plundering and destroying as they went, and they had proposed that their military advisers should meet those of the Allies in order to "maintain the actual standard of power on both sides." They were politely but firmly reminded of where they really stood.

Between their first Note of Oct. 4, signed by Prince Max of Baden, and their last of Oct. 27, in which they agreed to let the explosive Point 5 pass unchallenged, knowing that the Colonial issue would cause infinite trouble when it had to be faced seriously.

As indeed it did. Only after he had threatened to quit the Conference and go home did the President, who had wanted the German Colonies placed under international control, agree to the Mandate compromise. But no single voice had been raised in favour of their return to Germany, for reasons which seemed conclusive to all—if Peace was to be secure in Africa.

Those who speak of the vindictiveness displayed in the Peace Treaties ignore the long agony through which the world had passed. It was a human impossibility for the victors to go soon to forgive and forget. Mr. H. A. L. Fisher, one of the fairest of historians, has written: "For a more generous, open and elastic proceeding, no Allied statesman in the tense and passionate Parisian atmosphere was prepared." At any manifestation of a tendency to show a more generous spirit there came sharp reminders from home to harden their hearts and exact a just retribution.

Apparently the worst crime of the Peace Treaties in the eyes of Herr Hitler, judging by the emphasis which he lays upon it, was the inclusion of 1,600,000 Germans under alien rule, contrary to the Wilsonian maxim of self-determination. "Historians," on the other hand, draw attention to the fact that the Treaties only left 3 per cent. of the peoples of the Continent under foreign domination.

SAFEGUARDING MINORITIES

Some bad blunders, certainly, were committed, notably the inclusion of 13 Poland to be an independent State with access to the sea.

14 "A general association of nations" to be established as to afford national guarantees of political independence and territorial integrity to great and small States alike.

PRINCIPLES FOR PEACE

The Fourteen Points as epitomised above were not the only formal presentation of President Wilson's principles for the basis of a just and durable peace. Six months later, on July 4, at Mount Vernon he had crystallised them into Four Principles. They were:

(1) The destruction of every arbitrary Power anywhere that can separately, secretly and of its single choice disturb the peace of the world.

(2) Every question, whether of territory, sovereignty, economic or political arrangement must be settled on the basis of their free acceptance by the peoples immediately concerned.

(3) All nations to act on the same principle of honour and respect for the common law of civilised society, so that all promises and commitments may be sacredly observed, no selfish injuries may be wrought with impunity, and national trust may be established on the hand-some foundation of a national respect for rights.

(4) The establishment of an Organisation of Peace (i.e., a League of Nations).

"What we seek," said the President, "is the reign of law based on the consent of the governed and sustained by the organised opinion of mankind."

These Four Principles and the Five Particulars he enunciated in September are anathema to Hitler, for they clash with Nazism in every detail. But they succinctly epitomise the Wilsonian principles on which the Germans sued for an armistice leading to a Peace. They were specifically referred to by the Allies in their memorandum to President Wilson on Nov. 5, 1918, when they said:

"The Allied Governments, subject to the qualifications which follow, declare their willingness to make peace with the Government of Germany on the terms of peace laid down in the President's address to Congress in January, 1918, and the principles of settlement enunciated in his subsequent address."

The qualifications then referred to concerned the Freedom of the Seas, on which the Allied Governments reserved complete freedom of action, and the interpretation of the phrase about the "restoration" of invaded regions. Mr. Wilson disliked both these qualifications, but his objections were really diplomatic.

But there was no bad faith as regards either one or the other on the part of the British or French Governments, and the Germans were neither tricked nor duped because on the two points mentioned the Allies and the U.S.A. had taken divergent views. President Wilson was never given plenipotentiary powers by the Allies to prescribe the basis either of the Armistice or of the Peace.

It has never been explained why the Supreme War Council did not include Point 5 among those to which they required qualifications. The wording is extravagantly idealistic. What Conference could conceivably be "free, open-minded and absolutely impartial" when Colonies were being distributed? Did the President envisage the presence of Germans at such a Conference? Certainly the Allies did not.

NO RETURN OF COLONIES

I can only suppose that the Supreme War Council on Nov. 5 agreed to let the explosive Point 5 pass unchallenged, knowing that the Colonial issue would cause infinite trouble when it had to be faced seriously.

As indeed it did. Only after he had threatened to quit the Conference and go home did the President, who had wanted the German Colonies placed under international control, agree to the Mandate compromise. But no single voice had been raised in favour of their return to Germany, for reasons which seemed conclusive to all—if Peace was to be secure in Africa.

Those who speak of the vindictiveness displayed in the Peace Treaties ignore the long agony through which the world had passed. ## GRIN AND BEAR IT By Lichty

"Of course, I'm the head of the house—but I'm really only a figure head."

The MORNING A BRIGHT and keen October morning. The jumbled collection of tiny matted huts clustered round the gently creaming waters of the lovely, crescent bay, could scarcely be termed a village.

Had this isolated bay a name, of ill-omen would it be, despite its gleaming, natural beauty.

The lordly sweep of that lone, indented coast was, and to some extent is, mystical piracy.
Whatever and whoever their immediate forebears, these dauntless fishermen—and women—lead blameless, arduous and even gallant lives.

AMID a din of raucous cheerful bawlings the swaying junks are boarded and in the glittering sunlight and keen, salt-laden air the entire and tiny fleet of five takes the waters, brown sails in gleaming silhouette against the rising glow.

With—a favouring—and-sufficient breeze the four miles to the fishing ground are quickly covered; the contented, hard-working, and self-sufficing little bands prepare to cast the precious nets, hoping that they have rightly timed the seasonal prevalence of profitable shoals.

Man, woman and half-grown lads unfurl the giant net—that costly, cherished and pampered essential of their calling.

Ah Hoi, the round-limbed, brown-faced, bustling mother, eyes gleaming under reeded hat, strains her sturdy limbs.

Her hawk-eyed husband scans the waters and laughs with deep content, sighting the shoal of sporting, silvery fish. Only the old grandfather is silent and morose, puffing meditatively his old-type water-pipe.

He appears fascinated with the horizon, gazing intently the Sudeten Germans in the new State of Czechoslovakia. It was only agreed to with many deep misgivings and on the strength of the most unqualified assurances that the rights of the German minority would be fully safeguarded. That may not justify, but it explains, and—though this is no excuse—it was fully shown in September and October that Herr Hitler would not scruple to intrude a principle to secure a better frontier for the Reich.

The truth of the matter is that no group even of completely disinterested statesmen could have redrawn in 1919 or could redraw to-day the frontiers of Central Europe in such a way as to conform strictly with the Wilsonian principle of self-determination unless they had recourse to large transferences of population from one State to another.

Were, then, the Germans
"cheated"? No. Could they have got better terms if they had fought on?
No. Were they offered a negotiated Treaty? No. Was their offer to lay down their arms on the basis of the Fourteen Points accepted? No. If war accepted by the Allies subject to "qualifications" and on the basis of the Fourteen Points and the principles embodied in the later Presidential utterances. Were the Allies faithful to their pledges? As faithful as the temper of the times permitted, here and there with odd misgiving. For a full minute his stare fixes to the north; he scrambles down the cluttered hold and unearths the ancient spy-glass.

Stares anew. Hands the rattling implement gruntingly to his son, who also stares.

THE two commence an animated discussion, quickly joined by the startled Ah Hoi.

Smoke it certainly is that dark, floating, ragged smudge and, unhappily, the nearer and the denser.

A liner—or worse? The crews upon the junks can make no preparations even for the worst, even against their fears.

Useless to flee, they stand their ground. All work is suspended, all eyes straining under guarding hand into the blinding light.

NOBODY aboard the junk heard the shot. Its report was lost amid the crashing of the mighty mast, dragging the massive craft on to her scarred though well-built side.

Without a cry, four frightened people are flung, struggling and choking, into the water, thrown well away from the half-sunk boat.

Ah Hoi, her husband and sons are fair swimmers. She, breathless and bleeding, achieves the shelter of the nearest un-harmful junk, hides clinging to the jolting, swaying stern.

Men and lads reach the wreckage of their majestically heaving, all-but-sunken craft, and climb painfully upon her sloping, slimy side. A second shot has meantime pierced the golden sail of a nearby junk;
other shots go wide.

A smoke-grey pinnace nears, manned by eight grotesque-features and slovenly-dressed, invaders.

Unintelligible shouts are barked at the shivering, terrified mortals—slithering upon the fallen wreck of their prized and cherished property.

Receiving no obedience to their incomprehensible and doubtless impossible orders, two astonishing agility considering the malformation of their bow-legged frames, upon the drifting junk; prod with vicious, gleaming bayonet the shivering, trembling trio before them into the waiting pinnace.

The whole crew now hack at all available portions of the murdered craft; shout incomprehensible orders to the apprehensive fishermen upon the

Thetis Tragedy

PRIVATE INQUIRY TO BE MADE

Relatives' Grief

London, June 5. A naval inquiry into the Thetis disaster will be held at Portsmouth. The investigations are certain to be private, but the findings are expected to be issued later by the Admiralty.

The inquiry will not begin until the salvage work is complete.—Reuter.

Preliminary Inquiry

London, June 5. A preliminary inquiry on the scene of the Thetis wreck took place early yesterday before Rear-Admiral Fraser, Third Sea Lord, and Captain Oram, one of the four survivors of the disaster, he returned to London.

A full inquiry is being held as soon as practicable.—British Wireless.

Explanation Offered

London, June 5. Mr. R. S. Johnson, Managing Director of the Cammell Laird shipyard at Liverpool, which built the submarine Thetis, stated to pressmen at noon today that the catastrophe was probably due to damage caused to the fifth torpedo tube and the Davis rescue lung chamber being imperfectly tightened. He added that water thus filled the foremost two chambers of the boat.

The fact that the manager of the shipyard has made a statement to the press surprises experts and public alike, because the Admiralty report is to be published this afternoon.

Mr. Johnson admitted that the shipyard and not the Admiralty was responsible for the rescue work, since the Thetis had not yet been officially handed over to the naval authorities.—Trans-Ocean.

Admiralty Meeting

London, June 5. The Board of the Admiralty met this morning in connection with the Thetis disaster.

Captain Oram visited the Admiralty, but the other three who escaped from the sunken vessel are still in hospital.—Reuter, Bulletin.

Question Of Salvage

London, June 5. It may take two days or two weeks until the Thetis is raised, and possibly she may not be raised at all, stated Mr. R. S. Johnson, Managing Director of the Cammell Laird shipyard, who is in charge of the salvage work according to the Daily Express this morning.—Trans-Ocean.

Grief Of Relatives

Birkenhead, June 5. Widows of the victims of the submarine Thetis, of which at least 8 are expected to have died, want the submarine to remain at the bottom as a step to their loved ones, and thus to eliminate the necessity of painful inquiries, identifications and funerals with naval honours.

Mrs. Morgan, 21, said, "I could not stand to hear Heaven only knows how I got through the week-end." Another widow said: "We have some idea of the terrible night those men must be."

It was "Black Sunday" at Birkenhead, with ships flags at half mast and the churches packed with salvage workers when short services were held. It is announced that memorial services will be held at Portsmouth, Devonport and Chatham next Wednesday, and at the scene of the disaster if the submarine is not raised in the meantime.

Meanwhile, Mr. R. E. Johnson, a Director of Cammell-Laird said: "It may take two days or two weeks to raise the Thetis and it may never be raised. A lot depends on the weather conditions. I have heard nothing to give me reason to suspect sabotage."—United Press.

Gas Poisoning

London, June 5. Naval authorities are agreed that chlorine gas, resulting from the sea water entering in contact with the acid in the batteries due to the acute angle at which the submarine was resting, caused the death of the men trapped. Also they are of the opinion that something, probably a dead body, had blocked the Davis Escape Apparatus outlet, thus trapping the others.

An Admiralty spokesman has announced "leak hawsers are being placed around the Thetis, but it will be some days before she is brought to the surface."—United Press.

Fund For Relatives

London, June 5. The Lord Mayor is starting a fund for the dependents of those who lost their lives in the Thetis. Local subscriptions have also been started at Merseyside.—Reuter Bulletin.

REV. G. E. ARROWSMITH

Rev. G. E. Arrowsmith, for some years on the staff of St. Andrew's Church, Kowloon, has left Western-super-mare and has gone to be Vicar of St. Mary's Church, Upton, Torquay.

70 Dead In Cinema Fire

Mexico City, June 5. It is feared that 70 are dead and 150 injured in a fire, and the panic which followed, at a wood-built cinema in the small town of Zacatepec in the State of Mexico.

Many children were trampled to death in the first mad rush for the doors. There were nearly 800 people in the cinema hall when the alarm was given. The flames swept through the building and in seven minutes spread to the wooden shacks nearby, raising 200 ft. to the ground.—Reuter Special.

Japan And Axis Alliance

Tokyo, June 5. Speaking at the meeting of the China Affairs Association on Saturday, Mr. Kumataro Honda, former Japanese Ambassador to Germany and a well-known diplomatic commentator, urged immediate conclusion of an alliance with Germany and Italy.

"What I have in mind is not a military alliance but one far more comprehensive," Mr. Honda continued.

He added that those who are presumably well versed in international affairs, hold that Japan can conclude an alliance with Germany and Italy provided it is aimed at the Soviet Union only. He believed that these circles will object to any alliance which might be directed at Britain and the United States as well.

"I am decidedly against this sort of opinion which is not rational, for we can readily think it possible that we may one day be fighting with the Soviet Union on the one hand and shaking hands with Great Britain and the United States on the other."

"Britain is now trying to shake hands with the Soviet Union. Some of our intellectual people are afraid of Britain because she has financial means. If money can dictate terms in international dealings, why should we not hear of many more powerful countries than we used to do? For instance, we ought to have heard of Belgium, Holland, Switzerland, and others being ranked among the so-called 'big powers'."

"We have not enough to live on as a nation. That is why I say that all 'have-nots' should band themselves together in a joint front against the 'haves.'—Domel.

New Policy Confirmed

Tokyo, June 5. Imperial sanction was accorded this afternoon for Japan's new policy toward the European situation, which was approved by the Five-Minister Conference in the morning. Premier Hirota was received by the Emperor in the Imperial Palace in the afternoon when detailed reports were submitted to the Throne on definite measures to materialize the fundamental policy determined on May 20.

The measures will be confirmed to-morrow morning by a joint conference between Cabinet Ministers and Cabinet Counsellors.—Domel.

HELP FOR BRITAIN

New Zealand "Would Not Be Found Wanting"

Wellington, June 5. The New Zealand Minister of Public Works stated today that if it is necessary to send men overseas to stand by the Mother Country, New Zealand would not be found wanting.

"The Minister asked the men to join the New Zealand defence, but he said he could not give any guarantee they would not be sent overseas. The decision was made for the Government."—Reuter Bulletin.

Military Training

London, June 5. Final figures show that those who registered under the Military Training Act on Saturday numbered 210,964. It is estimated that there are just over 300,000 young men in the age group 20-21, and of these about 50,000 were exempted from registration because they are in the regular forces or were enlisted before April 27, 1939, in the reserve or auxiliary forces, including the Territorial Army, or were included in other limited exempted classes, such as the blind.

Allowance must also be made for persons who are registering by post, for seamen and fishermen who registered at the Mercantile Marine Office, and for persons unavoidably prevented from registering yesterday, such as those at sea, sick or in hospital.

Taking these into account, it is clear that the response was practically complete.—British Wireless.

The War In China

Both Sides Claim Successes

SHIUIHUNG, June 5. Concerted counter-attacks by the Chinese on the West River sector claim a number of minor successes in the past week.

On June 2, the Chinese smashed their way into Samkeng, north-west of Samshui, and killed scores of the Japanese garrison. Their booty included three machine-guns and two trench mortars.

Chinese attacking Salnam, on the Canton-Samsui Railway, at the same time, recaptured Lutsun on June 1 and are advancing rapidly on Salnam, fighting having broken out on its immediate outskirts.

Kunyu, fighting miles north-west of Canton, is now cleared of Japanese. A Japanese attack at Samkong was repulsed.

Mahow, on the outskirts of Samshui, was subjected to a daring raid by Chinese on the night of May 30. The Japanese barracks there were all burnt.—Central News.

Threat To Shiukwan

Shiukwan, June 5. The threat to Shiukwan by advancing Japanese from South Hui and Kiangsi, recaptured Lutsun on June 1 and are advancing rapidly on Salnam, fighting having broken out on its immediate outskirts.

Kunyu, fighting miles north-west of Canton, is now cleared of Japanese. A Japanese attack at Samkong was repulsed.

Mahow, on the outskirts of Samshui, was subjected to a daring raid by Chinese on the night of May 30. The Japanese barracks there were all burnt.—Central News.

The situation in Swatow is again reported to be critical following the appearance of three destroyers and two transports off the harbour. It is even reported that a battleship arrived near Swatow yesterday morning but informed circles here believe that it was the same cruiser which held up the Ranpura.

Evacuation of the civil population is almost complete as a result of the severe bombings.

Japanese destroyers also reconnoitred off Bias Bay yesterday.—Special.

Heavy Japanese Losses In Recent Battle

Ichang, June 5. Apparently exhausted from their recent spurt in north Hui, Japanese activities along the central Hui front on the Hankow-Ichang highway during the week-end were confined to busy troop movements.

Numerous truckloads of wounded Japanese were moved to the rear. Between Chukow and Lushan, thirty truckloads of disabled soldiers were sent to the rear in a single day. Strong Chinese units have penetrated into the rear of the Japanese line and have been fighting with Japanese transports.—Central News.

Defence In Changsha

Nanchang, June 5. Japanese military pilots report that the Chinese defending Changsha, capital of Hunan, wrecked the western section of the Chekiang-Kiangsi Railway between Fengcheng and Pingliang, 160 miles long, in a desperate attempt to check the Japanese.—Domel.

Kiangsi Fighting

Kaian, Kiangsi, June 5. The tide of the battle on the north Kiangsi front in the vicinity of Fengshin, 23 miles west of Nanchang, has once again turned in favour of the defenders. Phoenix Hill and Crow's Cliff, two important heights commanding Fengshin city, are reported to have been taken back from the Japanese.

Chinese forces in north Kiangsi are rapidly encroaching on Hui and Hwai, important sister towns on the bank of the Grand Canal.

The Kaoyu-Huiwan highway, one of the main Japanese transport lines, has been cut by guerrillas.

Chinese Defences

Kinhwa, June 5. The Chinese have further strengthened their defences on the south bank of the Chongming River. Reinforcing structures of the giant Chekiang Iron Bridge were blown up, frustrating any Japanese attempt to steal a crossing.

Chinese guerrilla forces along the Shanghai-Hangchow Railway, who have recently intensified their operations, smashed into Kashing, in northern Chekiang near the Kiangsi border, in a relentless attack on June 3.

The Japanese were dispersed following fierce street combats. The Chinese, however, retired from the town shortly afterwards.—Central News.

Columnists in articles and photographs in the United States newspapers give promise of the acclamation awaiting Their Majesties.

An elaborately detailed programme has been worked out for the visit to the World's Fair. Sixteen cars will form a "Procession" which will tour the chief exhibits and pavilions. Every foot of the route will be heavily guarded.

Forty thousand wives of policemen and firemen will be the envy of New York as they will have the privilege to view Their Majesties proceeding to the World's Fair along the elevated highway closed to the general public.

On Macao-Canton Run

Macao, June 5.

Great interest is attached to the departure of the Shing Cheong for Canton to-morrow, on the first of what is expected to be a regular weekly service, leaving Macao each Tuesday for Canton and sailing from Canton to Macao every Friday.

Bookings are expected to reach the allotment of 800. It is stated that over 600 have applied for passage.

The Japanese are also conducting a service by a new steamship of particularly attractive lines, with the object of stimulating interest among the Chinese in Canton as a business centre. The number of persons taking advantage of these new services shows that the Chinese are returning to Canton in increasing numbers.—Our Own Correspondent.

Questions On Huge Sum In London

London, June 5.

The Prime Minister is expected to make an announcement on the transfer of £6,000,000 in gold, deposited by the Czech National Bank with the Bank of England, and claimed by the Bank for International Settlements on instructions from the Czech National Bank.

The opposition does not consider the Government's previous explanations satisfactory. The Government will probably declare that neither the British Treasury nor the Bank of England were entitled to dispose of the money, but only the Bank for International Settlements. This point of view has been voiced in several quarters semi-officially.—Trans-Ocean.

POLICE SUSPICIOUS

Reasons For Thefts Of Wanchai Cats

The disappearance of a large number of domestic pets from Wanchai residences during the past few weeks led the police to keep a watch for the thieves responsible. On Sunday Li Ching, 32, unemployed, was arrested near Wanchai Road in possession of fully grown cat, which he admitted stealing from a flat nearby.

Li was charged before Mr. R. A. D. Forrest at the Central Magistracy yesterday and was fined $5, or three weeks' imprisonment.

Inspector Baker said the cat was stolen while it was outside the open door of a flat. Defendant declared it was his intention to rear the animal.

Inspector Baker added that the police had their suspicions regarding the purpose to which the stolen animals were put.

CHINESE R.C. TOO STEADY FOR THE INDIAN R.C.

RUMJAHNS TAKE THREE SETS IN SPLENDID GAME

OTHER TWO PAIRS FAIL IN TENNIS LEAGUE TIE

(By "Abe")

Though the Rumjahn cousins, S. A. and H. D., won all three sets, the other two pairs of the Indian R.C. were not nearly good enough when they played the Chinese R.C. at Sookunpoo yesterday in the "A" Division of the Hongkong Tennis League, and they were defeated by 5½ sets to 3½.

In view of the splendid form shown by the cousins, who did little wrong in their three sets, it was a pity that the other two combinations were so deplorably weak. True, I. M. A. Razack and A. H. Madar, shared a set with Lee Yee-wing and Ho Ka-lau, the doubles finalists at the Hongkong C.C. championship this year; but they should have won as they led 5-3 and in the next two games were leading by 30-love. They missed their chances and in the end had to fight hard to get even half a set.

Had Razack and Madar won this set, the match would have been considerably closer. As it was, the end of the first round saw the scores 1½ sets each, and then at the end of the second the Chinese were up 3½-2½, making it imperative for the Indians not to drop a single set in the last round if they were to win.

This was an impossible task against the Chinese, whose three pairs were far too well-balanced to be in danger of defeat. The strength of the C.R.C. this year can be gauged by the fact that even with Tsui Yung-pul unable to play, they could field three such good pairs. And a splendid player like Lu Tak-cheuk, who would normally get into any "A" Division team in the Colony, had to take the role of spectator!

IN WINNING MOOD

The Rumjahn cousins were in a winning mood yesterday, smashing driving and volleying with power and precision. After beating Tsui Wal-pul and Lee Yee-wing by 6-1, they were in irresistible form against Ho Ka-lau and Lee Yee-wing, who failed to take a single game. It was suggested by a collection of mine that the cousins, remembering how badly beaten they were by Ho and Lee in the Colony championships, were settling old scores! I hardly think so, but it did seem that the Rumjahns were not taking any chances. Omar Rumjahn and A. R. Minu, partnering for the first time in a League match, did not combine too well together.

With W. A. H. Duff and L. Goldman taking three sets, the Hongkong C.C. defeated the Club de Recreo by 6½ sets to 2½. The Kowloon C.C. only just defeated the University, the issue being decided in the last set of the day.

INDIAN R.C. v. C.R.C.

O. Rumjahn and A. R. Minu lost to K. L. Ho and W. Y. Lee 2-6; lost to W. P. Tsui and W. T. Lee 4-6; lost to W. C. Hung and F. Kong 4-6. H. D. Rumjahn and S. A. Rumjahn beat Ho and Lee 6-0; beat Tsui and Lee 6-1; beat Hung and Kong 6-3. I. M. A. Razack and A. H. Madar drew with Ho and Lee 6-6; lost to Razack and Madar 4-6.

H.K.C.C. v. C. de R.

Hongkong Cricket Club beat the Club de Recreo 6½-2½. W. A. H. Duff and L. Goldman beat J. Goncalves and A. V. Remedios 6-0; beat A. V. Gosano and J. J. Remedios 6-1; beat H. A. Barros and C. Barretto 6-4.

T. A. Pearce and W. Sander lost to Goncalves and Remedios 3-6; beat Gosano and Remedios 7-5; beat Barros and Barretto 6-4.

H. J. Armstrong and S. M. Garrard lost to Goncalves and Remedios 3-6; beat Gosano and Remedios 6-1; drew with Barros and Barretto 0-0.

K.C.C. v. University

At Cox's Path, the Kowloon Cricket Club just managed to beat the University, A. E. P. Guest and A. Crawford deciding the match on the last set. Kowloon won by 6-4. E. C. Fincher and G. C. Burnett beat Stephen Wong and Lim Thiam-tet 6-3; beat Ma Chiu-chong and Peter U 6-3; drew with S. H. Ling and P. H. Ong 0-0.

S. A. Gray and D. J. N. Anderson lost to Wong and Lim 4-6; lost to Ma and Peter U 2-6; lost to Ling and Ong 6-7.

A. E. P. Guest and A. Crawford beat Wong and Lim 7-5; drew with Ma and Peter U 6-6; beat Ling and Ong 6-1.

Two County Matches Completed

London, June 5. Two matches in the County Cricket Championship were completed to-day. Glamorgan defeating Lancashire to total 483 against Derbyshire by ten wickets and Lancashire beating Derbyshire by an innings and 105 runs.

Thanks to E. Davies (134) and Brerley (113), Glamorgan declared their first innings at 501 for eight, to which Notts replied with 210. J. C. Cloy took five wickets for 27 runs. In the follow-on, Notts scored 290. Requiring only six runs to win, Glamorgan made eight without loss.

PAYNTER SHINES

An innings of 222 by Eddie Paynter, the Test batsman, enabled Lancashire to total 483 against Derbyshire in their first knock-out. Derby scored 202 and 170 (Phillips 5 for 38 and Nuttall 4 for 20), thus losing by an innings and 105 runs.—Reuter.

Six Players Are Added To Baseball's Hall Of Fame

CHICAGO, May 3.

Baseball's Hall of Fame ledger, inscribed with the names of 23 diamond heroes, was closed to-day until the nation pays formal tribute June 12 to the 100th birthday of the national pastime.

The names of six stars of the era prior to 1900 were added yesterday to the Hall of Fame list. Selected by K. M. Landis, commissioner of baseball, President Ford Frick of the National League and President William Harridge of the American circuit, they were: Charles Radbourne, Albert G. Spalding, Adrian C. "Cap" Anson, William Arthur Cummings, William "Duck" Ewing and Charles A. Comiskey.

WRITERS NAMED 12

Baseball writers of the nation have elected 12 players to Hall of Fame membership. Landis, Frick and Harridge, acting as a special committee, previously named five men who contributed to the game's development. No other selections will be made until after the formal centennial observance June 12 at Cooperstown, N. Y.

Radbourne pitched 517 games in 10 years as a National Leaguer, starring with Providence, R. I., Boston and Cincinnati. He won 60 games for Providence in 1884, 26 in a row. "Anson," a professional 27 years, was with the Chicago Nationals 22 years, hitting better than .300 for 20 seasons.

THREW FIRST CURVE

Cummings was famed as the first known pitcher to use the curve ball—while with the Brooklyn Stars in 1867—and Ewing was one of the greatest catchers of the sport. He starred for years with New York's Giants, hitting better than .300 for nine seasons.

Comiskey, "The Old Roman," bought the St. Paul club franchise of the Western League and moved it to Chicago in 1900. A great first baseman, he revolutionized the manner of playing the position, standing 20 or 30 feet from the bag. Before his time, first basemen always kept one foot on base, allowing many balls to go for hits.

Spalding, a great amateur pitcher, starred with Boston and Chicago in the National League. In 1876 he won 47 games and lost only 13 in a 66-game schedule. He retired from baseball in 1891 to devote his time to the sporting goods business which bears his name.

Mrs. Wills Moody Not Defending Her Title

New York, June 5.

Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, eight times Wimbledon champion, announced to-day that she is not defending her singles title this year. She says her game is not up to standard.

She has been busy writing a mystery thriller, thus following in the footsteps of Miss Helen Jacobs who has also turned to writing.—Reuter.

DRAW MADE IN SECOND ROUND OF OPEN BOWLS RINKS COMPETITION

Sixteen Matches Arranged To Be Played On Sunday

The Competition Sub-Committee of the Hongkong Lawn Bowls Association met yesterday evening to make the draw of the second round of the Open Rinks Competition. There are 16 matches in all in this round, all of which will be played on Sunday, June 11, if the weather permits.

It was also decided that bowls conveners of all League Clubs make their own arrangements to play off their postponed League fixtures especially First and Third Divisions, on any available dates, such as holidays or Sundays, so as to prevent the League season from extending too far into September.

All players concerned are also requested to do their utmost to play off their outstanding Open Rinks matches this week, on the same greens and days as selected for last week. Green Rangers are asked to make the necessary reservations.

The Sub-Committee have also decided to recommend that the starting time of League matches on Saturday afternoons be at 3.30 p.m. as well as at 4 p.m. This is left to the discretion of the bowls conveners of the home team.

The second round draw of the Colony Open Rinks Lawn Bowls Championship, which will take place on Sunday, June 11, weather permitting is as follows:

WHERE'S MOTHER?

"GOD can't be always everywhere, and so invented Mothers." Thus said Sir Edwin Arnold, and most of us are fortunate enough to have known at some time that "Home is Where Mother is." It's a grand cry, that shout of "Where's Mother?" There is something important to be told that she must share at once; her help is needed in some difficulty, small or large. It is also a cry of great faith. She is the one who will not fail, the one who will know just what to do in any emergency. But, alas, it is a cry that carries a warning if it is heard too often, for we must not keep the children in leading-strings over long if they are to be taught the all-important lesson of independence.

Therefore the wise mother will take up the attitude of "I'm here close at hand, but only here to help you to help yourself." Often it requires a great deal of courage and self-restraint to take such a stand, but the children will thank us for doing so later on. I receive many letters on this subject, and I am putting some of the queries and replies before you to-day, as the problem is, I am sure, full of interest to all parents.

All-join In

My baby girl has recently begun to scream whenever I leave her alone for a few minutes, and it is difficult to quieten her.—Heartbroken.

By worrying yourself over this problem you are not facing it in the right spirit, for you will have to steel yourself to the fact that Baby cannot always have you beside her.

By feeling jealous when your mother or sister offered to nurse her, you have been blinding the child to yourself in a selfish manner. Now you are both suffering.

Give way in this matter; let her become accustomed to others and let her father take her out sometimes when you are busy, as he suggests.

Even if there are tears at first, do not heed them; just disappear for the time being and baby will soon settle down to her new friends.

Only Child

Whenever I invite a little friend to play with Bobby he just runs across the room, buries his face in my lap and refuses to go away. If I insist he cries bitterly.—Fekham.

BEGIN now to take Bobby over to see his cousin and leave him there with your sister for an afternoon, explaining the position to her. Do not wait yourself but leave the matter to your sister.

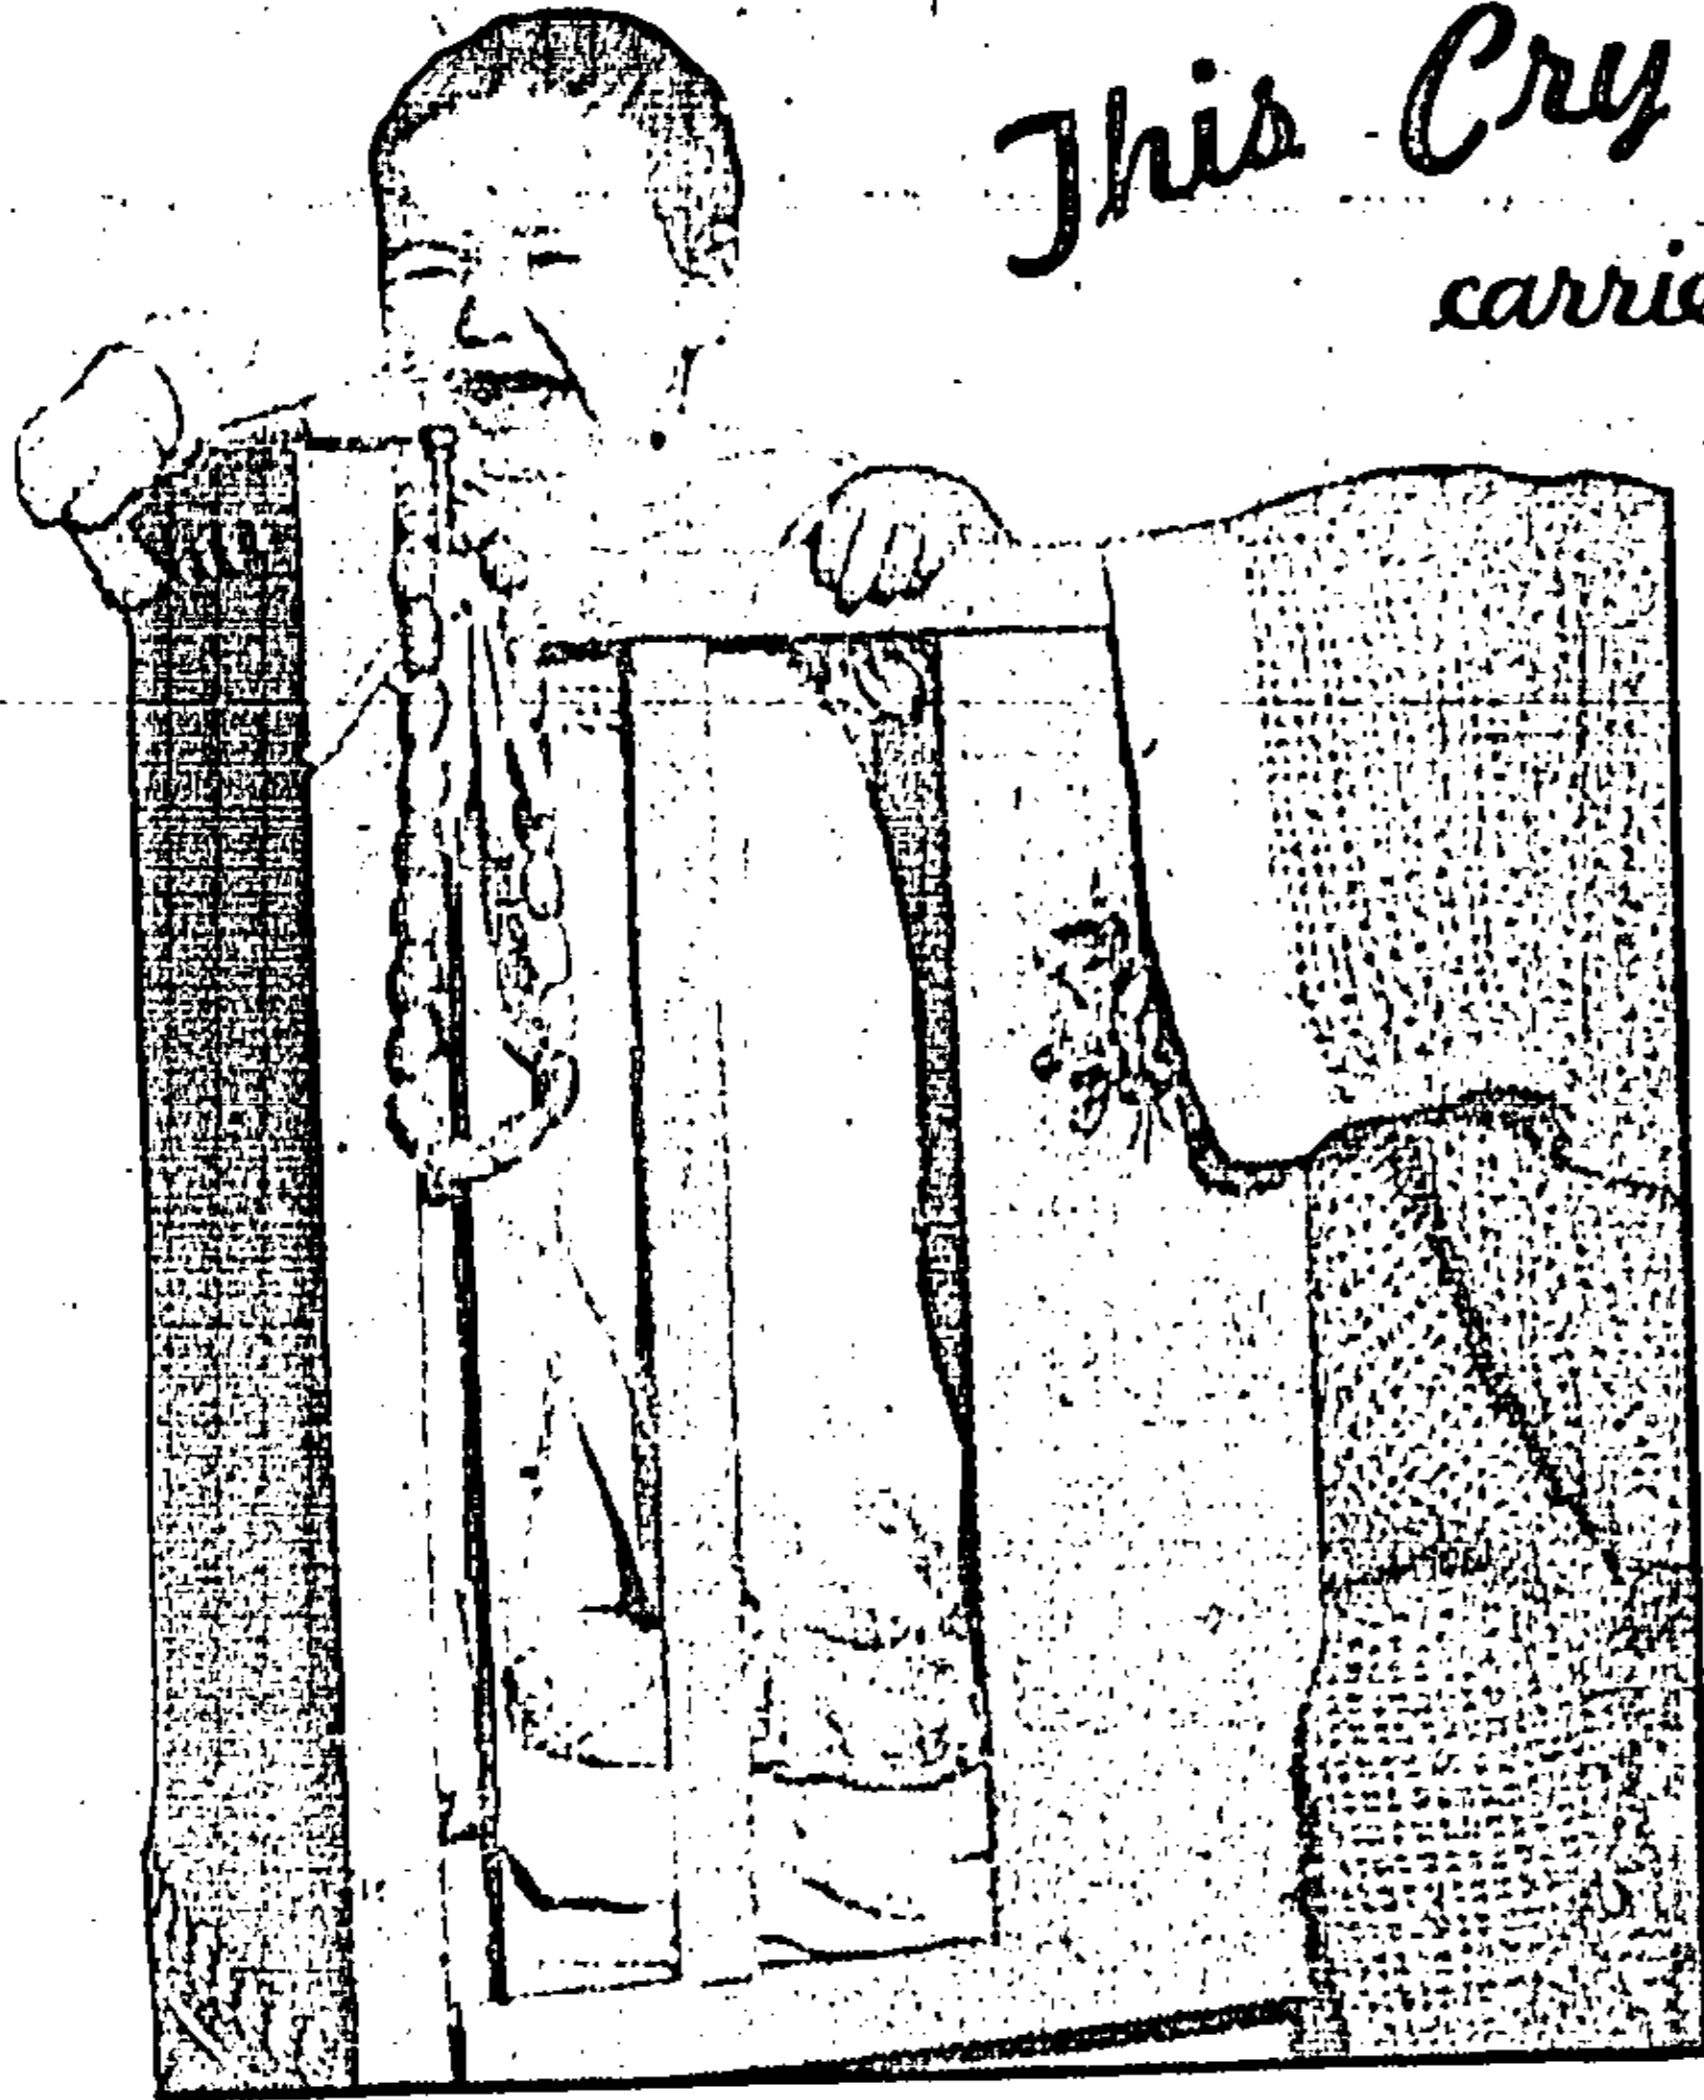

He is likely to settle down quite quickly and to take an interest in their toys. There is an excellent nursery school in your district, and it would be a wise plan to enrol him there so that he becomes accustomed to other children.

I am glad to hear that he is to have to strange courts to learn the duties of knight-hood may fire his imagination or the thought that he is no longer a baby but must now begin to qualify for manhood like his father.

Don't leave "Daddy" out of this important problem. He will be able to do a lot to help his small son over this rough patch.

Her Own Mistress

I have been offended by the attitude of my only daughter, married at Christmas. For years she never did anything without consulting me. Now she just laughs if I make suggestions about her home.—Housewife.

YOUR daughter has evidently taken up the wise stand of being "daughter in her mother's house but mistress in her own," and no one can blame her in this attitude, for it is dictated by common sense.

If you have trained her well in housework she will be putting it all to good use now, but at the same time it is for her to study the particular tastes of her husband and the circumstances of her own home life.

By insisting that your way is the only right way you will be losing ground with these young people, so I advise you to be more forbearing in your attitude and less given to criticism from now on.

Food for Toddler

I have been told that brains are good for toddlers in place of meat. How are they cooked?

BUY a set of sheep's brains from your butcher, price 4d. to 6d. Pour boiling water over them, then peel off the outer skin and any other waste. Simmer in a little slightly salted milk until cooked (no redness about them).

Strain, beat up with a fork and serve with a little mashed potato or with toast. For slightly older toddlers brains fried in butter make a tasty breakfast dish. Cooked according to either method they make excellent fare for invalids.

It's American

The excellent idea of serving hot toasted sandwiches at a snack meal came from America. Try one with a fish filling.

Flake some cooked dried haddock, add a little melted butter or margarine, pepper, then stir in a teaspoonful of chopped parsley with a little lemon juice.

Spread between slices of hot buttered toast, and serve hot.

A mixture of minced ham and chopped hard-boiled egg is also exceedingly good in a toasted sandwich.

a baby-playmate before long. That is the best solution of all.

Son's Confidant

My son of fifteen used to tell me everything, but now he is very silent and goes about with lads of whom I am not sure that I approve.—Fife.

YOUR son has reached an age when male companionship is a necessity to him, and he would be quite abnormal if he avoided the friendship of lads of his own age.

Probably the fact that you do not approve of his going off in this way has made him feel awkward over the whole situation, and that would naturally tend to dry up any easy relationship between you.

If you follow my advice you will make the meetings easier for him, cutting sandwiches perhaps and providing certain funds for cheap train fares for himself and a couple of friends so that

Chicken Sandwich Treat for Everyone

THREE-DECKER CHICKEN SPECIAL

- (30 large sandwiches)
- 1 6½-ounce jar boneless chicken, finely chopped
- 2/3 cup finely chopped ripe olives
- 2/3 cup finely chopped pimiento
- 1/2 teaspoon celery salt
- 1/4 teaspoon minced onion or onion salt
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon black pepper
- 3/4 cup mayonnaise
- 3 5-ounce jars pineapple cream cheese salad almonds
- 1/2 cup chopped salted almonds
- 30 slices whole wheat bread
- 60 slices white bread
- Softened butter

Combine chicken, olives pimiento and seasonings with mayonnaise, buttered rounds of rye bread.

Trim the bread and butter lightly on one side. Spread chicken mixture on half the slices white bread. Spread pineapple cream cheese on whole wheat bread and sprinkle with almonds. Place on top of chicken filling and top with remaining slices white bread. Wrap in waxed paper, cover with a damp cloth and store in an air-tight container. When ready to serve, cut sandwiches into triangles and serve on thin slices for dainty nibbles or into thin slices for party sandwiches. This makes 30 large whole sandwiches or 120 small sandwiches for your tea or bridge party.

PICNIC SANDWICHES

For the picnic hamper, here are suggestions for quick-as-a-wink sandwiches from the things you keep on your pantry shelf.

Slice bananas over white bread spread with peanut butter.

Blend chopped candied ginger, dates and mayonnaise. Good on whole wheat or nut bread.

Mixed flaked canned salmon celery, chopped hard-cooked egg, on white bread.

American Fashion Notes

By ELEANOR GUNN

New York—The film telling the story of Irene and Vernon Castle releases a flood of nostalgic reminiscences of the days of their early successes and of their contemporaries, notably Maurice and Walton. Hence I've made a little survey to determine the last night club or supper room as they were then called, east of Fifth Avenue, far from the hilarious Broadway atmosphere. The first was at the Biltmore Hotel, which was recognized as a trying place, a natural, for the young socialite on vacation.

Remembering the Casades, as this first supper room was called, may date you definitely pre-war but dining and dancing in the mellow light of the Bowman Room, its worthy successor, includes you among the initiated.

ROOM OF MEMORIES
Maurice and Walton made their debut here so that the room has its memories as well as its big moments, when Mr. and Mrs. America may be seen having a time for themselves.

Mrs. America appears in various versions of the shirt-waist and skirt formula, a throw-back to the days, though not the nights, of the Gay Nineties. Dinner hats—tiny flower-laden affairs—and bows in the hair are seen, and as is usual in all smart places, filmy black gowns have wide acceptances. The noted, particularly that evening gowns were either in the romantic, full-skirted mode or in tailored versions. Both are smart.

Now for several New York notes: First about Brenda Frazier, home from Nassau, tinted a delicate eau-lait smartly set off by the black dresses she is affecting. Incidentally her coming out dress, usually white with a cascade of white ostrich down one side of the wide skirt is being perpetuated on canvas. Brenda is sitting, or rather standing, for her portrait, wearing it. Her hair is shoulder-length and unadorned, which is worth noting since practically everyone is wearing something of the kind in or on their head.

LITTLE GIRLS GROWN TALL
A deb of to-morrow is young Gloria Vanderbilt, suddenly grown tall and lovely. During her spring vacation she was dancing in the Iridium Room of the St. Regis in a delicate honey-coloured lace and chiffon typical of the school girls gown up for a night. Many white dresses have buttered on and off the dance floors during the week, but taken by and large, it is the cobweb lace, with chiffon or net, usually black, that is the reigning favourite.

Joan Crawford, who during her stay in East seemed to be everywhere at once but in a different costume, is very partial to black and has several dinner gowns with leg of mutton sleeves, a type of dress which, due to the complexities of daylight dining, seems to be gaining in favour.

At such luncheon places as the Ritz, the Biltmore and the Plaza one sees gay dresses or suits topped by white or very colourful hats. An occasional print is appearing, some shepherd checks, and a significant number of striped tailcoats.

SHOT-GUN FIRED AT DUCHESS OF KENT IN LONDON STREET

Australian Held As Sequel To City Sensation

Special to "Telegraph"

(Copyright, United Press Association. Received 9.30 a.m., Published 10.15 a.m.)

LONDON, June 6.

A SENSATIONAL attempt was made to shoot the Duchess of Kent, wife of the King's youngest brother, and Lady Portarlington, as they were proceeding through the streets of London in a motor-car last night.

The incident occurred shortly before 9 p.m., as the Duchess and Lady Portarlington were en route to a cinema to see the new United Artists' film "Wuthering Heights."

Co-stars in the film are the Australian actress, Merle Oberon, Laurence Olivier and Navid Niven, and Flora Robson.

Scotland Yard announced at 10 p.m. that neither Her Royal Highness nor Lady Portarlington were injured.

They were not aware, until they arrived at the cinema, that the shot had been fired.

MAN ARRESTED

The two ladies insisted on remaining at the show even after they had been informed of the affray.

Late last night, Scotland Yard detectives arrested an elderly man.

His name has not been released, but it is stated that he arrived in England from Australia about three weeks ago.

Sawed-Off Shotgun

The arrested man had been acting strangely outside the Duchess' residence in Belgrave Square.

He is alleged to have fired from a sawed-off shot gun in the direction of the Duchess of Kent's car.—United Press.

Lady Portarlington is Lady-in-Waiting to the Duchess of Kent. She is the wife of the sixth Earl of Portarlington (whose forefathers gave the name to a prosperous town in Victoria, Australia), and is the daughter of Mr. G. S. Yull, of Chesham Place, London.

The Duchess of Kent, formerly Princess Marina of Greece, is one of the most popular and attractive members of the royal family, and is famed, among other things, for her original and becoming dress styles. She has been named the best-dressed woman in the world.

Highly gifted, the Duchess of Kent speaks English, French and German fluently, and of course, Greek. She is a brilliant dancer, a first-rate shot, and a good horsewoman. She is devoted to music.

Her marriage to the Duke of Kent was the culmination of a real romance and was completely free of anything suggesting a "diplomatic alliance."

Two Previous Escapes

The Duchess of Kent has had two previous narrow escapes from death since her wedding.

In 1935, the train which she and the Duke of Kent were taking from Munich station, started before the royal couple had got aboard. The Duke jumped on to the moving train and turned to help the Duchess.

She was just about to try to jump on the running board as the train gathered speed when the Duke realised the danger and cried out.

Tokyo's Explanation of Ranpura Hold-Up

Japan's Blockade Illegal, Declares Foreign Office

LONDON, June 5.

QUESTIONS were put in the House of Commons to-day regarding the Japanese claim to the right to blockade Chinese ports.

Mr. R. A. Butler replied that shortly after the outbreak of the Sino-Japanese hostilities in 1937, the Japanese Government purported to declare a blockade of the whole of the coast, but said that it would be exclusively applied to Chinese vessels.

Any attempt to apply the blockade to vessels of other Powers would constitute an assertion of belligerent rights, and in the absence of a state of war between China and Japan, would be illegal.

The British Government had already made its views on the matter clear to the Japanese Government.

No Genuine Doubt

Mr. R. H. Morgan (Cons) asked if Ranpura incident closed on the Japanese explanation that they mistook the identity of the vessel.

Mr. Butler replied: "We have always agreed that our ships might be boarded in cases of genuine doubt, whether the ships are British or not. There could be no doubt in the case of the Ranpura, and that is why we took up a definite attitude, and have now received the explanation given."

Mr. Morgan asked if that explanation was satisfactory, and Mr. Butler was understood to reply: "Yes, as far as it goes."—Reuter.

HUSHED COMMONS HEARS OF DRAMA IN STRICKEN SUBMARINE THETIS

Special to "Telegraph"

(Copyright, Telecommunications Ordinance, By "United Press" Association).

LONDON, June 5.

THE FINEST TRADITIONS of the Senior Service had been upheld by the officers and men in the submarine Thetis.

This was the keynote of a dramatic statement made to a hushed House of Commons by the Premier, Mr. Neville Chamberlain, regarding the disaster that claimed ninety-nine lives on Saturday.

A full public inquiry would be instituted, said Mr. Chamberlain.

He denied, however, that the high number of people aboard the Thetis—103, as compared with the normal complement of 55—had contributed in any way to the disaster.

TORPEDO TUBE OPEN

"As far as can be ascertained," said the Premier,

the vessel sank as a result of the flooding of two forward compartments through one of the forward torpedo tubes."

Mr. Chamberlain informed the House that, in some as yet unexplained manner, the rear door of the tube had been left open.

"Apparently the men in the forward compartment could close neither the door of the torpedo tube nor the forward watertight door.

"The main ballast tanks were emptied with the intention of bringing the vessel to the surface.

"But she took charge and dived to the bottom."

At first, said the Premier, the Thetis sank gradually on an even keel to the bed of the ocean.

Buoys Unobserved

"The impact as she struck bottom threw the men off their feet. Unhappily, it also destroyed the underwater signalling apparatus."

"Marker buoys, which emit smoke signals when they reach the surface, were soon afterwards released. But they were not observed."

"Afterwards, two men came to the surface by means of the Davis Escape Apparatus in order to direct rescue operations."

"I need not tell the House," said Mr. Chamberlain amidst cheers, "that this was a very gallant thing to do."

"One of these two men was Captain Oram. With great gallantry he took upon himself, before he knew that the submarine had been located by surface craft, to escape from the Thetis under conditions which were realised to be most dangerous."

United Press.

LONDON, June 5.—The sinking of the submarine was caused by the flooding of the two forward compartments through the bow torpedo tubes, one of which had become open, or was open when the submarine submerged, Mr. Chamberlain told the House.

The submarine's signalling apparatus was destroyed, preventing her from communicating with surface ships.

Marker buoys and smoke signals had been released, but were not immediately observed.

An effort was made to lift the stern more from the water, with a view to making a hole in it, but the attempt was unsuccessful.

He believed that three men were

Public Inquiry

LONDON, June 5.

IT IS understood that the form of inquiry now under the consideration of the Government to investigate the loss of the Thetis will be on the same lines as the inquiry into the R101 disaster, which was conducted by a distinguished lawyer, assisted by technical assessors.

A formal decision will be taken by the Cabinet on June 7.

In the meantime, it is stated that donations to the Lord Mayor's Fund for the relatives of the lost crew have been promised by Their Majesties the King and Queen, Queen Mary, the Duke of Gloucester, the Duke of Kent, the Duke of Connaught, Princess Royal and Lord Harewood.

Wires are already arriving at the Mansion House from the heads of civic authorities, who are opening funds to support the Lord Mayor's appeal.—Reuter.

GO TO MOSCOW, PREMIER URGED

LONDON, June 5.

ASKED IN the House of Commons whether he would consider the desirability of making a personal and official visit to Moscow, Mr. Neville Chamberlain said that in the present circumstances he did not consider the suggestion would serve any useful purpose.

Mr. Chamberlain made no reply when asked whether he did not feel that a personal visit would remove the "undesirable phenomena of impassable barriers between Britain and Russia."

SOVIET REPLY

The reply of the Soviet Government to the proposals by the British and French governments has been received and is now under consideration said Mr. Chamberlain in the House. Asked whether he contemplated making a statement in the near future when the Russian reply had been considered, the Premier replied in the affirmative.

Mr. Wedgwood Benn asked if any reply had been made to the representations said to have been.

BRITAIN CANNOT HOLD CZECH GOLD ASSETS

LONDON, June 5.

SIR JOHN SIMON, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, made a further statement in the House of Commons to-day on Czech gold assets held by the Bank of England.

He said he had consulted law officers who advised that the British Government was precluded from taking any steps to prevent the Bank of England obeying instructions given to it by its customer, the Bank for International Settlements, to transfer gold as directed.

It would be a breach of treaty obligations to withhold Treasury consent, Sir John Simon added that there was no validity in the suggestions made in a recent debate that the Bank of England would be entitled to refuse to obey instructions given by the Bank for International Settlements, and there was no means whereby the Treasury could obtain a ruling of the courts as to whether they had the power to prevent the Bank of England making a transfer when ordered to do so.—Reuter.

Men Were Overpowered By Flood of Water

LONDON, June 5.

SOME INDICATION of the horror of the situation in the submarine Thetis when the forward torpedo tube door burst open and hundreds of tons of water commenced to flood the compartment was given in a statement issued last night by Mr. R. S. Johnson, Managing Director of Cammel Laird & Co., builders of the submarine.

Unknown to the men in the forward compartment, the torpedo tube was already flooded.

When they opened the rear door of the torpedo tube, the water tore into the submarine in a surge reminiscent of that from a giant nozzle.

It completely swept the men off their feet.

They made superhuman efforts to fight through the surging powerful jet of water to the door in order to close it, but their attempts were unavailing.

Then they attempted to close the watertight door separating the two forward compartments. Again their efforts were unavailing and, finally, they were forced to retreat amidships, shutting off the two flooded forward compartments.

Mr. Johnson quoted one of the four survivors as saying that all the men aboard the doomed ship planned to use their Davis Escape Apparatus.

Police O. I. C. In Court Inspector Faces Serious Charge

JOSEPH Herbert Edward Edwards, Sub-Inspector of Police, appeared before Mr. E. Himsforth at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning.

He was charged with demanding money with menaces from Lau Hei-yuk, of the Hip On Club, Gilles Avenue, Hung Hom, on April 23.

Edwards, whose age is given as 37 years, is Officer-in-Charge of the Hung Hom Police Station. A police interpreter, Un Shuk-ky, also appeared on a charge of extorting $10 from Lau Hei-yuk, as a fee due to him as an interpreter, and alternatively, with demanding $10 with menaces.

Mr. J. Wyatt, Crown Counsel, appeared for the prosecution. Edwards was represented by Mr. C. d'Almada, and Mr. G. S. Ford represented Un Shuk-ky.

Un Shuk-ky made a previous appearance before the Magistrate.

Mr. Wyatt asked for a formal remand.

"The case will be for committal," he said.

Mr. Himsforth granted the application, and fixed hearing of the charge at 11.30 a.m. on Tuesday next week.

Edwards was allowed bail of $100.

LONDON, June 5.—Queen Mary has almost completely recovered from her ordeal in the motor car accident, and she hopes to attend the trooping of the colours on Thursday with the Princesses Elizabeth and Margaret Rose.—Reuter.

"KING ANTHONY" CLAIMS GERMAN THRONE NOW

And He Has Colonies Plan Ready

MR. ANTHONY WILLIAM HALL—ex-inspector of the Shropshire Police, ex-Canadian business man, ex-American citizen who enlisted in the British Army (R.A.M.C.) in 1914—has for some years styled himself "King Anthony I. of England, and Prince of Wales."

He has also flirted with the idea of reviving the ancient Irish Kingdom with the Crown upon his own head, as his mother's-maiden name was "Eire." But now . . .

He is so worried about the danger of European war that, to avert it, he has issued a manifesto laying formal claim to the Imperial Throne of Germany.

The tall, slim pretender with the harsh voice that comes from shouting to crowds—he has addressed more than 2,000 meetings—sat in his room in Stoke Newington and explained the basis of his claim. "You know all about my claim to the English Throne. Now we come to the German one. I know nothing of Germany, though I am in correspondence with many people over there. I don't intend to go to Germany. And yet I claim the style and titles of the Kaiser. Why?

"MY ARMIES—"

"Because I claim that my armies defeated the Kaiser's armies in 1914-18; because my forces pushed him off the throne; and I therefore claim his territories and titles by right of conquest."

If he succeeds he plans to exercise a control over foreign policy in this way:

"I would say to Hitler 'You want colonies. To get them under the present system you would have to fight for them. Accept me as Kaiser and you shall have them.'

"Instead of worrying about over-populated States in Europe, you Germans would be subjects of the British Empire. As such, you could share in the colonies of Britain. You could colonise Canada, for instance."

"I'M THE MAN"

"Ultimately, should I succeed in this matter, there would come into being the Empire of the West. France would eventually come in. I shouldn't be surprised if America joined too. The Empire of the West would ensure peace."

"It isn't so ridiculous as it sounds. George I. was a German and we didn't complain about him. So why should the Germans object to having an English Kaiser?"

"It would be the first step towards the creation of the Empire of the West." "Kaiser" Anthony's fist came down on the table. "And I think I'm the man to do it."

England Being Tidied Up: No One Knows Why

NO ONE QUITE seems to know why, but a great revival in hedge-laying appears to have taken place throughout England in the past year.

The overgrown, gap-toothed muddle of thorn and bramble, straggling and sprawling far out into the field that the hedge should be protecting, has been trimmed and cut down and reduced to some show of tidiness.

The hedges thus dealt with recently must run into many thousands of miles.

Maybe there is a little more money and confidence in farming than there was ten years ago, or maybe the farmer is learning to organise his staff better so that time can be found for such work.

But the most likely explanation is that farm hedges had got so bad that something had to be done.

KILLING, NOT HELPING

Not only were they ceasing to be any protection or restraint to livestock, but also they were encroaching upon the land and harbouring all manner of vermin.

It was not to be expected, after a generation of neglect, that an army of expert hedgers could be let loose upon the land to restore the English countryside to decency again at a moment's notice.

Some fairly bad examples of hedging are to be seen, and often the owner has merely sent a man round to behold the hedgerow trees to what he considers a reasonable height.

This is generally regarded as the best way to kill a hedge.

But even making such allowances, it is remarkable how the countryman's skill has endured and there is a fair sprinkling of youngling men still capable of becoming good hedgers if they are given the practice and the encouragement.

GREAT SKILL USED

Usually it seems to be an inherited craft, like thatching; but probably it is inherited because son has picked it up from father "when he took his lunch," and at an early age, was allowed to try his hand at peeling, plashing or pushing a hedge under relentless paternal criticism.

To see a really good hedger at work is almost to watch a miracle take place. For he seems to make a hedge out of nothing.

Much of the old hedge is cut away, leaving, perhaps, only three or four tall branches. These are brought over lengthwise with a deft blow of the billhook that does not quite sever them from the old stool.

The hedger thrusts in uprights, frequently brought from somewhere else and preferably of whitethorn, hazel or willow; for these are the hedge trees that will take root and grow best, and one living upright is worth six of dead wood in making a substantial hedge.

If then plashes, or weavers, the branches of the old hedge through the uprights, and in an incredibly short time a symmetrical barricade of living hedge, strong enough to keep in a wild bull, has been made.

CUTS, NOT BENDS

A good hedger always cuts the "plashes," or lengthwise pieces, nearly through and never merely bends them; this prevents cracking and splitting of the wood.

The cuts are made close to the stool, for this helps the flow of sap from the stool to the branches.

And every hedge worthy of the name cures his hedge with upward slashes, for the downward stroke tends to split the remaining stem and also makes it more likely that the rain and weather will penetrate the cleft to the heart of the wood.

Rattler Commits Suicide

SANTA ROSA, Cal. James Keegan, foreman of a wood extermination crew, is confident he has complete verification of the belief that a rattlesnake, seriously injured, will commit suicide. Keegan, shot one, partly covering the body, whereupon the rattler, throwing its head back, imbedded its fangs in the open wound and died in less than a minute.

NEW CONSTITUTION FOR JAMAICA

Kingston. A meeting of Legislative Council members recently considered proposals for a new constitution for Jamaica.

It was decided to recommend that in future there should be an Upper and Lower House, with an executive committee maintaining connection between the two. The Lower House would consist of 14 members, and the Executive Committee of 10.

The recommendations are to be placed before the Council for submission to the Secretary of State for the Colonies.

BUDGET DEFICIT ANNOUNCED

Salisbury. In presenting the Budget recently Mr. J. H. Smit, Minister of Finance for Southern Rhodesia, said last year showed a deficit of £70,500. The previous surplus was £172,325, leaving a net surplus of £101,825.

He estimated expenditure for 1939/40 at £3,770,210, and revenue at £3,076,000, making a deficit for the year of £1,032,210, and a net deficit of £13,951. There would be no increase in taxation.

Defence expenditure was estimated at £600,000, of which £100,000 would be loan expenditure. The public debt at March 31, 1939, was £13,370,000. New loan expenditure for the current year would be £1,693,007. Increased expenditure was mainly for defence and social services, including health and education.

37,000 Tons More British Shipping

BRITISH shipping in service increased by 40,000 tons between January and April this year.

Of this 37,000 tons was in new ships and 3,000 tons ships taken into service after being laid up.

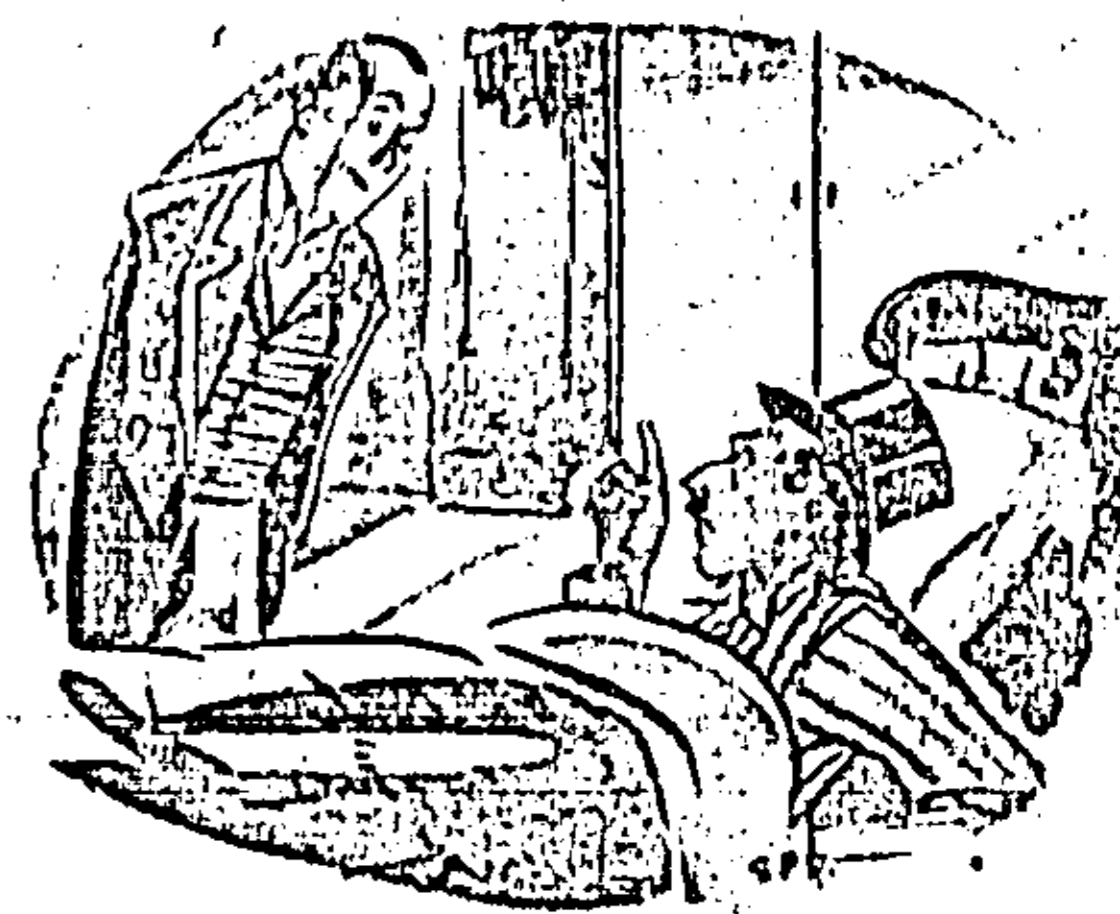

Idle tonnage in ports of Great Britain and Ireland on April 1 amounted to 217 vessels of 417,730 net tons, according to the Chamber of Shipping of the United Kingdom. Compared with a year ago the tonnage has risen from 339,325, and the number of ships has risen from 190.

185 SHIPS LAID UP

British tonnage consisted of 185 vessels of 341,285 tons, against 139 of 232,802 tons on April 1, 1938.

Foreign vessels laid up in British ports included 24 Spanish vessels with a tonnage of 47,717.

Among the British vessels laid up are 17 tankers of 59,900 net tons, of which nine are motor ships. In addition four other motor ships of 6,122 net tons and three sailing vessels of 280 net tons are laid up.

"You rang, Sir?"

"How did I get on this ship?"

"This isn't a ship, Sir. This is the Hotel Magnificent."

"H'm. I see. Can't you do anything to stop it rolling?"

"Rolling, Sir? Oh—yes, of course. I'll speak to the manager, Sir. We'll have it stopped at once."

"Don't go away. Do you happen to know precisely what I'm doing in the Hotel Magnificent? My memory isn't too good. Must have had a nasty jar!"

"You had several jars, Sir, if I may say so. You arrived with three other gentlemen. I succeeded in undressing you, Sir—but you insisted on retaining your silk hat. I understood it was a very valuable one, Sir. Belonged to your great-grandfather."

"H'm. Yes. I see. Er—have you got anything—er—that is to say—"

"A nice, long, cool, Rose's Lime Juice, Sir. Ice of course. Taken before, it is a valuable neutralising agent. Taken after, an excellent corrective. It is not too much to say, Sir, that in Rose's we have a new therapeutic agent to combat a condition which, alas, is—"

"Deeds follow—not words! Begone! Speed hence—returning with your life-restoring draught of Rose's!"

Book Stolen; Author Pleased

Husband On Cellar Murder Charge

TWENTY-FOUR hours after a woman's body had been found buried in the cellar of a house in Rose Street, Nottingham, Harry Herbert Gamble (42), labourer, was charged recently with the murder of Beatrice May Gamble, his wife, who disappeared in October, 1935.

Detectives found the body in the house where the Gambles had lived with their four children. Eight hours later Gamble was arrested in London.

Gamble's 23-year-old daughter was in court at Nottingham and when Gamble was put in the dock she jumped to her feet and cried "Dad." Gamble wheeled round, looked at her and was about to speak, but was told to sit down.

Detective-Superintendent Ellington described the arrest of Gamble in London.

"I was in Railway Street, King's Cross Road, with Chief Inspector Burr, of New Scotland Yard," he said, "when I saw the prisoner enter a house. We followed and I stopped him on the staircase. I said to him: 'You are Harry Gamble?' He said: 'Yes, where is Nora?'"

"I then told him who we were and said: 'I am investigating the disappearance of your wife from Rose Street, Nottingham, in October, 1935.' He said: 'I know nothing, only what I have told you before.'"

"I KNOW NOTHING"

The superintendent said that Gamble accompanied him to King's Cross Road police station.

Here Gamble was told of the discovery in the cellar in Rose Street. Superintendent Ellington, continuing, stated that he said to Gamble: 'I believe that is the body of your wife and that you know how it got there.' He replied: 'I know nothing about that, but I will tell you all I know about that day.'"

At Gamble's dictation he took down a statement, which Gamble signed.

A remand was granted.

She Was A Teacher By Accident

HIGH WYCOMBE (BUCKS). WHEN Miss Gertrude Williams walks through Naphill, a village near High Wycombe, middle-aged mothers smilingly greet her as "Teacher," for once they were her scholars at the village school.

Their children succeeded them, and they in turn have left and gone out into the world, but Miss Williams, although now retired, is still "Teacher" to all the village.

Not that she ever intended to be a teacher. The job was thrust upon her 50 years ago.

"I was born in the village," she said, "I wanted to be a nurse when I left school, but the vicar Mr. Bladen, said to mother, 'A new teacher is coming, but until she arrives we are short-handed.'"

"NEVER ARRIVED"

"Would you mind if Gertrude came back to school and helped with the children? So I went back, and I was paid 2s. 6d. a week. That was 50 years ago."

"The new teacher never arrived."

"Now I get letters, Christmas cards and messages from former scholars in countries all over the world."

Professor Dorothy At Cambridge

CAMBRIDGE.
MISS DOROTHY GARROD celebrated with a picnic recently her attainment of a professorship—greatest honour bestowed on a woman by Cambridge University in the 700 years of its existence.

Three carfuls of her Newnham colleagues were her guests.

The picnic was held at Grimes Graves, site of some 8,000-year-old flint mines, through which Miss Garrod conducted the party during the visit.

Miss Garrod was chosen from among other candidates, all men, to succeed Dr. E. H. Minns as Disney Professor of Archaeology.

"I am very happy over it," she said.

DISCOVERIES

These, she explained, are some of the qualifications which she submitted in her application to the Vice-Chancellor:

- 1.—Discovered in her first excavation the skull of a Stone Age child in the Devil's Tower, Gibraltar.
- 2.—In Palestine found the remains of 20 individuals, representing a hitherto unknown type. (These are still being studied by Sir Arthur Keith and the American archaeologist, Mr. T. D. McCown.)
- 3.—Classified more than 87,000 prehistoric stone implements from Palestine alone.

Until recently, Miss Garrod has spent from four to eight months a year digging on sites abroad and living under canvas.

WORTH THE SACRIFICE

Now she will have to give up "tent life," as she calls it.

But she considered this carefully beforehand, and decided the honour was worth the sacrifice.

Her election as first woman professor here will mean the setting up of many new precedents.

Among other things, the university authorities will have to decide if she may wear university robes to her lectures.

Women at present have not that right.

There are 74 professors at Cambridge.

SCIENTIST'S TRIBUTE

The chief one is photography. She does all her own photographic work.

Prohibition Of Exports

London.
A statement was made in the House of Commons recently regarding the reply from the Japanese Government in connection with the British protest against their prohibition of exports from North China.

Commander Marsden asked the Prime Minister what reply has been received from the Japanese Government to the protest of His Majesty's Government against their action in prohibiting exports from North China unless the foreign exchange proceeds are sold against Japanese federal reserve banknotes at 1s. 2d.; and whether the foreign trade of Tientsin is still affected by this prohibition?

Mr. Butler: As the reply is necessarily rather long, I will, with my hon. and gallant Friend's permission, circulate it in the Official Report.

Following is the reply:
The reply of the Japanese Government stated that the measures taken were intended to secure that the Federal Reserve Notes, which were the only legal currency in North China, should adequately fulfil the functions of a trade currency. It was not the case that general control of trade and foreign exchange transactions in North China was under contemplation. Endorsement of transactions would be obtained without discrimination provided that traders conformed with the prescribed procedure, and British interests would meet with no unfair obstacles. The Japanese Government considered that no question of treaty rights could arise in connection with such measures, because the Provisional Government had full sovereign rights in the matter of import and export systems. For these reasons the measures in question did not conflict with the Japanese assurances that the interests of third Powers would be respected, and the Japanese Government were therefore justified in co-operating in the establishment of the new system.

These measures continue seriously to affect the foreign trade of Tientsin. His Majesty's Government regard the Japanese reply as unsatisfactory, and further strong representations are under consideration.

JUNK DEALER IS FRANK

By-Pass London: Vision Of An Architect

HUGE railway stations, ten miles beyond the centre of the city they serve, and expresses that by-pass London are advocated by Professor A. E. Richardson, A.R.A., F.S.A., in calling for stations suitable for the next 50 years.

Professor Richardson, who is the University of London Professor in Architecture, told the Royal Institute of British Architects recently that the stations outside the city should be served by a centure line—a sort of suburban belt railway—which would call for the reorganisation of the whole suburban system in all directions up to 50 miles from London.

Japanese Battleships

London.
Certain information was given in the House of Commons recently in reply to a question regarding the number of battleships built by Japan.

Mr. Day asked the Parliamentary Secretary to the Admiralty particulars, according to the latest information he has received, of the number of battleships that have been built by the Japanese Government carrying guns of a larger size than 14 inches?

Mr. Shakespeare: The battleships "Nagato" and "Mutsu," completed in 1920 and 1921 respectively, are the only Japanese ships mounting guns larger than 14 inch which are known to have been completed before the London Naval Treaty (1930) expired on 31st December, 1936.

Mr. Day: Has any information been received about Japanese intentions?

Mr. Shakespeare: No, Sir, we have no reliable information on this subject.

Six Strawberries Fill Box

PLANT CITY, Fla.
When a farmer near here brought a pint of strawberries to market and it needed only nine berries to fill the box, L. D. Higgins, another farmer, just smiled. A few weeks later he brought to market a pint of berries with three berries on the bottom layer and three on top—and the box was full.

Engineer Crosses The Channel in Glider

GLIDING history was made recently by Mr. G. H. Stephenson, 27-year-old television engineer, of Hayes (Middlesex), when he crossed the English Channel on a soaring flight.

This is the first time that this has been achieved. The Channel was crossed in a glider some years ago, but on that occasion an aeroplane was used to give the glider altitude.

Mr. Stephenson, who is a member of the London and Surrey Gliding Clubs, took off from the ground at Dunstable and landed three hours later at West, near Boulogne.

His flight, which covered 125 miles, was made in a British-made sailplane—a Kirby Gull.

AIR CADETS START

Forty boys, aged between 16 and 18, began flying training at the London Gliding Club aerodrome at Dunstable.

They are the first contingent of 700 air defence cadets who are to learn gliding this summer at eight clubs in various parts of the country.

Seventy squadrons of the Cadet Corps are each sending ten boys to camp for a fortnight's course. Flying instruction and living expenses are free, the cost being met by an Air Ministry grant.

Dunstable resembled a military camp after the forty cadets, accompanied by their officers, arrived.

Overpowered By Water

"Something, however, went wrong," Mr. Johnson said tragically. Three men died whilst attempting to escape.

Hauled Back—To Die

Another man had actually left the submarine when his apparatus failed him. He was literally seized by the men still inside the vessel and was drawn back—alive! He later met his death with the rest of the crew.

"The four survivors risked their lives to get to the surface in order to bring help to their comrades."

"They did not know at the time that surface vessels were overhead."

"It was a brave thing to do. They came up with the knowledge that they might arrive in the open sea with the body to receive them."

—United Press.

Everything Done

LONDON, June 5. Mr. Johnson said that the crew were only able to shut the door partially. Thus the two forward compartments were flooded.

Replying to the criticism that something further might have been done to save the men, Mr. Johnson insisted that the Admiralty had done everything possible to save life. That was the only thing anyone cared about.

Mr. Johnson described the difficulties of the rescue work as "terrible." The currents were very strong and the divers were forced into an almost horizontal position.

Asked why a hole was not cut in the protruding tail, Mr. Johnson declared that this would only have endangered the ship. He added that they could have cut a hole, but they would have been unable to get anyone through.

Air Line Failed

Asked why an air line was not connected to the submarine, Mr. Johnson declared that the divers could not get near the connections.

Mr. Johnson stated that one of the survivors told him that he did not think he could have lived another half an hour if he had stayed in the submarine.

Cammel Lairds would pay the men's dependants the men's wages over a period and the company would look after the people.

At the present, continued Mr. Johnson, attempts were being made to raise the ship slowly and she would gradually be towed short distances above the seabed and beached.

Mr. Johnson advanced the opinion that the submarine was now full of water.

He revealed that when the first two rescued men came up through the escape hatch, four others tried to follow, but for some reason as yet unknown, they were taken back into the submarine. They were dead.—Reuter.

LONDON, June 5.—Questioned in the House of Commons to-day by Sir Alfred Knox as to whether there was any truth in the rumours that the Export Credit Trade Department had advised the Chinese Advisory Committee to deal entirely with an organization called Trading Facilities, Ltd., and why the interests of British traders in China had been disregarded, Mr. R. S. Hudson, Secretary for Overseas Trade replied that he had looked into the memorandum from Sir Alfred Knox which formed the basis of the question and had found that "Most of the statements were entirely unfounded, and that there was a large number of deliberate misrepresentations."

Sir Alfred Knox gave notice that in view of the reply he would raise the matter at the earliest opportunity.—Reuter.

JAPANESE AIR RAIDSPlanes Strike At Kiangsi Hinterland

SHANGHAI, June 5. JAPANESE bombing activities were extended to eastern Kiangsi last Saturday afternoon, when three enemy bombers visited Shanghaio and dropped a number of missiles at Fenglintu crossing, demolishing many houses. Earlier in the day, the Japanese planes attacked Kweichow, 45 miles west of Shanghaio on the Chekiang-Kiangsi railway, outside the north gate. Several lengths of rails were torn.—Central News.

Switch Also Bombed

SIAM, June 5.—A lone Japanese plane visited the town of Saiton in north Siam yesterday and dropped three bombs. A checkup after the departure of the raider showed that little damage was done.—Central News.

Ningpo Bombed

Ningpo, June 5.—Two civilians were wounded and a score of houses leveled to the ground last Saturday morning when five Japanese planes made a fresh air attack on Ningpo, dumping twenty-one bombs.—Central News.

Progress Of War

LONDON, June 5.—Giving an account of the recent happenings in China during question-time in the House of Commons to-day, Mr. R. A. Butler said that some fighting had been proceeding in Central China in the Han River area, but the general line held by both sides remains the same.

The general situation in the International Settlement in Shanghai remains substantially unchanged. There had been no reduction in the number of landing parties at Kiangsu. Negotiations for a settlement there continue, and British and American marines are still on the island.

Regarding the British officers held by the Japanese, Mr. Butler said that he understood the Chinese secretary to the Embassy and the British military liaison officer were returning to Peking and were expected there yesterday with the latest news.

The whole matter has been taken up with the Japanese military authorities and the Government.—Reuter.

Kian Air Raid

Kian, June 6. Japanese aircraft staged two air raids over Kian, about 125 miles southwest of Nanchang, yesterday. Five machines participated in the first raid, dropping four missiles in the outskirts. In the second raid, six planes dumped over 30 explosives in the heart of the town, wounding more than 10 civilians and wrecking a number of houses.

A village near Taiho, south of Kian, was also bombed by the raiders.—Central News.

Shanghai Raided

Kiaohing, June 6. Well-known wine producer down on the south bank of Hangchow Bay in north Chekiang was raided by five Japanese bombers yesterday. Altogether 14 bombs were dropped in the city, wounding one civilian and leveling more than 30 houses.—Central News.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—"Boss" Tom Prendergast the Kansas City politician who is now serving a sentence for income tax evasion, has had a "rather serious heart attack" since he entered Leavenworth Penitentiary. His condition is considered serious.—United Press.

STOCK MARKET REPORT

Hongkong Stock Exchange—official summary issued yesterday says: After a long resistance buyers gave way to-day resulting in an all round improvement in the market. This was possibly precipitated by the Interim dividend making intending buyers realise that they must make up their minds to meet sellers prices, and that at present levels there is still room for considerable further improvements.

European Lady
Passes Away

Mrs. Florence May Payne, wife of Mr. G. A. Payne, of the Naval Dockyard, passed away at the Matilda Hospital last night after a short illness.

She was taken ill suddenly on Saturday and entered the Hospital that afternoon.

Mrs. Payne, who was 52 years of age, was born in Portsmouth. She had a wide circle of friends, with whom she was very popular.

Her son, Mr. George R. Payne, is a partner in the firm of Messrs. Payne and Company.

The funeral will pass the Monument at 5 p.m. to-day.

rows away taking with it all Ah Hoi's men folk. Where?

AH HOI waits, numbed with cold and shivering with fear and doubt, for a full half-hour before she dares make known her presence to those on board the junk.

She is drawn on deck with glad surprise, cared for in their rough and ready way. The little fleet sets sail out for home, full of inward queries for the troubled future; one less craft and three fewer humans than that hopeful outward posse of the morning.

So Ah Hoi, bereft at one wheel's twirl of husband, growing sons and all her belongings (those precious, priceless nets); left with but the toddling two-year-old waiting warm-clad and cork-jacketted upon the beach that fateful morning, betakes herself and baby girl away.

The fishers pitied; consulted long and low. But what could they do?

Fearing to fish lest they, too, lose their all; markets becoming rarer and less accessible day by day.

Will they soon revert to type? Follow in the trail of their pirate forebears? And if they do, and when the last account is balanced, to whom the big black debt?

HER sombre, brooding, yet soft and pleading eyes seem fitter to the liquid, mellow orbs of Southern India than to this sturdy Hoklo woman.

Ah Hoi squats within the swaying sampan, scans the landing piers in search of tardy passengers too late to board the launch.

Then soothes the tiny girl, fretting her little mind, in inability to use her growing limbs upon the tiny craft.

Chinese Olympic Player Killed

CHUNGKING, June 5.—Paul Fu, the well known Manchurian polo vaulter who represented China at the Olympic Games in Berlin in 1936, is reported to have been killed in an air battle over Kweichow, the capital of the province of Kweichow.

Paul Fu joined the Chinese air force as a pilot shortly after the outbreak of the hostilities.—Trans-Ocean.

In Thetis

He would again take the liberty of strongly recommending Governor Leveson to once take whatever steps may be legally necessary to summarily abolish the Sanitary Board as at present constituted. This hybrid institution, which was expected to perform so many wonders in improving the sanitary condition of Hongkong, has been in existence for many months, and the sum total of its usefulness amounts to nil. But more than this—it has become a discredit to the Government and a laughing stock to the community.

The Premier, in the course of his narrative of the salvage operations, said that wire was passed round the submarine and a "camel" placed in position, but the submarine slipped the wire and had to be re-located.

It was not possible to say how soon the submarine could be raised.

Public Inquiry
A full public inquiry would be made, promised Mr. Chamberlain.

The Premier expressed the profound sorrow of the Government and the Houses of Parliament at the loss of so many valuable lives, and expressed deep sympathy with the relatives.

Mr. Chamberlain said that with a view to facilitating escape for the personnel, all possible measures were taken by the crew to lighten the submarine, and the stern came to the surface.

After the rescue ship Bronze had located the submarine and indicated its presence by sound signals, two survivors came to the surface by means of the Davis escape apparatus.

One of these was Captain Oram, who with great gallantry, took upon himself, before he knew the submarine had been sighted, to escape from the Thetis under conditions which were realised to be most dangerous, in order to direct operations.

All Were Alive
Captain Oram reported that conditions in the submarine were becoming bad, although all aboard were still alive.

Later two more men came to the surface, and, as soon as possible, a diver from the Vigilant went down, but he had the greatest difficulty in working.

An endeavour was made to lift the stern of submarine higher with a view to cutting a hole above the water so that conditions allowed. To have attempted to cut a hole in the conditions then obtaining would have incurred severe risks of flooding which would have been unjustified.

Later, a fresh effort was made to lift the stern, but this was again unsuccessful, as the Thetis was becoming less buoyant.

It was believed that three men were killed when trying to escape with the first party and were taken back into the submarine.

No further escapes could be made by the Davis apparatus.

Shortly before low water, wire was placed round the Thetis, but it slipped, cutting away the indicator buoy.

The submarine was re-located after some hours, and by this time deep-sea divers from Scapa Flow had arrived, and diving operations were again carried out.

All Hope Abandoned
By this time it was clear that there was no further possibility of saving the Thetis, and the decision was taken to salvage the vessel.

The Premier added that it was while adjusting the trim of the submarine after diving that the flooding of the forward compartment occurred.

The main ballast tanks were immediately emptied by compressed air, and the intention of bringing the Thetis to the surface, but she continued to dive, took an angle of 35 degrees, and hit the bottom at 130 feet.

Mr. Chamberlain said that Cammel Lairds were making provision for the dependants of their staff, and the Lord Mayor of London, in accordance with the feelings of the country, had opened a public subscription.

The Premier expressed on behalf of the Government profound sorrow at the loss of so many valuable lives.

Public Inquiry
Answering questions whether the public inquiry would await the salvaging of the Thetis, the Premier replied that it would be opened as early as possible, but it would be quite impossible to bring it to a satisfactory conclusion until the submarine was salvaged, and conditions inside of it ascertained.

He added that exceptionally strong spring tides made diving operations impossible except in slackwater. Divers taking part in the rescue operations had the greatest difficulty in working.

A Look Through

50 YEARS AGO

June 6, 1889.
We would again take the liberty of strongly recommending Governor Leveson to once take whatever steps may be legally necessary to summarily abolish the Sanitary Board as at present constituted. This hybrid institution, which was expected to perform so many wonders in improving the sanitary condition of Hongkong, has been in existence for many months, and the sum total of its usefulness amounts to nil. But more than this—it has become a discredit to the Government and a laughing stock to the community.

The Premier, in the course of his narrative of the salvage operations, said that wire was passed round the submarine and a "camel" placed in position, but the submarine slipped the wire and had to be re-located.

It was not possible to say how soon the submarine could be raised.

Public Inquiry
A full public inquiry would be made, promised Mr. Chamberlain.

The Premier expressed the profound sorrow of the Government and the Houses of Parliament at the loss of so many valuable lives, and expressed deep sympathy with the relatives.

Mr. Chamberlain said that with a view to facilitating escape for the personnel, all possible measures were taken by the crew to lighten the submarine, and the stern came to the surface.

After the rescue ship Bronze had located the submarine and indicated its presence by sound signals, two survivors came to the surface by means of the Davis escape apparatus.

One of these was Captain Oram, who with great gallantry, took upon himself, before he knew the submarine had been sighted, to escape from the Thetis under conditions which were realised to be most dangerous, in order to direct operations.

Later two more men came to the surface, and, as soon as possible, a diver from the Vigilant went down, but he had the greatest difficulty in working.

An endeavour was made to lift the stern of submarine higher with a view to cutting a hole above the water so that conditions allowed. To have attempted to cut a hole in the conditions then obtaining would have incurred severe risks of flooding which would have been unjustified.

The Round Table

IF THE new appeal to the Democracies by His Holiness the Pope is based upon fears that an alliance between Great Britain, France and Soviet Russia may pave the way to the bolshevisation of Europe it should meet with scant sympathy. That contingency, we believe, is remote. Russia desires no more to-day than to be left alone in peace. She does not want war, and she is in no position to attempt to spread her ideology to other lands. Rather should His Holiness the Pope oppose the real menace that is threatening Europe. So long as Hitler rules Germany, the peace of the world will be menaced, and no reliance can be placed on any pledge he may give.

Everyone would welcome the conference of nations proposed by His Holiness, but suggestions of negotiations on "outstanding grievances" need to be watched by the Democracies with care, even with suspicion. For such phrases appear to imply that past aggressions have arisen from just grievances, and that they should not be re-opened.

An international conference which does not place the destruction of Czechoslovakia and Albania at the head of its agenda of problems for discussion would simply be condoning, instead of attempting to redress, injustices.

The real move towards future peace came from President Roosevelt. It was spurred by Germany and Italy. That is the reply Hitler and Mussolini have given—and would have given even if the appeal from President Roosevelt had been from Pope Pius himself.

Hitler's Reichstag speech is not so old that it should be forgotten in any future plans for conferences. Only two nations in the world to-day refuse to give an assurance that they will not commit aggression in the future. Can our statesmen be trusted to sit around a table with the dictators, especially when we remember what has happened at previous conferences of this nature—at Godesberg and Munich, for instance? The Democracies have gained nothing and lost much at the round-table.

All this talk of injustice to Germany at Versailles should be viewed in the light of history—as published elsewhere on this page. Hitler himself admits in "Mein Kampf" that if Germany, and not the Allies, had won the Great War, there would be only one nation in Europe to-day—Germany. He seeks—as his speech to German Ex-Servicemen yesterday indicated—to rectify that mistake. If there is a war and Germany wins, there will be less mercy for the Democracies. That they showed the Germans at Versailles.

WHO WON THE WAR?

Hitler's Baseless Charge About The 14 Points

THOSE who nurse their grievances feed upon them till they become a habit of the soul. That would seem to be the case with the Fuehrer and the Peace Treaties.

He has persuaded himself that Germany was tricked when she sought—the initiative came entirely from her—an Armistice on the basis of President Wilson's Fourteen Points.

He studiously avoids all reference to the Notes which passed between the German Government and the U.S.A. before the Germans realised that nothing was to be gained by manoeuvring and that it only remained to take what was offered. Herr Hitler ignores whatever is inconvenient to his case.

Here is his specific charge as preferred in his carefully prepared speech at the rally of German Ex-Servicemen yesterday:

WAR GUILT

"Germany never had any war aims, but the Treaty of Versailles revealed that all the other nations had war aims. The robbery of our colonies, the destruction of our fleet, and the destruction of our trade in the world—these were the British aims in those days, and they were changed."

"Germany's 'War Guilt' was that she frivolously neglected her armaments before the war. If the enforcement policy proves the same as before the war, there is one difference to-day as far as Germany is concerned, namely that Germany's policy of defence has fundamentally changed."

ADMISSION OF DEFEAT

That is what Herr Hitler has persuaded himself. That is what Nazi Germany has been taught by years of intensive propaganda to believe. That is what some foolish people in England and Hongkong are inclined to accept for no better reason than that they have heard it said so often. Yet it is demonstrably untrue.

Who would suppose from the Fuehrer's words that Mr. Lansing, President Wilson's Secretary of State, had been at particular pains to make it absolutely clear to the Germans that their pressing request for an Armistice was only acceptable at all on the basis of admitted defeat.

"The only Armistice he (President Wilson) would feel justified in submitting to the Allies," Lansing wrote on Oct. 23, "is one which would leave them in a position to enforce any arrangement that may be entered into and make a renewal of hostilities impossible."

The Germans had begun by suggesting "a mixed Commission" which should arrange for the evacuation of the occupied territories from which their own armies were withdrawing, plundering and destroying as they went, and they had proposed that their military advisers should meet those of the Allies in order to "maintain the actual standard of power on both sides." They were politely but firmly reminded of where they really stood.

Between their first Note of Oct. 4, signed by Prince Max of Baden, and their last, which they signed on Oct. 27, the German Government now awaits proposals for an Armistice which shall be a first step to a just peace as the President has described it in his Proclamations; they had changed their form of Government to what Herr Hitler would now call "a vile democracy."

Lansing had bluntly warned them that the U.S.A. desired no dealings with "the military masters and the monarchical autocrats of Germany."

AVERTING WAR'S RENEWAL

The Germans, therefore, could be under no illusion about the general character of the Armistice which would be presented for their acceptance. They were neither tricked nor duped. They knew it would be such as would make it "impossible" for them to renew the war. They accepted it because they must.

The President's Fourteen Points are too long to be quoted in extent, but they may fairly be epitomised as follows:

- 1 Open covenants and no secret diplomacy in the future.
- 2 Absolute freedom of navigation in peace and war outside territorial waters, except where seas are closed by international action.
- 3 Removal as far as possible of all economic barriers.
- 4 Adequate guarantees for the reduction of national armaments.
- 5 A free, open-minded and absolutely impartial adjustment of all colonial claims, equal weight being given to the interests of the peoples concerned.
- 6 All Russian territory to be evacuated.
- 7 Complete restoration of Belgium to full and free sovereignty.
- 8 All French territory to be restored and the wrongs of 1871 righted.
- 9 Readjustment of Italian frontiers on lines of nationality.
- 10 Peoples of Austria-Hungary to have the chance of autonomous development.
- 11 Rumania, Serbia and Montenegro to be evacuated; Serbia to have access to the sea and Balkan relationships to be settled on historically established lines of allegiance and nationality.
- 12 Autonomous development for all non-Turkish nationalities, and the Dardanelles to be permanently free to all ships.

13 Poland to be an independent State with access to the sea.

14 "A general association of nations" to be established so as to afford national guarantees of political independence and territorial integrity to great and small States alike.

PRINCIPLES FOR PEACE

The Fourteen Points as epitomised above were not the only formal presentation of President Wilson's principles for the basis of a just and durable peace. Six months later, on July 4, at Mount Vernon he had crystallised them into Four Principles. They were:

(1) The destruction of every arbitrary power anywhere that can secretly, secretly and of its single choice disturb the peace of the world.

(2) Every question, whether of territory, sovereignty, economic or political arrangement, must be settled on the basis of their free acceptance by the peoples immediately concerned.

(3) All nations to act on the same principle of honour and respect for the common law of civilised society, so that all promises and commitments may be sacredly observed, no selfish injuries may be wrought with impunity, and national trust may be established on the hand-some foundation of a national respect for rights.

(4) The establishment of an Organisation of Peace (i.e., a League of Nations).

"What we seek," said the President, "is the reign of law based on the consent of the governed and sustained by the organised opinion of mankind."

These Four Principles and the Five Particulars he enunciated in September are anathema to Hitler; for they clash with Nazism in every detail. But they succinctly epitomise the Wilsonian principles on which the Germans sued for an armistice led by a Peace. They were specifically referred to by the Allies in their memorandum to President Wilson on Nov. 5, 1918, when they said:

"The Allied Governments, subject to the qualifications which follow, declare their willingness to make peace with the Government of Germany on the terms of peace laid down in the President's address to Congress in January, 1918, and the principles of settlement enunciated in his subsequent addresses."

The qualifications there referred to concerned the "Freedom of the Seas," which the Allied Governments reserved complete freedom of action, and the interpretation of the phrase about the "restoration" of invaded regions. Mr. Wilson disliked both these qualifications, but his objections were finally dropped.

But there was no bad faith as regards either one or the other on the part of the British or French Governments, and the Germans were neither tricked nor duped because on the two points mentioned the Allies and the U.S.A. had taken divergent views. President Wilson was never given plenipotentiary powers by the Allies to prescribe the basis either of the Armistice or of the Peace.

It has never been explained why the Supreme War Council did not include Point 5 among those to which they required "qualifications." The wording is extravagantly idealistic. What Conference could conceivably be "free, open-minded and absolutely impartial" when Colonies were being distributed? Did the President envisage the presence of Germans at such a Conference? Certainly the Allies did not.

NO RETURN OF COLONIES

I can only suppose that the Supreme War Council on Nov. 5 agreed to let the explosive Point 5 pass unchallenged, knowing that the colonial issue would cause infinite trouble when it had to be faced seriously.

As indeed it did. Only after he had threatened to quit the Conference and go home did the President, who had wanted the German Colonies placed under international control, agree to the Mandate compromise. But no single voice had been raised in favour of their return to Germany, for reasons which seemed conclusive to all—if Peace was to be secure in Africa.

Those who speak of the vindictiveness displayed in the Peace Treaties ignore the long agony through which the world had passed. It was a human impossibility for the victors so soon to forgive and forget. Mr. H. A. L. Fisher, one of the fairest of historians, has written: "For a more generous spirit there came sharp reminders from home to harden their hearts and exact a just retribution."

Apparently the worst crime of the Peace Treaties in the eyes of Herr Hitler, judging by the emphasis which he lays upon it, was the inclusion of 1,500,000 Germans under alien rule, contrary to the Wilsonian maxim of self-determination. Historians, on the other hand, draw attention to the fact that the Treaties only left 3 per cent. of the peoples of the Continent under foreign domination.

SAFEGUARDING MINORITIES

The MORNING A BRIGHT and keen October morning. CATCH

N. B.
WHITESTONE

The jumbled collection of tiny matted huts clustered round the gently creaming waters of the lovely, crescent bay, could scarcely be termed a village.

Had this isolated bay a name, of ill-omen would it be, despite its gleaming, natural beauty.

The lordly sweep of that lone, indented coast was, and to some extent is, mystical piracy. Whatever and whoever their immediate forebears, these dauntless fishermen—and women—lead blameless, arduous and even gallant lives.

AMID a din of raucous cheerful bawlings the swaying junks are boarded and in the glittering sunlight and keen, salt-laden air the entire and tiny fleet of five takes the waters, brown sails in gleaming silhouette against the rising glow.

With a favouring and sufficient breeze the four miles to the fishing ground are quickly covered; the contented, hard-working, and self-sufficing little bands prepare to cast the precious nets, hoping that they have rightly timed the seasonal prevalence of profitable shoals.

Man, woman and half-grown lads unfurl the giant net—that costly, cherished and pumpered essential of their calling.

Ah Hoi, the round-limbed, brown-faced, bustling mother, eyes gleaming under reeded hat, strains her sturdy limbs.

Her hawk-eyed husband scans the waters and laughs with deep content, sighting the shoal of sporting, silvery fish. Only the old grandfather is silent and morose, puffing meditatively his old-type water-pipe.

He appears fascinated with the horizon, gazing intently here and there with odd misgiving. For a full minute his stare fixes to the north; he scrambles down the cluttered the Sudeten Germans in the new State of Czechoslovakia. It was only agreed to with many deep misgivings and on the strength of the most unqualified assurances that the rights of the German minority would be fully safeguarded. That may not justify, but it explains, and—though this is no excuse—it was fully shown in September and October that Herr Hitler would not scruple to infringe a principle to secure a better frontier for the Reich.

The truth of the matter is that no group even of completely disinterested statesmen could have redrawn in 1919 or could redraw to-day the frontiers of Central Europe in such a way as to conform strictly with the Wilsonian principle of self-determination unless they had recourse to large transferences of population from one State to another.

Were, then, the Germans "cheated"? No. Could they have got better terms if they had fought on? No. Were they offered a negotiated Treaty? No. They had their offer to lay down their arms on the basis of the Fourteen Points accepted? No. It was accepted by the Allies subject to "qualifications" and on the basis of the Fourteen Points and the principles embodied in the later Presidential utterances. Were the Allies faithful to their pledges? As faithful as the temper of the times permitted.

Stares anew. Hands the rattling implement gruntingly to his son, who also stares.

THE two commence an animated discussion, quickly joined by the startled Ah Hoi.

Smoke it certainly is that dark, floating, ragged smudge and, unhappily, the nearer and the denser.

A liner—or worse? The crews upon the junks can make no preparations even for the worst, even against their fears. Useless to flee; they stand their ground. All work is suspended, all eyes straining under guarding hand into the blinding light.

NOBODY aboard the junk heard the shot. Its report was lost amid the crashing of the mighty mast, dragging the massive craft on to her scarred though well-built side.

Without a cry, four frightened people are flung, struggling and choking, into the water, thrown well away from the half-sunk boat.

Ah Hoi, her husband and sons are fair swimmers. She, breathless and bleeding, achieves the shelter of the nearest unharmed junk, hides clinging to the jolting, awaying stern.

Men and lads reach the wreckage of their majestically heaving, all-but-sunken craft, and climb painfully upon her sloping, slimy side. A second shot has meantime pierced the golden sail of a nearby junk; other shots go wide.

A smoke-gray pinnace nears, manned by eight grotesque-features and slovenly-dressed, invaders.

Unintelligible shouts are barked at the shivering, terrified mortals slithering upon the fallen wreck of their prized and cherished property.

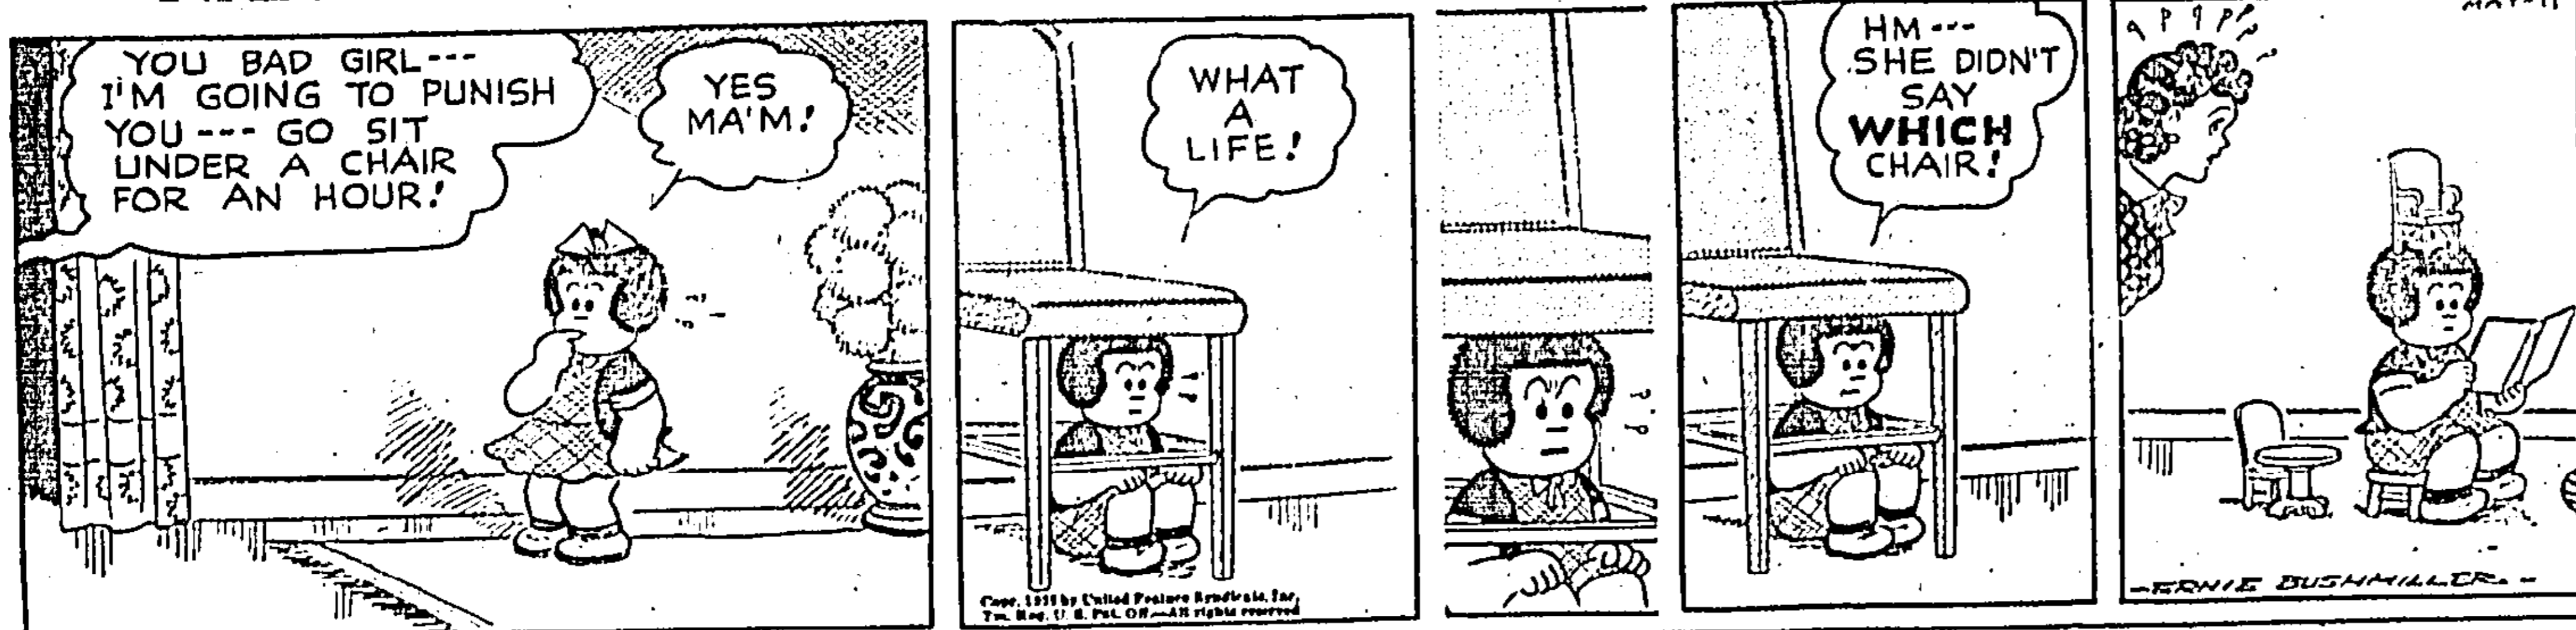

Receiving no obedience to their incomprehensible and doubtless impossible orders, two under-sized sailors leapt, with astonishing agility considering the malformation of their bow-legged frames, upon the drifting junk; prodd with vicious, gleaming bayonet the shivering, trembling trio before them into the waiting pinnace.

The whole crew now hack at all available portions of the murdered craft; shout incomprehensible orders to the apprehensive fishermen upon the remaining junks. The pinnace PLEASE Turn To Page 5.

FILIPINO DAVIS CUPPERS TO PARTICIPATE IN SEVEN BIG AMERICAN TOURNAMENTS

Valuable Experience May Be Gained By Meeting World Stars

Amado Sanchez and Felicisimo Ampon who compose the Philippine Davis Cup team will compete in seven big American tennis tournaments before and after their Davis Cup schedule with Australia on July 15, 16 and 17 at Long Beach, California. Permission has been granted the two players to participate in the American tournament by the executive committee of the Philippine Amateur Athletic Federation upon the recommendation of the P. I. Lawn Tennis Association.

Pitts officials pointed out that in permitting the two youthful ones to compete in as many tournaments as they can while in the United States they will gain some much needed tournament experience and will develop their game. Sanchez and Ampon are both young and are expected to rule Philippine tennis for a long time to come. Coming in contact with tournament tennis abroad will do much in developing the game in the Islands, it is believed. According to arrangements, the two Philippine Davis Cup players will participate in the United States National net series and in several state and city championships both in San Francisco and in New York. Due to their long schedule they are not expected to return until October.

TRIP RECALLED

The arrangements for Sanchez and Ampon may recall the Davis Cup trip of the Aragon brothers, Francisco and Guillermo, in 1926. These two old-timers also competed in several big tennis tournaments in the States after their Davis Cup assignment. They won several matches and Guillermo copped an international title. Sanchez and Ampon are due in San Francisco on board the President Pierce on or about June 8 in time to compete in the Central California net tournament, scheduled at Sacramento on June 10 and 11. On June 17, the two will play in the sixth annual San Francisco city tennis championship at Golden Gate Park. These first two tournaments are expected to put them in the pink of condition for their Davis Cup meeting with Australia, scheduled at Long Beach, California, on July 15, 16 and 17.

The two aces participated in exhibition matches in Hongkong, Shanghai and Osaka while passing those ports enroute to the States. Although they did not impress fans there they won their matches. Ampon, especially, was acclaimed as a colorful and heady player by the spectators.

PLAYING DATES

The playing dates arranged for the two while in the States as approved by the P.A.A.F. executive committee are as follows:
1. June 10-11—Central California Championships, at Sacramento.
2. June 17-25—Sixth Annual San Francisco City Tennis Championship, at Golden Gate Park.
3. July 15-17—Davis Cup play against Australia, at Long Beach grass courts near Los Angeles.
4. August 5—Westchester C. C. (Eastern Tennis Championship), at Rye, New York.
5. August 14—National doubles championship, Longwood Cricket Club, at Chestnut Hill, Mass.
6. September 7—National singles championship, West Side Tennis Club, at Forest Hills.
7. September 22—Pacific South West Tennis Championships, at Los Angeles.
8. September 29—Pacific Coast Tennis Championships, at Berkeley, California.

Cycling

ENJOYABLE RIDE MADE TO LAM TI

Aggregate mileage for the scheduled outings of the Hongkong Cycling Club during May was 420 miles, of which four Sunday runs accounted for 100, four Saturday rides 103, five Wednesday spins 95 miles, and Whit-Monday's trip of 20 miles completing the programme.

Attendances on the mid-week and Saturday outings last week maintained their usual level, but there was a slight drop on Sunday, spin to Stanley, but the week-end spin to Stanley, but the weekend provided better weather and a consequent increase in comfort and enjoyment.

Saturday's party left the Alhambra at 2.15 p.m. and returned at 6 p.m. at 2.15 p.m. and returned at 6 p.m. after a ride to the Lingnam University's College of Agriculture at Lam Ti, a short halt being made each way at Ting Kau. The outward trip against a stiff breeze occupied the party two and a quarter hours; the assistance of the wind brought the riders back at nearly 15 m.p.h.

Sunday's party left the Alhambra at 9.40 a.m. and reached Castle Peak Bay at 11.30 a.m. after an easy ride under threatening weather conditions, which, however, failed to materialise. A stay of about two hours was made before the homeward run was commenced via Ting Kau and Tsun Wan, a most enjoyable outing concluding at 4 p.m.

This week's programme includes a visit to Repulse Bay on Wednesday, from the Methodist Church, Hennessy Road, Wanchai, at 6 p.m. On Saturday the Statue Rock locality in the Shatin Valley will be explored, and on Sunday the Club will ride to Unicorn. The Alhambra Theatre, Kowloon, is the rendezvous being scheduled for 2 p.m. and 9.30 a.m. respectively. Non-members will be welcomed on all outings.

WHERE'S MOTHER?

"GOD can't be always everywhere, and so invented Mother." Thus said Sir Edwin Arnold, and most of us are fortunate enough to have known at some time that "Home is Where Mother is." It's a grand cry, that shout of "Where's Mother?" There is something important to be told that she must share at once; her help is needed in some difficulty, small or large. It is also a cry of great faith. She is the one who will not fail, the one who will know just what to do in any emergency. But, alas, it is a cry that carries a warning if it is heard too often, for we must not keep the children in leading-strings over long if they are to be taught the all-important lesson of independence.

Therefore the wise mother will take up the attitude of "I'm here close at hand, but only here to help you to help yourself." Often it requires a great deal of courage and self-restraint to take such a stand, but the children will thank us for doing so later on. I receive many letters on this subject, and I am putting some of the queries and replies before you to-day, as the problem is, I am sure, full of interest to all parents.

All Join In

My baby girl has recently begun to scream whenever I leave her alone for a few minutes, and it is difficult to quieten her.—Heartbroken.

BY worrying yourself over this problem you are not facing it in the right spirit, for you will have to steel yourself to the fact that Baby cannot always have you beside her.

By feeling jealous when your mother or sister offered to nurse her, you have been binding the child to yourself in a selfish manner; now you are both suffering.

Give way in this matter; let her become accustomed to others and let her father take her out sometimes when you are busy, as he suggests. Even if there are tears at first do not heed them; just disappear for the time being and baby will soon settle down to her new friends.

Only Child

Whenever I invite a little friend to play with Bobby he just runs across the room, buries his face in my lap and refuses to go away. If I insist he cries bitterly.—Peckham.

BEGIN now to take Bobby over to see his cousins and leave him there with your sister for an afternoon, explaining the position to her. Do not wait yourself but leave the matter to your sister.

He is likely to settle down quite quickly and to take an interest in their toys. There is an excellent nursery school in your district, and it would be a wise plan to enrol him there so that he becomes accustomed to other children.

I am glad to hear that he is to have

"My baby screams whenever I leave her alone"

Son's Confidant

My son of fifteen used to tell me everything, but now he is very silent and goes about with lads of whom I am not sure that I approve.—Effe.

YOUR son has reached an age when male companionship is necessary to him, and he would be quite abnormal if he avoided the friendship of lads of his own age.

Probably the fact that you do not approve of his going off in this way has made him feel awkward over the whole situation, and that would naturally tend to dry up any easy relationship between you.

If you follow my advice you will make the meetings easier for him, cutting sandwiches perhaps and providing certain funds for cheap train fares for himself and a couple of friends so that to strange courts to learn the duties of knightship may fire his imagination or the thought that he is no longer a baby but must now begin to qualify for manhood like his father. Don't leave "Daddy" out of this important problem. He will be able to do a lot to help his small son over this rough patch.

Her Own Mistress

I have been offended by the attitude of my only daughter, married at Christmas. For years she never did anything without consulting me. Now she just laughs if I make suggestions about her home.—Housewife.

YOUR daughter has evidently taken up the wise stand of being "daughter in her mother's house but mistress in her own," and no one can blame her in this attitude, for it is dictated by common sense.

If you have trained her well in housecraft she will be putting it all to good use now, but at the same time it is for her to study the particular tastes of her husband and the circumstances of her own home life.

By insisting that your way is the only right way you will be losing ground with these young people, so I advise you to be more forbearing in your attitude and less given to criticism from now on.

Food for Toddler

I have been told that brains are good for toddlers in place of meat. How are they cooked?

BUY a set of sheep's brains from your butcher, price 4d. to 6d. Pour boiling water over them, then peel off the outer skin and any other waste. Simmer in a little slightly salted milk until cooked (no redness about them).

Strain, beat up with a fork and serve with a little mashed potato or with toast. For slightly older toddlers brains fried in butter make a tasty breakfast dish. Cooked according to either method they make excellent fare for invalids.

It's American

THE excellent idea of serving hot toasted sandwiches at a snack meal came from America. Try one with a fish filling.

Take some cooked dried haddock, add a little melted butter or margarine, pepper, then stir in a teaspoonful of chopped parsley with a little lemon juice.

Spread between slices of hot buttered toast, and serve hot. A mixture of minced ham and chopped hard-boiled egg is also exceedingly good in a toasted sandwich.

Home-sick Boy

I am afraid that my boy of nine will miss me badly when he starts school next term. We have always been together.—Blundellians.

AS you tell me that your son is already making himself miserable at the prospect, I fear that you have perhaps stressed the parting in recent conversations. You will have to be firmer now if he is to go away, otherwise he will really suffer, for the first few weeks at all events. Refuse to notice tears, but quietly describe the interest attached to the new life. Tales of young pages who were sent

Chicken Sandwich Treat for Everyone

TRIPLE your reputation as a hostess with a three-layer sandwich full of tempting flavours! Chicken, olives, pineapple and almonds combine to produce a party or picnic sandwich everyone will enjoy. To make your sandwiches by a system, stack your bread on the left, empty glass jars of filling ingredients into bowls on your right. Spread each slice of bread with softened butter, then progressively from left to right according to the recipe given below:

THREE-DECKER CHICKEN SPECIAL

- (30 large sandwiches)
- 1 6½-ounce jar boneless chicken, chopped
- 2/3 cup finely chopped ripe pineapple
- 2/3 cup finely chopped pimiento
- 1/4 teaspoon celery salt
- 1 1/2 teaspoons minced onion or onion salt
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon black pepper
- 1/4 cup mayonnaise
- 3 5-ounce jars pineapple cream cheese
- 1/2 cup chopped salted almonds
- 30 slices whole wheat bread
- 60 slices white bread
- Softened butter

Combine chicken, olives pimiento and seasonings with mayonnaise.

PICNIC SANDWICHES

For the picnic hamper, here are suggestions for quick-as-a-wink sandwiches from the things you keep on your pantry shelf:

Slice bananas over white bread spread with peanut butter.

Blend chopped candied ginger, dates and mayonnaise. Good on whole wheat or nut bread.

Mixed flaked canned salmon celery, chopped hard-cooked egg, on white bread.

American Fashion Notes

By ELEANOR GUNN

New York—The film telling the story of Irene and Vernon Castle releases a flood of nostalgic reminiscences of the days of their early success and of their contemporaries, notably Maurice and Walton. Hence I've made a little survey to determine the first night club or supper room as they were then called, east of Fifth Avenue, far from the hilarious Broadway atmosphere. The first was at the Biltmore Hotel, which was recognized as a trying place, a natural, for the young socialite on vacation.

Remembering the Cascades, as this first supper room was called, may date your definitely pre-war but dining and dancing in the mellow light of the Bowman Room, its worthy successor, includes you among the initiated.

ROOM OF MEMORIES

Maurice and Walton made their debut here so that the room has its memories as well as its big moment. When Mr. and Mrs. America may be seen having a time for themselves. Mrs. America appears in various versions of the shirt-waist and skirt formula, a throw-back to the days, though not the nights, of the Gay Nineties. Dinner hats—tiny flower-laden affairs—and bows in the hair are seen, and as is usual in all smart places, filmy black gowns have wide acceptance. I noted particularly that evening gowns were either in the romantic, full-skirted mode or in tailored versions. Both are smart.

Now for several New York notes: First about Brenda Frazier, home from Nassau, tinted a delicate café-au-lait smartly set off by the black dresses she is affecting. Incidentally her coming-out dress, white satin with a cascade of white ostrich down one side of the wide skirt is being perpetuated on canvas. Brenda is sitting, or rather standing, for her portrait, wearing it. Her hair is shoulder-length and, unadorned, which is worth noting since practically everyone is wearing something or other in or on their head.

LITTLE GIRLS GROWN TALL

A deb of to-morrow is young Gloria Vanderbilt, suddenly grown tall and lovely. During her spring vacation she was dancing in the Iridium Room of the St. Regis in a delicate honey-coloured lace and chiffon typical of the dresses worn by many of the school girls grown up for a night. Many white dresses have buttered on and off the dance floors, during the week, but taken by and large, it is the cobweb lace, with chiffon or net, usually black, that is the reigning favourite.

Joan Crawford, who during her stay East seemed to be everywhere at once but in a different costume, is very partial to black and has several dinner gowns with leg o' mutton sleeves, a type of dress which, due to the complexities of daylight dining, seems to be gaining in favour.

At such luncheon places as the Ritz, the Biltmore and the Plaza one sees gay dresses or suits topped by white or very colourful hats. An occasional print is appearing, some shepherd-checks, and a significant number of striped tailcoats.

SHOT-GUN FIRED AT DUCHESS OF KENT IN LONDON STREET

Australian Held As Sequel To City Sensation

Special to "Telegraph"

(Copyright, United Press Association. Received 9.30 a.m., Published 10.15 a.m.)

LONDON, June 6.

A SENSATIONAL attempt was made to shoot the Duchess of Kent, wife of the King's youngest brother, and Lady Portarlington, as they were proceeding through the streets of London in a motor-car last night.

The incident occurred shortly before 9 p.m., as the Duchess and Lady Portarlington were en route to a cinema to see the new United Artists' film "Wuthering Heights."

Co-stars in the film are the Australian actress, Merle Oberon, Laurence Olivier and Navid Niven, and Flora Robson.

Scotland Yard announced at 10 p.m. that neither Her Royal Highness nor Lady Portarlington were injured.

They were not aware, until they arrived at the cinema, that the shot had been fired.

MAN ARRESTED

The two ladies insisted on remaining at the show even after they had been informed of the affray.

Late last night, Scotland Yard detectives arrested an elderly man.

His name has not been released, but it is stated that he arrived in England from Australia about three weeks ago.

Sawed-Off Shotgun

The arrested man had been acting strangely outside the Duchess' residence in Belgrave Square.

He is alleged to have fired from a sawed-off shot gun in the direction of the Duchess of Kent's car.—United Press.

Lady Portarlington is Lady-in-Waiting to the Duchess of Kent. She is the wife of the sixth Earl of Portarlington (whose forefathers gave the name to a prosperous town in Victoria, Australia), and is the daughter of Mr. G. S. Yull, of Chesham Place, London.

The Duchess of Kent, formerly Princess Marina of Greece, is one of the most popular and attractive members of the royal family, and is famed, among other things, for her original and becoming dress styles. She has been named the best-dressed woman in the world.

Highly gifted, the Duchess of Kent speaks English, French and German fluently, and of course, Greek. She is a brilliant dancer, a first-rate shot, and a good horsewoman. She is devoted to music.

Her marriage to the Duke of Kent was the culmination of a real romance and was completely free of anything suggesting a "diplomatic alliance."

Two Previous Escapes

The Duchess of Kent has had two previous narrow escapes from death since her wedding.

In 1935, the train which she and the Duke of Kent were taking from Munich station, started before the royal couple had got aboard. The Duke jumped on to the moving train and turned to help the Duchess. She was just about to try to jump on the running board as the train gathered speed when the Duke realised the danger and cried out.

Tokyo's Explanation of Ranpura Hold-Up

Japan's Blockade Illegal, Declares Foreign Office

LONDON, June 5.

QUESTIONS were put in the House of Commons to-day regarding the Japanese claim to the right to blockade Chinese ports.

Mr. R. A. Butler replied that shortly after the outbreak of the Sino-Japanese hostilities in 1937, the Japanese Government purported to declare a blockade of the whole of the coast, but said that it would be exclusively applied to Chinese vessels.

Any attempt to apply the blockade to vessels of other Powers would constitute an assertion of belligerent rights, and in the absence of a state of war between China and Japan, would be illegal.

The British Government had already made its views on the matter clear to the Japanese Government.

No Genuine Doubt

Mr. R. H. Horgan (Cons) asked if Ranpura incident closed on the Japanese explanation that they mistook the identity of the vessel.

Mr. Butler replied: "We have always agreed that our ships might be boarded in cases of genuine doubt, whether the ships are British or not, there could be no doubt in the case of the Ranpura, and that is why we took up a definite attitude, and have now received the explanation given."

Mr. Morgan asked if that explanation was satisfactory, and Mr. Butler was understood to reply: "Yes, as far as it goes."—Reuter.

Tsingtao Blockade

LONDON, June 5.—In the House of Commons to-day, Sir Stewart Sandeman asked whether the Prime Minister was aware that the Japanese Naval Mission at Tsingtao now required landing permits for each separate bill of lading in respect of goods shipped on British vessels; that cargoes have to be stored for several days in an open wharf, and that no restrictions were placed on cargoes arriving by Japanese vessels?

He also asked whether the Prime Minister would indicate to the Japanese Government that unless restrictions against British trade were removed, it may be necessary to impose similar restrictions on Japanese vessels arriving in British ports.

Mr. R. A. Butler said that the reply to the first two parts of the question was in the affirmative. He added that discriminating existed so far as warehouse accommodation was made available for Japanese ships, but not yet for British vessels.

The matter had been taken up with the local Japanese authorities at Tsingtao, and reports had been received by Sir Robert Craigie, the British Consul-General, that the Japanese were pressing for the allocation of

JAPANESE HOLD BRITISH COLONEL AS ALLEGED SPY FOR CHUNGKING

LT. COL. C. R. SPEAR, M.C., who was arrested by the Japanese military authorities when he crossed "No Man's Land" from the Chinese to the Japanese lines last month, has been charged with alleged espionage activity on behalf of the Chinese Government, according to a "Domei" message this morning.

Lt. Col. Spear is Military Attaché to the British Embassy in Chungking. In addition to Lt. Col. Spear, the Japanese have arrested Lt. Cooper, Assistant Military Attaché to the British Embassy in Peiping, who went to Kalgan in an effort to secure the release of his senior officer.

No charges appear to have been preferred against Lt. Cooper.

The Japanese now admit the identity of their two captives, whom they previously referred to as "foreigners purporting to claim that they were military attaches of a Third Power."

The Japanese report of the arrest of the British officers, released this morning through "Domei", says:

"The Japanese military authorities on May 15 were informed that unidentified foreigners were staying at Shuangshoutan in the district of Chohu, about 20 miles south-east of Kalgan on the Peiping-Pootow Railway in southern Chahar."

"Japanese military police immediately proceeded to the spot and took two British officials to the Japanese gendarmerie headquarters at Kalgan."

"Subsequent inquiries revealed that Lt. Col. Spear, who assumed his new office in Shanghai in October last year, by order of the British Ambassador to China, Sir Archibald Clark Kerr, left Shanghai in a steamer in February this year, and proceeded to Hanol via Hongkong."

Inspected Chinese Armies

"He flew from Hanol to Chungking and after seeing Chinese Government leaders at various places inspected the movements of the Chinese armies, including Communist troops in Szechwan, Shensi, Shansi and Hopei."

"Finally he entered Shansi from Kiangsi, an important base of the Chinese Communist Army in northern Shensi, and reached Shuangshoutan, in southern Chahar, through Kolan, Wuai, and Yangklaho."

Wireless Allegations

"The British official travelled from Kiangsi in Shensi to Chahar on foot."

"Lt. Col. Spear, during the pedestrian trip, sent reports on the conditions prevailing in the military zone to Peiping and Shanghai."

Japanese Claims He Fired Shot

SHANGHAI, June 6.

Fresh Anglo-Japanese complications arose over the textile workers' strike in the British-owned China Printing and Finishing Company at Pootung when Mr. R. M. Tinker, employee of the firm's Pootung Point Works, fired his pistol on a Japanese naval officer at 7.50 o'clock this morning.

Tinker was disarmed and arrested by the Japanese authorities. The incident occurred when a Japanese landing party asked to prevent rioting between the strikers and the strike-breakers by greeting all Chinese—Domei.

Gunfire Audible In Northern City

CHUNGKING, June 6.

THOUSANDS of well-equipped Chinese guerrillas operating in Kiangsu and Chekiang provinces are claimed by Chinese military headquarters to be converging on Shanghai with the object of encircling the city.

In accordance with a pre-conceived plan, the guerrilla units have already arrived at designated positions around Shanghai.

Each unit has taken different routes in order not to awaken suspicions.

The preliminary step is to sever Japanese lines of communications.

Both banks of the Whangpoo River to within a few miles of Shanghai are already under Chinese control, and communications between Shanghai and Nantao are now directly menaced.

Gunfire has been audible in the western section of Shanghai for several nights past.—Central News.

Japanese Expelled

Except for a few strategic points and communication lines occupied by Japanese troops, the Chinese have completely regained control of Shansi Province, declared General Yen Hai-shan, Commander-in-Chief of the Northwestern War Zone, in a press interview yesterday.

Of the total of 105 districts in Shansi Province, according to the veteran Shansi military leader, there is not one district without a Chinese magistrate in control of its administration.

In Taiyuan, the former capital of the province and now the Japanese headquarters in Shansi, the invaders were holding not more than a few miles from its gates, said General Yen, whose men are active in the outskirts of Taiyuan.

The area under virtual Japanese control in the province has diminished rapidly with the expansion of the Chinese—Domei.

September As Zero Hour?

LONDON, June 5.

BRITISH AMBASSADORS and Ministers have been instructed by the Foreign Office to take their vacations this year between June and August, and to be at their posts at the beginning of September.

Diplomatic circles interpret this step as fear on the part of the British Government that international tension will again develop in September.—Trans-Ocean.

FATE OF EUROPE IN NAZI HANDS

Remarkable Outburst

VIENNA, June 5.

"WE CARRY THE fate of the Continent of Europe in our hands."

"There is a terrific spiritual battle in progress in Europe."

"We know its background; its development we cannot yet force absolutely in all its phases."

"In this development, however, we National Socialists and Fascists stand, not only as the servants of our own peoples, but as pioneers of a new epoch."

This was part of a remarkable speech in Vienna to-day by Dr. Goebbels, the Nazi Propaganda Minister. The Italian Propaganda Minister was present.

Goebbels warned Britain and France that any attempt to split the Rome-Berlin axis was hopelessly doomed to failure.

"Both our peoples know that together they are invincible."

"For reasons of ideology and in common interests they must march together, for better or for worse."

"Together, in almost complete security and tranquillity, they face dangers which may develop from a nervous and uneasy Europe."

"We know Europe's stability depends upon the happiness of all European peoples, and the peace of this sorry-tried Continent depends on the relations between Italy and Germany."—United Press.

HUSHED COMMONS HEARS OF DRAMA IN STRICKEN SUBMARINE THETIS

Men Were Overpowered By Flood of Water

LONDON, June 5.

SOME INDICATION of the horror of the situation in the submarine Thetis when the forward torpedo tube door burst open and hundreds of tons of water commenced to flood the compartment was given in a statement issued last night by Mr. R. S. Johnson, Managing Director of Cammel Laird & Co., builders of the submarine.

Unknown to the men in the forward compartment, the torpedo tube was already flooded.

When they opened the rear door of the torpedo tube, the water tore into the submarine in a surge reminiscent of that from a giant nozzle.

It completely swept the men off their feet. They made superhuman efforts to fight through the surging powerful jet of water to the door in order to close it, but their attempts were unavailing.

Then they attempted to close the watertight door separating the two forward compartments. Again their efforts were unavailing and, finally, they were forced to retreat amidships, shutting off the two flooded forward compartments.

Mr. Johnson quoted one of the four survivors as saying that all the men aboard the doomed ship planned to use their Davis Escape Apparatus. "Something, however, went wrong," Mr. Johnson said tragically.

Three men died whilst attempting to escape.

Hauled Back—To Die

Another man had actually left the submarine when his apparatus failed him. He was literally seized by the men still inside the vessel and was drawn back—alive! He later met his death with the rest of the crew.

"The four survivors risked their lives to get to the surface in order to bring help to their comrades. They did not know at the time that surface vessels were overhead."

"It was a brave thing to do. They came up with the knowledge that they might arrive in the open sea with nobody to receive them."—United Press.

Everything Done

LONDON, June 5.

Mr. Johnson said that the crew were only able to shut the door partially. Thus the two forward compartments were flooded.

Replying to the criticism that something further might have been done to save the men, Mr. Johnson insisted that the Admiralty had done everything possible to save life. That was the only thing anyone cared about.

Mr. Johnson described the difficulties of the rescue work as "terrible." The currents were very strong and the divers were forced into an almost horizontal position.

Asked why a hole was not cut in the protruding tail, Mr. Johnson declared that this would only have endangered the ship. He added that they could have cut a hole, but they would have been unable to get anyone through.

Air Line Failed

Asked why an air line was not connected to the submarine, Mr. Johnson declared that the divers could not get near the connections.

Mr. Johnson stated that one of the survivors told him that he did not think he could have lived another half an hour if he had stayed in the submarine.

Cammel Lairds would pay the men's dependants the men's wages over a period and the company would look after the people.

At the present, continued Mr. Johnson, attempts were being made to raise the ship slowly and she would gradually be towed short distances above the seabed and beached.

Mr. Johnson advanced the opinion that the submarine was now full of water.

He revealed that when the first two rescued men came up through the escape hatch, four others tried to follow, but for some reason as yet unknown, they were taken back into the submarine. They were dead.—Reuter.

Negotiations With Reich Commons Questions Are Parried

LONDON, June 6.

MR. R. A. BUTLER was closely questioned in the House of Commons to-day on the Anglo-German naval treaty.

He was asked whether the British Government was considering negotiating a further naval agreement as suggested by Herr Hitler.

Mr. Butler said he could not add anything to previous answers, but when asked whether an announcement could be expected quickly, Mr. Butler replied: "Certainly the matter is reaching a stage where some announcement may be made in the near future."—Reuter.

LONDON, June 5.

THE FINEST TRADITIONS of the Senior Service had been upheld by the officers and men in the submarine Thetis.

This was the keynote of a dramatic statement made to a hushed House of Commons by the Premier, Mr. Neville Chamberlain, regarding the disaster that claimed ninety-nine lives on Saturday.

A full public inquiry would be instituted, said Mr. Chamberlain.

He denied, however, that the high number of people aboard the Thetis—103, as compared with the normal complement of 55—had contributed in any way to the disaster.

TORPEDO TUBE OPEN

"As far as can be ascertained," said the Premier,

the vessel sank as a result of the flooding of two forward compartments through one of the forward torpedo tubes."

Mr. Chamberlain informed the House that, in some as yet unexplained manner, the rear door of the tube had been left open.

"Apparently the men in the forward compartment could close neither the door of the torpedo tube nor the forward watertight door."

"The main ballast tanks were emptied with the intention of bringing the vessel to the surface."

"But she took charge and dived to the bottom."

At first, said the Premier, the Thetis sank gradually on an even keel to the bed of the ocean.

Buoys Unobserved

"The impact as she struck bottom threw the men off their feet. Unhappily, it also destroyed the underwater signalling apparatus."

"Marker buoys, which emit smoke signals when they reach the surface, were soon afterwards released. But they were not observed."

"Afterwards, two men came to the surface by means of the Davis Escape Apparatus in order to direct rescue operations."

"I need not tell the House," said Mr. Chamberlain amidst cheers, "that this was a very gallant thing to do."

"One of these two men was Captain Oram. With great gallantry he took upon himself, before he knew that the submarine had been located by surface craft, to escape from the Thetis under conditions which were realised to be most dangerous."

United Press.

LONDON, June 5.—The sinking of the submarine was caused by the flooding of the two forward compartments through the bow torpedo tubes, one of which had become open, or was open when the submarine submerged, Mr. Chamberlain told the House.

The submarine's signalling apparatus was destroyed, preventing her from communicating with surface ships.

Marker buoys and smoke signals had been released, but were not immediately observed.

An effort was made to lift the stern more from the water, with a view to making a hole in it, but the attempt was unsuccessful.

He believed that three men were killed trying to escape with the first party and were withdrawn into the submarine.

The Premier, in the course of his narrative of the salvage operations, said that wire was passed round the submarine and a "camel" placed in position, but the submarine slipped the wire and had to be re-located.

It was not possible to say how soon the submarine could be raised.

Public Inquiry

A full public inquiry would be made, promised Mr. Chamberlain. The Premier expressed the profound sorrow of the Government and the Houses of Parliament at the loss of so many valuable lives, and expressed deep sympathy with the relatives.

Mr. Chamberlain said that with a view to facilitating escape for the personnel, all possible measures were taken by the crew to lighten the submarine, and the stern came to the surface.

After the rescue ship Bruzen had located the submarine and indicated its presence by sound signals, two survivors came to the surface by means of the Davis escape apparatus.

One of these was Captain Oram, who with great gallantry, took upon himself, before he knew the submarine had been sighted, to escape from the Thetis under conditions which were realised to be most dangerous. In order to direct operations.

All Were Alive

Captain Oram reported that conditions in the submarine were becoming bad, although all aboard were still alive.

Later two more men came to the surface and, as soon as possible, a diver from the Vigilant went down, but he had the greatest difficulty in working.

An endeavour was made to lift the stern of submarine higher with a view to cutting a hole above the water as soon as conditions allowed. To have attempted to cut a hole in the conditions then obtaining would have incurred severe risks of flooding which would have been unjustified.

Later, a fresh effort was made to lift the stern, but this was again unsuccessful, as the Thetis was becoming less buoyant.

It was believed that three men were killed when trying to escape with the first party and were taken back into the submarine.

No further escapes could be made by the Davis apparatus.

Shortly before low water, wire was placed round the Thetis, but it slipped, cutting away the indicator buoy.

The submarine was re-located after some hours, and by this time deep-sea divers from Scapa Flow had arrived, and diving operations were again carried out.

All Hope Abandoned

By this time it was clear that there was no further possibility of saving life, and they proceeded with the task of salvaging the vessel.

The Premier added that it was while adjusting the trim of the submarine after diving that the flooding of the forward compartment occurred.

The main ballast tanks were immediately emptied by compressed air with the intention of bringing the Thetis to the surface, but she continued to dive, took an angle of 35 degrees, and hit the bottom at 130 feet.

Mr. Chamberlain said that Cammel Lairds were making provision for the dependants of their staff, and the Lord Mayor of London, in accordance with the feelings of the country, had opened a public subscription.

The Premier expressed on behalf of the Government profound sorrow at the loss of so many valuable lives.

Public Inquiry

Answering questions whether the public inquiry would await the salvaging of the Thetis, the Premier replied that it would be opened as early as possible, but it would be quite impossible to bring it to a satisfactory conclusion until the submarine was salvaged, and conditions inside of it ascertained.

He added that exceptionally strong spring tides made diving operations impossible, except in slackwater. Divers taking part in the rescue operations had the greatest difficulty in working.—Reuter.

Europe's Sympathy

LONDON, June 5.—Messages of condolence on the loss of the Thetis have been received from Signor Mussolini, the King of Italy, and the King of the Belgians.—Reuter.

Public Inquiry

LONDON, June 5.

IT IS understood that the form of inquiry now under the consideration of the Government to investigate the loss of the Thetis will be on the same lines as the inquiry into the R101 disaster, which was conducted by a distinguished lawyer, assisted by technical assessors.

A formal decision will be taken by the Cabinet on June 7.

In the meantime, it is stated that donations to the Lord Mayor's Fund for the relatives of the lost crew have been promised by Their Majesties the King and Queen, Queen Mary, the Duke of Gloucester, the Duke of Kent, the Duke of Connaught, Princess Royal and Lord Harewood.

Wires are already arriving at the Mansion House from the heads of civil authorities, who are opening funds to support the Lord Mayor's appeal.—Reuter.

JAPANESE AIR RAIDS

Planes Strike At Kiangsi Hinterland

SHANGHAI, June 5.

JAPANESE bombing activities were extended to eastern Kiangsi last Saturday afternoon, when three enemy bombers visited Shanghai and dropped a number of missiles at Fenglintu crossing, demolishing many houses.

Earlier in the day, the Japanese planes attacked Kweichow, 45 miles west of Shanghai on the Chekiang-Kiangsi railway, outside the north gate. Several lengths of rails were torn.—Central News.

Shanghai Bombed

SHANGHAI, June 5.—A lone Japanese plane visited the town of Szechuan in north Shansi yesterday and dropped three bombs. A checkup after the departure of the raider showed that little damage was done.—Central News.

Ningpo Bombed

Ningpo, June 5.—Two civilians were wounded and a score of houses levelled to the ground last Saturday morning when five Japanese planes made a fresh air attack on Ningpo, dumping twenty-one bombs.—Central News.

Progress Of War

LONDON, June 5.—Giving an account of the recent happenings in China during question-time in the House of Commons to-day, Mr. R. A. Butler said that some fighting had been proceeding in Central China in the Han River area, but the general line held by both sides remains the same.

The general situation in the International Settlement in Shanghai remains substantially unchanged.

There had been no reduction in the number of landing parties at Kiangsu. Negotiations for a settlement there continue, and British and American marines are still on the island.

Regarding the British officers held by the Japanese, Mr. Butler said that he understood the Chinese secretary to the Embassy and the British military liaison officer were returning to Peking and were expected there yesterday with the latest news.

The whole matter has been taken up with the Japanese military authorities and the Government.—Reuter.

Kian Air Raid

Kian, June 6. Japanese aircraft staged two air raids over Kian, about 125 miles southwest of Nanchang, yesterday.

Five machines participated in the first raid, dropping four missiles in the outskirts. In the second raid, six planes dumped over 30 explosives in the heart of the town, wounding more than 10 civilians and wrecking a number of houses.

A village near Taiho, south of Kian, was also bombed by the raiders.—Central News.

Shanghai Raided

Shanghai, June 6. Well-known wine producing town on the south bank of Hangchow Bay in north Chekiang, was raided by five Japanese bombers yesterday. Altogether 14 bombs were dropped in the city, wounding one civilian and levelling more than 30 houses.—Central News.

Chinese Olympic Player Killed

CHUNGKING, June 5.—Paul Fu, the well known Manchurian pole vaulter who represented China at the Olympic Games in Berlin in 1936, is reported to have been killed in an air battle over Kweichow, the capital of the province of Kwangsi.

Paul Fu joined the Chinese air force as a pilot shortly after the outbreak of the hostilities.—Trans-Ocean.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—"Boss" Tom Pronger, the Kansas City politician who is now serving a sentence for income tax evasion, has had a "rather serious heart attack" since he entered Leavenworth Penitentiary. His condition is considered serious.—United Press.

"You rang, Sir?"

"How did I get on this ship?"

"This isn't a ship, Sir. This is the Hotel Magnificent."

"H'm. I see. Can't you do anything to stop it rolling?"

"Rolling, Sir? Oh—yes, of course. I'll speak to the manager, Sir. We'll have it stopped at once."

"Don't go away. Do you happen to know precisely what I'm doing in the Hotel Magnificent? My memory isn't too good. Must have had a nasty jar!"

"You had several jars, Sir, if I may say so. You arrived with three other gentlemen. I succeeded in undressing you, Sir—but you insisted on retaining your silk hat. I understood it was a very valuable one, Sir. Belonged to your great-grandfather."

"H'm. Yes. I see. Er—have you got anything—er—that is to say—"

"A nice, long, cool, Rose's Lime Juice, Sir. Ice of course. Taken before, it is a valuable neutralising agent. Taken after, an excellent corrective. It is not too much to say, Sir, that in Rose's we have a new therapeutic agent to combat a condition which, alas, is—"

"Drinks follow—not words! Begone! Speed, hence—returning with your life-restoring draught of Rose's."

HONGKONG LAWYER WINS CLAIM AGAINST CLIENT

Sequel To Complicated Case

MR. F. E. NASH, solicitor, appeared as plaintiff in a Summary Court action before Mr. Justice R. E. Lindsell this morning, when he brought a claim for $947 against his former client, Chiu Sze-ming, of 5 Prospect Lane. The claim was made up of $897 for professional services rendered and $50 for money lent.

Appearing for Mr. Nash, Mr. M. W. Lo said that the professional services which his client rendered were in connection with a very complicated case which defendant brought against his mother and which involved property valued at more than two lakhs. After proceedings in respect of this action had been instituted, defendant engaged another solicitor, Mr. Peter H. Sin, and came to a settlement with his mother.

According to the statement of defence, continued Mr. Lo, defendant alleged that Mr. Nash had agreed to accept a fixed sum of $1,000 for his services. Mr. Nash would say there was definitely nothing of the sort, and in any event it was impossible for him to do so as the action which defendant brought against his mother involved a big sum and might have gone on for months.

Mr. Nash In Box

Mr. Nash gave evidence to this effect, and added that in the course of the case defendant changed solicitor and instructed Mr. Sin, who subsequently wrote him asking for the papers and his bill of cost. These were duly forwarded with a request for payment, and later defendant told him that he would pay after the bill had been taxed.

"The bill," went on Mr. Nash, "was taxed on March 21 and I was allowed $1,297. I wrote to Mr. Sin about this on the same day, at the same time demanding payment of $897, defendant having already paid $400 on account. Defendant did not see me about this but sent a representative to my office once or twice to ask me to cut down the bill. Eventually, defendant saw me at Mr. Lo's office and offered me $400 in settlement. I refused and defendant then said that he would instruct Mr. Remedios to apply for instalments."

Cross-examined by Mr. J. M. D'Almeida Remedios, for the defendant, Mr. Nash agreed that it was Mr. Lo who introduced defendant to him.

Mr. Remedios: As a matter of fact Mr. Lo was acting for him before?—

Yes.

Did you not demand payment of $500 on account after he had signed the retainer?—No, because I under-ed to pay $500 on account. He was unable to pay and said so to Mr. Nash, who then told him: "I will get somebody to make you a loan."

Mr. Nash eventually introduced him to one Wong Cheuk-man who lent him $1,500 on an equitable charge against the property which he expected to receive out of the case against his mother. Out of that loan, he actually received $1,050 and of this amount, he paid Mr. Nash $400 on account.

When the statement of claim was about to be filed, Mr. Nash asked him to pay a further sum on account. He refused and it was then agreed that Mr. Nash was to receive a fixed sum of $1,000 as costs up to the stage the case was to be heard, including the fees for retaining Counsel and their opinion.

Mr. Lo: If you had agreed to pay $1,000 to Mr. Nash, why did you go to Mr. Sin, especially when the case was about to be settled?—Because when the statement of claim was to be filed, Mr. Nash asked me to pay a further sum on account. I was unable to do so and he then asked me to mortgage another house. I refused and so went to Mr. Sin, who is a friend of mine.

Further questioned, defendant admitted having borrowed $50 from Mr. Nash.

Judgment For Plaintiff

His Lordship: I have no hesitation whatever in accepting Mr. Nash's version of the agreement between him and defendant, and I therefore give judgment for plaintiff with costs.

Mr. Remedios applied for stay of execution for one week, but this was opposed by Mr. Lo, who pointed out that as a result of the settlement which he reached with his mother, defendant was now receiving $200 a month. It was also very likely that he had also received part of the property. Further, it was largely due to Mr. Nash's efforts that the settlement was arrived at, but in spite of that defendant had done his best to avoid payment.

Mr. Remedios pointed out that his client had only just returned from Shanghai and only wanted time to get the money from his mother.

His Lordship: He might take the opportunity of going back to Shanghai.

Mr. Remedios: He has just come back from Shanghai and there is no likelihood of him going there again.

His Lordship refused to grant a stay of execution, saying that he disapproved of defendant's conduct throughout the proceedings.

NO DRIVING LICENCE: EUROPEAN FINED

A. B. Moir, of "Cornhill" Quarry Bay, was fined $5 by Mr. R. A. D. Forrest at the Central Magistracy this morning, when summoned for driving a private car without a licence at King's Road on May 8. He pleaded guilty.

Acting Sub-Inspector F. Clarke said that Moir previously held a Hongkong licence, and prior to going on leave last year, had taken out an International driving licence, which had expired on April 28 this year. The fact that defendant did not have a licence to drive was discovered as the result of an accident in which the defendant was involved on May 8.

Miss Daisy Kong, of Lockhart Road, was fined $5 for leaving her car unattended in Chater Road near the Post Office on May 12.

Mr. M. A. da Silva represented Miss Kong and pleaded guilty. He stated in extenuation that Miss Kong was in a hurry to get to the General Post Office that day as she had an urgent letter to send off. Finding no available parking space in Pedder Street or Chater Road, she left her car in Chater road as she thought she would not be long in the Post Office. She was, however, held up for some time owing to the number of people buying stamps.

Fred Snite On Way Back Home

BORDEAUX, June 5. FREDERICK Snite, the "iron-lung" boy who was stricken with paralysis in China three years ago, has arrived at Bordeaux to embark for Miami, after a tour of Europe that has taken in the sights, via a tiny mirror above his head, of Lourdes and Paris.

Snite has been encased in his iron lung since he contracted the dread disease. He cannot leave his artificial breathing apparatus.

Special trucks and trains are necessary to transport the youth, son of a Florida multi-millionaire, from one city to another.

In Lourdes he visited the famous Grotto, and is said to have derived great comfort as a result of his religious pilgrimage to the world-renowned shrine.

From his little mirror he saw, for the first time, the Notre Dame Cathedral in Paris.

To-morrow he goes aboard a ship again to return to his home in Miami. —United Press.

Old-Time Cheating Trick Played

A familiar trick was practised by a woman and a youth on another woman at West Point yesterday, according to a report made by Tong Han, 36, married woman.

She said she was in Queen's Road West when a youth of about 16, accompanied by a woman, came up to her. The woman told Tong that a parcel the youth was carrying contained $50 Hongkong banknotes, and asked Tong if she could help them change the money, as they were newcomers to the Colony.

Tong mulled, and handed the woman $180 in money and jewellery as security while she went to a money-changer's. There the parcel was opened, and was found to contain worthless banknotes. Hastening back to where she had left the two tricksters, Tong found them gone.

New Hope For Refugees

HAVANA, June 6. JUST as the Hamburg-America line was announcing this morning that the s.s. St. Louis was returning to Germany because hope had been abandoned of landing the hundreds of Jewish refugees packed aboard the ship, fresh hope came that the people would not have to return to their country from which they had been driven.

The President of Cuba has personally interceded in the case.

He informed the Press this morning that he has instructed the Government to consider waiving the regulations in order to permit the refugees aboard the St. Louis to disembark.

If the Government consents to the President's proposals, the refugees will be allowed to reside in "provisional concentration," possibly on the Isle of Pines. —United Press.

LONDON, June 5.—Questioned in the House of Commons to-day by Sir Alfred Knox as to whether there was any truth in the rumours that the Export Credit Trade Department had advised the Chinese Advisory Committee to deal entirely with an organisation called Trading Facilities, Ltd., and why the interests of British traders in China had been disregarded, Mr. R. S. Hudson, Secretary for Overseas Trade replied that he had looked into the memorandum from Sir Alfred Knox which formed the basis of the question and had found that "Most of the statements were entirely unfounded, and that there was a large number of deliberate misrepresentations."

Gallantry Of Detectives

Council Members To Seek Recognition

ENQUIRIES this afternoon indicate that the condition of Detective C-412, Wan Man who was wounded in the abdomen in the gun duel in the city yesterday, is critical and he is not expected to recover.

Early yesterday, Wan Man was reported by the police to have died from his wound. The report was contradicted after the Final Edition of the "Telegraph" went to Press.

The "Telegraph" understands that the Chinese Members of the Executive and Legislative Councils of Hongkong are contemplating a suitable recognition of the gallantry of the two Chinese detectives in yesterday's battle.

One of the detectives, Tam Tsung, single-handed tackled the gangster, shooting one dead and wounding another in the leg. The wounded man is now in Queen Mary Hospital, under police guard.

Whilst the victim of the hold-up insists that several gangsters attacked him, a man in custody claims that only the dead man and he were involved in the incident.

Four pedestrians were wounded in the exchange of revolver shots between detective and gangsters. They were:

Lo Lee, 32, wound in arm;
Kwan Sum, 27, wound in left hip;
Ho Hung-sai, wound in left leg, and Tam Yung, 18, wound in left leg.
The latter has not been detained in hospital.

"At Yangkiabo in Shansi, he sent his Chinese followers to Peiping to establish contact with the British Embassy. Lieutenant Cooper, of the British Embassy at Peiping, proceeded to meet Lt.-Col. Spear without making sufficient arrangements with the Japanese authorities.

"The two British officials are then alleged to have tried to avoid detection by Japanese and hid themselves at various places.

"Serious View"

"Local Japanese military authorities are understood to be taking a serious view of the matter and still continuing careful inquiry.

"The Japanese are of the opinion that the foreigners entered the Japanese military zone from the hostile area arbitrarily and gathered various information, which they communicated to the Kuomintang and Communist armies.

"The British officials concealed themselves at Shuangshoutun for three days, allegedly with a view to avoid observation by Japanese troops. "The Japanese authorities remind that notice has been given to the effect that foreigners wishing to travel in the war zone should seek the understanding of the Japanese military authorities beforehand.—Domet.

Young American's Tour of Interior

Former President's Grandson in H.K.

IN THE LAND of the Nashis, a tribe on the eastern border of Tibet, Mr. Quentin Roosevelt, young American adventurer, recently parted with a number of raincoats, sun helmets, spectacles, and other western articles and, in exchange, brought back to civilisation interesting documents such as many throw light upon the religious and social habits of tribes which existed 1,000 years ago.

Mr. Roosevelt arrived in Hongkong at the week-end after two productive months in the interior. His journey, which was sponsored by American museum interests, began when he left Hongkong recently for Chungking. A special military plane took him to Chendu and Lanchow.

In this district his collections began and, for an outlay of about $40 local currency, he acquired three furs—the rare snow leopard—a white leopard with black spots. A caravan from the west arrived opportunely for him and he was able to acquire several Tibetan manuscripts, beautifully illuminated, which, he expects, will repay close study.

By Foot And Horse
Mr. Roosevelt returned through Chungking to Kunning and took the Burma Road about half-way to the border, to a place called Tali. From there he pushed north by foot and horse to Likiang, in Tibet, having a native interpreter and about 12 Chinese boys for company. Here his research met with satisfying results.

Land Of The Diomabas
He was now in the land of the Nashis, a tribe dominated by devil sorcerers known as diomabas. Powerful still, the diomabas, however, are not as feared as they once were and it is possible to acquire some of their sacred property. Mr. Roosevelt bartered his way to possession of a number of scrolls and manuscripts, rarely brought out of China.

"The most valuable," he said, "are two scrolls about 2 inches wide and 40-odd feet long. There are about six in existence; I have two at home and two here and I believe the others are in the possession of Dr. Rock in Indo-China. They are—funeral scrolls, colourfully depicting the road to heaven and the road to hell. "I believe there is a lot to be learned from these scrolls about religion 1,000 years ago. These scrolls were devised then and have not changed much."

Mr. Roosevelt added that he was hospitably received by the Nashis. They remembered his father, who had gone there 10 years before to hunt the giant Panda. Mr. Roosevelt, senior, who was the eldest son of President Theodore Roosevelt of America, was subsequently Governor of the Philippines. Mr. Quentin Roosevelt is returning to America by the Empress of Canada on Friday. He has no immediate new research journey in mind, but he plans to return to the East some day to collect animals.

LONDON, June 5.—Queen Mary has almost completely recovered from her ordeal in the motor car accident, and she hopes to attend the trooping of the colours on Thursday with the Princesses Elizabeth and Margaret Rose.—Reuter.

A Look Through The "Telegraph"

50 YEARS AGO

June 6, 1889.
We would again take the liberty of strongly recommending Governor des Voeux to at once take whatever steps may be legally necessary to summarily abolish the Sanitary Board as at present constituted. This hybrid institution, which was expected to perform so many wonders in improving the sanitary condition of Hongkong, has been in existence for many months, and the sum total of its useful labours in any and every direction practically amounts to nil. But more than this—it has become a discredit to the community. Its meetings from the commencement have been chiefly conspicuous for petty squabbles and petty bickering amongst the members in the deplorable state of affairs has been steadily going from bad to worse. Surely the Governor will consider the proceedings at yesterday's juncture as 'the last straw' and an ample justification for saving the colony from being made the object of further ridicule throughout the world.

25 YEARS AGO

Hester's correspondent at Melbourne states that Mr. Haller, manager of the Federal Dockyard, in a report to the Minister of Defence, says that the building in Australia is largely futile. Those who still regard Lord Haldane's Territorial Army as a sufficient substitute for national service have lost three years ago General Sir Ian Hamilton wrote a book strongly disapproving of the idea of compulsory service in England in the form advocated by Lord Roberts, and his evidence was much quoted by Lord Haldane and pacifists. But since then Sir Ian Hamilton, as Inspector General of Overseas Forces, has had experience of the Australian system of compulsory military training, and now he confesses that his opinions have entirely changed.

The papers give prominence to a letter by Admiral Sir Percy Scott declaring that submarines and aeroplanes have revolutionized naval warfare and that Dreadnoughts are obsolete. He says we require an enormous fleet of submarines, airships and aeroplanes, with a few fast cruisers.

10 YEARS AGO

June 6, 1929.
Now difficulties have arisen in the relations between the Vatican and the Italian Government, giving rise to grave anxiety. The development follows certain statements made by Signor Mussolini on religious issues, which the Vatican apparently views with apprehension, and the possibility is envisaged of a repudiation of the Lateran Treaty.

The facts are revealed in a long letter addressed by His Eminence the Pope to Cardinal Gasparri, the Secretary of State for the Vatican.

H.M. the King received Mr. Ramsey MacDonald in his bedroom this morning, when Mr. MacDonald accepted office as Prime Minister and First Lord of the Treasury and undertook the task of forming a Government.

Mr. S. de Caux, second officer King's, has gone second officer King's. Mr. E. Hardman, second officer, Luchow, is on reserve. Mr. W. M. Christie, from reserve, has gone second officer, Luchow.

Mr. A. H. Finnie, from reserve, has gone chief officer, King's. Mr. T. P. Beatty, extra chief officer, Hahn Peking, is on home leave. Captain J. Oudney, C.N. Co., is on home leave.

Mr. J. M. McWilliams, from reserve, has gone acting chief officer, Hanyang. Mr. J. J. Thomas, chief officer, Hanyang, is on reserve. Mr. E. L. Elfen, chief officer, King's, is on home leave. Captain N. H. Leitch, of the Tanchow, is on reserve.

5 YEARS AGO

June 6, 1934.
A huge claim for damages is being lodged against the White Star liner Olympic as a sequel to her mishap last month when she rammed and sank the Nantucket lightship in a dense fog.

Near Disaster On Flight To South Africa TRANS-INDIAN PLANE, SIX HOURS LOST, WAS MILES FROM COURSE

DID NOT REPORT ARRIVAL JAPANESE ARMY OFFICER FINED

HIDEO OHIRA, 40, described as a Japanese army officer, appeared before Mr. R. Edwards at the Central Magistracy this morning on a charge of failing to report his arrival in the Colony on June 2. He was fined $10.

Sub-Inspector Langley said defendant arrived from Macao by the steamer Chuen Chow, and made no attempt to report his arrival. The police had discovered his arrival from the hotel list, and the Chuen Chow passenger list.

"I forgot to register," Ohira, who is stated to be a Lieutenant Colonel in the Japanese Army, told the Court.

Murder Charge Dropped

No Evidence Against Fifteen Men

Fifteen Chinese, including two women, who had previously been charged with the murder of Lat Chau at Apichau, Aberdeen, on May 16, were discharged by Mr. R. A. D. Forrest at the Central Magistracy this morning.

The charge was brought against them as a sequel to a fight between rival factions following a dispute over grass-cutting.

Inspector L. R. Whant said that he had been instructed to offer no evidence against the defendants. He asked that permission be granted for the withdrawal of the charge.

Permission was granted, and the Magistrate discharged all defendants.

"TRIVIAL CHARGE," SAID MAGISTRATE TO POLICE

CHARGED with entering the Colony on June 2 without a valid passport, Mohindu Singh, 45, appeared before Mr. R. Edwards at the Central Magistracy this morning, when the charge was dismissed by the Magistrate, who described the offence as trivial.

Det.-Sergeant P. H. Loughlin, who prosecuted, said defendant originally

Police Inspector Faces Serious Court Charge

JOSEPH HERBERT EDWARD EDWARDS, Sub-Inspector of Police, appeared before Mr. E. Himsforth at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning.

He was charged with demanding money with menaces from Lau Hee-yuk, of the Hip On Club, Gilles Avenue, Hung Hom, on April 23.

Edwards, whose age is given as 37 years, is Officer-in-Charge of the Hung Hom Police Station.

A police interpreter, Un Shui-ki, also appeared on a charge of extorting $110 from Lau Hee-yuk, as a fee, and to him as an interpreter, and, alternatively, with demanding $110 with menaces.

Remand Asked

Mr. J. Wyatt, Crown Counsel, appeared for the prosecution. Edwards was represented by Mr. C. d'Almeida, and Mr. G. S. Ford represented Un Shui-ki.

Un has already made a previous appearance before the Magistrate.

Mr. Wyatt asked for a formal remand.

"The case will be for committal," he said.

Mr. Himsforth granted the application, and fixed hearing of the charge at 11.30 a.m. on Tuesday next week.

Edwards was allowed bail of $100.

came to Hongkong to join the Guards Office in 1927, but later left and became a private watchman.

An application to the Guards Office for a watchman for their installation up river was made by an Oil Company, and defendant was selected and sent away. Defendant left that employment and returned to Hongkong on June 2.

"As he did not have a passport, I was instructed to prosecute him," said Sergeant Loughlin. "They will not be issued with passports even if they produce an Indian birth certificate."

"Extraordinary"

Mr. Edwards: "It seems to me a most extraordinary case. Here is a British subject who has been here for 10 years. He leaves Hongkong, and on his return, finds he cannot enter without a valid passport. The defendant was then discharged by Mr. Edwards, who said: 'In the circumstances, I have no hesitation but to describe the offence as trivial. I will therefore dismiss the charge.'"

LONDON, June 5.—The British Government has today decided to decide regarding the status of Albania, declared Mr. Butler in the House of Commons today.

The international position of Albania is by no means clear, he stated, and the British Minister is still at his post in Durazzo.—Trans-Ocean.

BATAVIA, June 6.
WITH HOPE almost abandoned after being overdue for six hours on the first leg of the experimental flight from Australia to Africa, the flying-boat Guba landed at Batavia to-day just as the authorities were organising an aeroplane search party.

The Guba was recently purchased by the Australian Government for the purpose of making a survey of the Australia-Africa route as an alternative to the existing Imperial Airways route via Singapore.

Both the Commonwealth and British Government subscribed equal proportions of the cost of purchasing the plane and financing the flight.

Captain P. C. Taylor, hero of the trans-Pacific flight with the late Captain Kingsford-Smith in the "Southern Cross", was in charge of the plane when it took off from Port Hedland, Western Australia, at 4.30 a.m. local time.

The first stopping place of the Guba should have been Cocos Island, the mid-ocean cable station famed as the spot where, during the Great War, the German raider Emden met her end at the hands of H.M.A.S. Sydney.

But mid-way between Port Hedland and Cocos Island Taylor radioed a desperate appeal for bearings.

"Worst Case I've Seen"

Inspector's Comment In Traffic Court

"IT IS one of the worst cases of dangerous driving I have seen for many years," said Traffic Inspector S. C. Saunders at the Central Magistracy this morning, when Tse Po-woon, driver of car No. 496, was fined $50 by Mr. R. Edwards for the offence.

Inspector Saunders said he saw car No. 496 doing 30 m.p.h. along Arbuthnot Road about 8.20 yesterday morning. He followed the car, which was going at dangerous speed all the way, along Lyndhurst Terrace, Wellington Street, and on to the Star Ferry, where defendant was stopped.

"It seems to be a case of a young man without any idea of speed," said Inspector Saunders. "He was doing 20 m.p.h. along Lyndhurst Terrace, which was more dangerous than 30 m.p.h. along Arbuthnot Road."

Defendant had a licence for about six weeks, and has a clear record. The said his master was ill, and was in a hurry to get a doctor.

ENGLISH FORUM CAMP

Enjoyable Week-End-Outing At Tsun Wan

The fourth annual camp of the Hongkong English Forum was held at the Y.W.C.A. House, Tsun Wan, during the week-end, and proved the most successful yet, although a few of the members had to sleep on the ping-pong table and the floor owing to the record attendance of 28.

The camp cooks were sent on ahead to Tsun Wan while the rest of the party arrived about 5 p.m. on Saturday. After dinner, everyone went down to the beach where a huge camp-fire was lit, and enjoyed songs and music supplied by the Forum's talented trio, Miss Sadie Yuen, Tommy Young, and Johnnie Lee.

The highlight of the evening was the reading of the camp's paper "The Watchman," a paper written every year for the camp, recording the doings and events of the Forum and its members. This proved to be as good as expected, and provided much laughter and amusement to the members and guests.

Swimming, hiking, softball and community singing were indulged in the next day, and the happy though tired party returned to Hongkong by the Tsun Wan ferry on Sunday afternoon.

Arrangements were in the hands of Mr. C. W. Miao, President, Mr. Nelson Ma acted as Master of Ceremonies, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Kub acted as chaperones.

Cloudy weather prevented the navigator from shooting a solar observation and the radio signals from both Cocos and Bromme, in W.A., were too faint.

As the fuel sank lower and lower, the crew of six in the flying-boat decided to entirely change their course and race for Batavia, in the Dutch East Indies.

Hours then passed without any further message from the lost plane. In Canberra, the Prime Minister, Mr. Menzies, radioed the British representative in Batavia, asking him to request the Netherlands authorities to organise an immediate search.

As Dutch planes were about to set off, the Guba appeared over Batavia, flying very low.

She landed gracefully. In the petrol tanks was sufficient fuel for only an hour or so of further flying.—United Press.

The Guba, a Douglas monoplane, was used by the Archbold expedition to explore the hinterland of British New Guinea. It flew from San Francisco to New Guinea along the Pan-American Airways Pacific route to Midway Island, and thence to Rabaul. It was purchased by the Commonwealth Government for the present flight.

London, June 5.
Mr. R. A. Butler announced in the House of Commons to-day that the Brazilian Government had informed the British Ambassador in Rio de Janeiro that they were considering a method of the resumption of debt payments, and hoped to make some announcement before July 1.

The Brazilian Government had given an assurance that all creditors would receive equal treatment.—Reuter Special.

Brazil To Pay Debts

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa.
A smile cost 35-year-old Sydney Harvard Bustin $100. This was the fine imposed when he was convicted of "Crimen Injuria" because he had stood outside a shop operated by a young woman for two hours, staring and smiling at her. He was also alleged to have said "Hello" to her several times, thus insulting her.

Smiles Cost $100

LONDON, June 5.
SIR JOHN SIMON, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, made a further statement in the House of Commons to-day on Czech gold assets held by the Bank of England.

He said he had consulted law officers who advised that the British Government was precluded from taking any steps to prevent the Bank of England obeying instructions given to it by its customer, the Bank for International Settlements, to transfer gold as directed.

It would be a breach of treaty obligations to withhold Treasury consent.

BRITAIN CANNOT HOLD CZECH GOLD ASSETS

SIR JOHN SIMON added that there was no validity in the suggestions made in a recent debate that the Bank of England would be entitled to refuse to obey instructions given by the Bank for International Settlements, and there was no means whereby the Treasury could obtain a ruling of the courts as to whether they had the power to prevent the Bank of England making a transfer when ordered to do so.—Reuter.

The Vauxhall Ten is the most economical "Ten" in the world. On a recent I.A.C. official trial, over 1,000 miles of public roads, the "Ten" saloon did 43.4 m.p.g. Reliability is unquestioned. A Vauxhall 10, standard in every way, covered 2,275 miles across Europe in the Monte Carlo Rally. Through snow, floods, ice-bound roads and over Alpine passes it did not lose a mark.

Every part of the Vauxhall Ten is modern but proved. It has Independent Springing, Hydraulic Brakes, No-Draught Ventilation and all-steel Integral Body and Chassis.

The Round Table

IF THE new appeal to the Democracies by His Holiness the Pope is based upon fears that an alliance between Great Britain, France and Soviet Russia may pave the way to the bolshevisation of Europe, it should meet with scant sympathy.

That contingency, we believe, is remote. Russia desires no more to-day than to be left alone in peace. She does not want war, and she is in no position to attempt to spread her ideology to other lands.

Rather should His Holiness the Pope oppose the real menace that is threatening Europe. So long as Hitler rules Germany, the peace of the world will be menaced, and no reliance can be placed on any pledge he may give.

Everyone would welcome the conference of nations proposed by His Holiness, but suggestions of negotiations on "outstanding grievances" need to be watched by the Democracies with care, even with suspicion. For such phrases appear to imply that past aggressions have arisen from just grievances, and that they should not be re-opened.

An international conference which does not place the destruction of Czechoslovakia and Albania at the head of its agenda of problems for discussion would simply be condoning, instead of attempting to redress, injustices.

The real move towards future peace came from President Roosevelt. It was spurned by Germany and Italy. That is the reply Hitler and Mussolini have given—and would have given even if the appeal from President Roosevelt had been from Pope Pius himself.

Hitler's Reichstag speech is not so odd that it should be forgotten in any future plans for conferences. Only two nations in the world to-day refuse to give an assurance that they will not commit aggression in the future. Can our statesmen be trusted to sit around a table with the dictators, especially when we remember what has happened at previous conferences of this nature—at Godesberg and Munich, for instance? The Democracies have gained nothing and lost much at the round-table.

All this talk of injustice to Germany at Versailles should be viewed in the light of history—as published elsewhere on this page. Hitler himself admits in "Mein Kampf" that if Germany, and not the Allies, had won the Great War, there would be only one nation in Europe to-day—Germany. He seeks—as his speech to German Ex-Servicemen yesterday indicated—to rectify that mistake. If there is a war—and Germany wins, there will be less mercy for the Democracies than they showed the Germans at Versailles.

WHO WON THE WAR?

Hitler's Baseless Charge About The 14 Points

THOSE who nurse their grievances feed upon them till they become a habit of the soul. That would seem to be the case with the Fuehrer and the Peace Treaties.

He has persuaded himself that Germany was foully tricked when she sought—the initiative came entirely from her—an Armistice on the basis of President Wilson's Fourteen Points.

He studiously avoids all reference to the Notes which passed between the German Government and the U.S.A. before the Germans realised that nothing was to be gained by manoeuvring and that it only remained to take what was offered. Herr Hitler ignores whatever is inconvenient to his case.

Here is his specific charge as preferred by the carefully prepared speech at the rally of German ex-Servicemen yesterday:

WAR GUILT

"Germany never had any war aims, but the Treaty of Versailles revealed that all the others then had war aims. The robbery of our colonies, the annihilation of our fleet and the destruction of our trade in the world—these were the British aims in those days, and they haven't changed."

"Germany's 'War Guilt' was that she frivolously neglected her armaments before the war. If the armistice policy proves the same as before the war, there is one difference to-day as far as Germany is concerned, namely that Germany's policy of defence has fundamentally changed."

ADMISSION OF DEFEAT

That is what Herr Hitler has persuaded himself. That is what Nazi Germany has been taught by years of intensive propaganda to believe. That is what some foolish people in England and Hongkong are inclined to accept for no better reason than that they have heard it said so often. Yet it is demonstrably untrue.

Who would suppose from the Fuehrer's words that Mr. Lansing, President Wilson's Secretary of State, had been at particular pains to make it absolutely clear to the Germans that their pressing request for an Armistice was only acceptable at all on the basis of admitted defeat?

"The only Armistice he (President Wilson) would feel justified in submitting to the Allies," Lansing wrote on Oct. 23, "is one which would leave them in a position to enforce any arrangement that may be entered into and make a renewal of hostilities impossible."

The Germans had begun by suggesting "a mixed Commission" which should arrange for the evacuation of the occupied territories from which their own armies were withdrawing, plundering and destroying as they went, and they had proposed that their military advisers should meet those of the Allies in order to "maintain the actual standard of power on both sides." They were politely but firmly reminded of where they really stood.

Between their first Note of Oct. 4, signed by Prince Max of Baden, and their last of Oct. 27, in which they said, "The German Government now awaits proposals for an Armistice which shall be a first step to a just peace as the President has described it in his Proclamations," they had changed their form of Government to what Herr Hitler would now call "a vile democracy." Lansing had bluntly warned them that the U.S.A. desired no dealings with "the military masters and the monarchical autocrats of Germany."

AVERTING WAR'S RENEWAL

The Germans, therefore, could be under no illusions about the general character of the Armistice which would be presented for their acceptance. They were neither tricked nor duped. They knew it would be such as would make it "impossible" for them to renew the war. They accepted because they must.

The President's Fourteen Points are too long to be quoted in extenso, but they may fairly be epitomised as follows:

1. Open covenants and no secret diplomacy in the future.
2. Absolute freedom of navigation in peace and war outside territorial waters, except where seas are closed by international action.
3. Removal as far as possible of all economic barriers.
4. Adequate guarantees for the reduction of national armaments.
5. A free, open-minded and absolutely impartial adjustment of all colonial claims, equal weight being given to the interests of the peoples concerned.
6. All Russian territory to be evacuated.
7. Complete restoration of Belgium.
8. All French territory to be restored and the wrongs of 1871 righted.
9. Readjustment of Italian frontiers on lines of nationality.
10. Peoples of Austria-Hungary to have the chance of autonomous development.
11. Rumania, Serbia and Montenegro to be evacuated; Serbia to have access to the sea and Balkan relationships to be settled on a historically established basis of allegiance and nationality.
12. Autonomous development for all non-Turkish nationalities, and the Dardanelles to be permanently free to all ships.

13. Poland to be an independent State with access to the sea.
14. "A general association of nations to be established so as to afford national guarantees of political independence and territorial integrity to great and small States alike."

PRINCIPLES FOR PEACE

The Fourteen Points as epitomised above were not the only formal presentation of President Wilson's principles for the basis of a just and durable peace. Six months later, on July 4, at Mount Vernon he had crystallised them into Four Principles. They were:

- (1) The destruction of every arbitrary Power anywhere that can separately, secretly and of its single choice disturb the peace of the world.
- (2) Every question, whether of territory, sovereignty, economic or political arrangement, must be settled on the basis of their free acceptance by the peoples immediately concerned.
- (3) All nations to act on the same principle of honour and respect for the common law of civilised society, so that all promises and commitments may be sacredly observed, no selfish injuries may be wrought with impunity, and national trust may be established on the honest foundation of a national respect for rights.
- (4) The establishment of an Organisation of Peace (i.e., a League of Nations).

"What we seek," said the President, "is the reign of law based on the consent of the governed and sustained by the organised opinion of mankind."

These Four Principles and the Five Particulars he enunciated in September are anathema to Hitler, for they clash with Nazism in every detail. But they succinctly epitomise the clearest principles on which the Germans sued for an armistice leading to a Peace. They were specifically referred to by the Allies in their memorandum to President Wilson on Nov. 5, 1918, when they said:

"The Allied Governments, subject to the qualifications which follow, declare their willingness to make peace with the Government of Germany on the terms of peace laid down in the President's address to Congress in January, 1918, and the principles of settlement enunciated in his subsequent addresses."

The qualifications referred to concerned the Freedom of the Seas, on which the Allied Governments reserved complete freedom of action, and the interpretation of the phrase about the "restoration" of invaded regions. Mr. Wilson disliked both these qualifications, but his objections were finally dropped.

But there was no bad faith as regards either one or the other on the part of the British or French Governments, and the Germans were neither tricked nor duped because on the two points mentioned the Allies and the U.S.A. had taken divergent views. President Wilson never envisaged plenipotentiary powers by the Allies to prescribe the basis either of the Armistice or of the Peace.

It has never been explained why the Supreme War Council did not include Point 5 among those to which they required "qualifications." The wording is extravagantly idealistic. What Conference could conceivably be "free, open-minded and absolutely impartial" when Colonies were being distributed? Did the President envisage the presence of Germans at such a Conference? Certainly the Allies did not.

NO RETURN OF COLONIES
I can only suppose that the Supreme War Council on Nov. 5 agreed to let the explosive Point 5 pass unchallenged, knowing that the Colonial issue would cause infinite trouble when it had to be faced seriously.

As indeed it did. Only after he had threatened to quit the Conference and go home did the President, who had wanted the German Colonies placed under international control, agree to the mandate compromise. But no single voice had been raised in favour of their return to Germany, for reasons which seemed conclusive to all—if Peace was to be secure in Africa.

Those who speak of the vindictiveness displayed in the Peace Treaties ignore the long agony through which the world had passed. It was a human impossibility for the victors so soon to forgive and forget. Mr. H. A. L. Fisher, one of the foremost of historians, has written: "For more generous, open and elastic proceeding, no Allied statesman in the tense and passionate Parisian atmosphere was prepared." At any manifestation of a tendency to show more generous spirit there came sharp reminders from some to harden their hearts and exact a just retribution.

Apparently the worst crime of the Peace Treaties in the eyes of Herr Hitler, judging by the emphasis which he lays upon it, was the inclusion of 1,500,000 Germans under alien rule, contrary to the Wilsonian maxim of self-determination. Historians, on the other hand, draw attention to the fact that the Treaties only left 3 per cent of the peoples of the Continent under foreign domination.

SAFEGUARDING MINORITIES
Some bad blunders, certainly, were committed, notably the inclusion of

Smoke it certainly is that dark, floating, ragged smudge and, unhappily, the nearer and the denser.

A liner—or worse? The crows upon the junk can make no preparations even for the worst, even against their fears.

Useless to flee, they stand their ground. All work is suspended, all eyes straining under guarding hand into the blinding light.

NOBODY aboard the junk heard the shot. Its report was lost amid the crashing of the mighty mast, dragging the massive craft on to her scarred though well-built side.

Without a cry, four frightened people are flung, struggling and choking, into the water, thrown well away from the half-sunk boat.

Ah Hoi, her husband and sons are fair swimmers. She, breathless and bleeding, achieves the shelter of the nearest unharmed junk, hides clinging to the jolting, swaying stern.

Men and lads reach the wreckage of their majestically heaving, all-but-sunken craft, and climb painfully upon her sloping, slimy side. A second shot has meantime pierced the golden sail of a nearby junk; other shots go wide.

A smoke-grey pinnace nears, manned by eight grotesque-features and slovenly-dressed, invaders.

Unintelligible shouts are barked at the shivering, terrified mortals slithering upon the fallen wreck of their prized and cherished property.

Receiving no obedience to their incomprehensible and doubtless impossible orders, two under-sized sailors leapt, with astonishing agility considering the malformation of their bow-legged frames, upon the drifting junk; prodded with vicious, gleaming bayonet the shivering, trembling trio before them into the waiting pinnace.

The whole crew now hack at all available portions of the murdered craft; about incomprehensible orders to the apprehensive seafarman upon the remaining junk. The pinnace PLEASE Turn To Page 19.

CHINESE R.C. TOO STEADY FOR THE INDIAN R.C.

OTHER TWO PAIRS FAIL IN TENNIS LEAGUE TIE

(By "Abe")

Though the Rumjahn cousins, S. A. and H. D., won all three sets, the other two pairs of the Indian R.C. were not nearly good enough when they played the Chinese R.C. at Sookunpoo yesterday in the "A" Division of the Hongkong Tennis League, and they were defeated by 5½ sets to 3½.

In view of the splendid form shown by the cousins, who did little wrong in their three sets, it was a pity that the other two combinations were so deplorably weak. True, I.M.A. Razack and A. H. Madar, shared a set with Lee Yee-wing and Ho Kiu-lau, the doubles finalists at the Hongkong C.C. championship this year; but they should have won as they led 5-3 and in the next two games were leading by 30-love. They missed their chances and in the end had to fight hard to get even half a set.

Had Razack and Madar won this set, the match would have been considerably closer. As it was, the first round saw the scores: 1½ sets each, and then at the end of the second the Chinese were up 3½-2½, making it imperative for the Indians not to drop a single set in the last round if they were to win. This was an impossible task against the Chinese, whose three pairs were far too well-balanced to be in danger of defeat. The strength of the C.R.C. this year can be gauged by the fact that even with Tsui Yun-pui unable to play, they could field three such good pairs. And a splendid player like Lu Tui-cheuk, who would normally get into any "A" Division team in the Colony, had to take the role of spectator!

IN WINNING MOOD

The Rumjahn cousins were in a winning mood yesterday, smashing driving and volleying with power and precision. After beating Tsui Wai-pui and Lee Wai-long by 6-1, they were in irresistible form against Ho Kiu-lau and Lee Yee-wing, who failed to take a single game. It was suggested by a colleague of mine that the cousins, remembering how badly beaten they were by Ho and Lee in the Colony championships, were settling old scores. I hardly think so, but it did seem that the Rumjahns were not taking any chances.

Omar Rumjahn and A. R. Minu, partnering for the first time in a League match, did not combine too well together. With W. A. H. Duff and L. Goldman taking three sets, the Hongkong C.C. defeated the Club de Recreio by 6½ sets to 2½. The Kowloon C.C. only just defeated the University, the issue being decided in the last set of the day.

INDIAN R.C. v. C.R.C.

O. Rumjahn and A. R. Minu lost to K. L. Ho and V. Lee 2-6; lost to W. P. Tsui and W. T. Lee 4-6; lost to W. C. Hung and P. Kong 4-6. H. D. Rumjahn and S. A. Rumjahn beat Ho and Lee 6-0; beat Tsui and Lee 6-1; M. A. Razack and A. H. Madar drew with Ho and Lee 6-6; lost to Tsui and Lee 3-6; lost to Hung and Kong 4-6.

H.K.C.C. v. C. de R.

Hongkong Cricket Club beat the Club de Recreio 6½-2½. W. A. H. Duff and L. Goldman beat J. Gonsalves and A. V. Remedios 6-0; beat A. V. Gossano and J. J. Remedios 6-1; beat H. A. Barros and C. Barretto 6-4.

T. A. Pearce and W. Sander lost to Gonsalves and Remedios 3-6; beat Gossano and Remedios 7-5; beat Barros and Barretto 6-4. H. J. Armstrong and S. M. Garrard lost to Gonsalves and Remedios 3-6; beat Gossano and Remedios 6-1; drew with Barros and Barretto 6-6.

K.C.C. v. University

A. Cox's Path, the Kowloon Cricket Club, just managed to beat the University, A. E. P. Guest and A. Crawford deciding the match on the last set. Kowloon won by 5-4. E. C. Fincher and G. C. Burnett beat Stephen Wong and Lim Thiam-tet 6-3; beat Ma Chiu-chong and Peter U 6-3; drew with S. H. Ling and P. H. Ong 6-6. S. A. Gray and D. J. N. Anderson lost to Wong and Lim 4-6; lost to Ma and Peter U 2-6; lost to Ling and Ong 5-7. A. E. P. Guest and A. Crawford beat Wong and Lim 7-5; drew with Ma and Peter U 6-6; beat Ling and Ong 6-1.

Two County Matches Completed

Two matches in the County Cricket Championship were completed to-day. Glamorgan defeating Notts by ten wickets and Lancashire beating Derbyshire by an innings and 105 runs.

Thanks to E. Davies (134) and Brerley (113), Glamorgan declared their first innings at 501 for eight, to which Notts replied with 216. J. C. Clay taking five wickets for 77 runs. In the follow-on, Notts scored 290. Requiring only six runs to win, Glamorgan made eight without loss.

PAYNTER SHINES

An innings of 222 by Eddie Paynter, the Test batsman, enabled Lancashire to total 493 against Derbyshire in their first knock. Derby scored 202 and 170 (Phillips 5 for 38 and Nuttall 4 for 28), thus losing by an innings and 105 runs.—Reuter.

Six Players Are Added To Baseball's Hall Of Fame

CHICAGO, May 3.

Baseball's Hall of Fame ledger, inscribed with the names of 23 diamond heroes, was closed to-day until the nation pays formal tribute June 12 to the 100th birthday of the national pastime.

The names of six stars of the era prior to 1900 were added yesterday to the Hall of Fame list. Selected by K. M. Landis, commissioner of baseball, President Ford Frick of the National League and President William Harridge of the American circuit, they were: Charles Radbourne, Albert G. Spalding, Adrian C. "Cap" Anson, William Arthur Cummings, William "Buck" Ewing and Charles A. Comiskey.

WRITERS NAMED 12

Baseball writers of the nation have elected 12 players to Hall of Fame membership. Landis, Frick and Harridge, acting as a special committee, previously named five men who contributed to the game's development. No other selections will be made until after the formal centennial observance June 12 at Cooperstown, N. Y.

Radbourne pitched 517 games in 10 years as a National Leaguer, starting with Providence, R. I. Boston and Cincinnati. He won 60 games for Providence in 1884, 26 in a row. Anson, a professional 27 years, was with the Chicago Nationals 22 years, hitting better than .300 for 20 seasons.

THREW FIRST CURVE

Cummings was famed as the first known pitcher to use the curve ball—while with the Brooklyn Stars in 1867—and Ewing was one of the greatest catchers of the sport. He starred for years with New York's Giants, hitting better than .300 for nine seasons.

Comiskey, "The Old Roman," bought the St. Paul club franchise of the Western League and moved it to Chicago in 1900. A great first baseman, he revolutionized the manner of playing the position, standing 20 or 30 feet from the bag. Before his time, first basemen always kept one foot on base, allowing many balls to go for hits.

Spalding, a great amateur pitcher, starred with Boston and Chicago in the National League. In 1876 he won 47 games and lost only 12 in a 66-game schedule. He retired from baseball in 1891 to devote his time to the sporting goods business which bears his name.

Mrs. Wills Moody Not Defending Her Title

New York, June 5.

Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, eight times Wimbledon champion, announced to-day that she is not defending her singles title this year. She says her game is not up to standard.

She has been busy writing a mystery thriller, thus following in the footsteps of Miss Helen Jacobs who has also turned to writing.—Reuter.

DRAW MADE IN SECOND ROUND OF OPEN BOWLS RINKS COMPETITION

The Competition Sub-Committee of the Hongkong Lawn Bowls Association met yesterday evening to make the draw of the second round of the Open Rinks Competition. There are 16 matches in all in this round, all of which will be played on Sunday, June 11, if the weather permits.

It was also decided that bowls conveners of all League Clubs make their own arrangements to play off their postponed League fixtures especially First and Third Division, on any available dates, such as holidays or Sundays, so as to prevent the League season from extending too far into September.

All players concerned are also requested to do their utmost to play off their outstanding Open Pairs matches this week, on the same greens and days as selected for last week. Green Rangers are asked to make the necessary reservations.

The Sub-Committee have also decided to recommend that the starting time of League matches on Saturday afternoons be at 3.30 p.m. as well as at 4 p.m. This is left to the discretion of the bowls conveners of the home team.

FILIPINO DAVIS CUPPERS TO PARTICIPATE IN SEVEN BIG AMERICAN TOURNAMENTS

Valuable Experience May Be Gained By Meeting World Stars

Amado Sanchez and Felicisimo Ampon who compose the Philippine Davis Cup team will compete in seven big American tennis tournaments before and after their Davis Cup schedule with Australia on July 15, 16 and 17 at Long Beach, California. Permission has been granted the two players to participate in the American tournament by the executive committee of the Philippine Amateur Athletic Federation upon the recommendation of the P. I. Lawn Tennis Association.

Pitta officials pointed out that in permitting the two youthful aces to compete in as many tournaments as they can while in the United States they will gain some much needed tournament experience and will develop their game. Sanchez and Ampon are both young and are expected to rule Philippine tennis for a long time to come. Coming in contact with tournament tennis abroad will do much in developing the game in the islands, it is believed. According to arrangements, the two Philippine Davis Cup players will participate in the United States National net series and in several state and city championships both in San Francisco and in New York. Due to their long schedule they are not expected to return until October.

TRIP RECALLED
The arrangements for Sanchez and Ampon may recall the Davis Cup trip of the Aragon brothers, Francisco and Guillermo in 1926. These two old-timers also competed in several big tennis tournaments in the States after their Davis Cup assignment. They won several matches and Guillermo copped an international title.

Sanchez and Ampon are due in San Francisco on board the President Pierce on or about June 8 in time to compete in the Central California net tournament, scheduled at Sacramento on June 10 and 11. On June 17, the two will play in the sixth annual San Francisco city tennis championship at Golden Gate Park. These first two tournaments are expected to put them in the pink of condition for their Davis Cup meeting with Australia, scheduled at Long Beach, California, on July 15, 16 and 17.

The two aces participated in exhibition matches in Hongkong, Shanghai and Osaka while passing those ports enroute to the States. Although they did not impress fans there they won their matches. Ampon, especially, was acclaimed as a colourful and heady player by the spectators.

PLAYING DATES
The playing dates arranged for the two while in the States as approved by the P.A.A.F. executive committee are as follows:
1. June 10-11—Central California Championships, at Sacramento.
2. June 17-25—Sixth Annual San Francisco City Tennis Championship, at Golden Gate Park.
3. July 15-17—Davis Cup play against Australia at Long Beach grass courts near Los Angeles.
4. August 5—Westchester C. C. (Eastern Tennis Championship), at Rye, New York.
5. August 14—National doubles championship, Longwood Cricket Club, at Chestnut Hill, Mass.
6. September 7—National singles championship, West Side Tennis Club, at Forest Hills.
7. September 22—Pacific South West Tennis Championships, at Los Angeles.
8. September 29—Pacific Coast Tennis Championships, at Berkeley, California.

PUBLIC ENCLOSURE
The price of Admission to the Public Enclosure is $1.00 including Tax, for all persons, including Ladies, and is payable at the Gate. Soldiers and Sailors in Uniform are admitted Half Price.

A Fine Film Coming To The Oriental

"The Adventures of Robin Hood," an elaborate screen production will be presented at the Oriental Theatre on Friday, Saturday, Sunday and Monday. This will be the first time that this production will be shown at popular prices. The huge cast is headed by Errol Flynn, Olivia de Havilland and Basil Rathbone. Rich in lore is the story of how a Saxon noble, Sir Robin of Locksley, the noblest archer in all England, gathered a band of stalwarts around him to harness the cruel Norman knights. How the outlawed Robin Hood plundered the rich and fed the poor has been sung and re-sung in ballads and has come down through the centuries.
This picture has a very well-known supporting cast with Claude Rains, Patric Knowles, Eugene Pallette, Alan Hale, Neville Cooper, Ian Hunter, Una O'Connor and thousands of others.

Intimidated School-Boys Police Allegations Against Coolie

SIX CHARGES of intimidation and six separate charges of theft of money from Chinese school-boys were preferred against Tai Kau, 19, scavenging coolie, when he appeared before Mr. R. A. D. Forrest at the Central Magistracy this morning.

He was accused of having, between May 1 and May 6, intimidated Lau Yun-tin, 13, Lam Yiu-ki, Leung Kam-wing, Lo Tam-chung, 15, Leung Sik-tim, 13 and Chiu Hin-wing, and to have stolen various sums between 30 cents and $3.30 from them.

Acting Inspector H. G. Hollam, in asking for remand, stated that further charges would probably be preferred against the defendant.

Tai was remanded to Friday, and hearing of the case was fixed for 2.30 p.m. on June 15.

"Joy-Riders" Warned Stiffer Penalties In Future

Fining Fa Kwok-tai, a 24-year-old actor, a total of $100 on three traffic summonses, at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning, Mr. E. Himsforth stated that penalties for similar cases in future would be much heavier.

Fa was charged with driving a car which was not in good condition. He pleaded guilty to the first charge, but said that he was on his way to obtain permission, and that he did not know that car was not in good condition.

Traffic Sergeant Scrim stated that at 2 p.m. yesterday, defendant was coming from the New Territories along Customs Pass Road. He swerved and collided with the bank, and a passenger in the car was shaken but not injured. The car had been tested and its brakes were found to be in a bad condition. The car belonged to Cheng Ki, and was used for the transportation of other actors. In fining defendant $5 on the first charge, $75 on the second, and $20 on the third, Mr. Himsforth said that fines for similar cases in future would be much heavier.

WHERE'S MOTHER?

"GOD can't be always everywhere, and so invented Mothers. That said Sir Edwin Arnold, and most of us are fortunate enough to have known at some time that 'Home is Where Mother is.' It's a grand cry, that shout of 'Where's Mother?' There is something important to be told, that she must share at once; her help is needed in some difficulty, small or large. It is also a cry of great faith. She is the one who will not fail, the one who will know just what to do in any emergency. But, alas, it is a cry that carries a warning if it is heard too often, for we must not keep the children in leading-strings over long if they are to be taught the all-important lesson of independence.

Therefore the wise mother will take up the attitude of 'I'm here close at hand, but only here to help you to help yourself.' Often it requires a great deal of courage and self-restraint to take such a stand, but the children will thank us for doing so later on.

I receive many letters on this subject, and I am putting some of the queries and replies before you today, as the problem is I am sure, full of interest to all parents.

All Join In

My baby girl has recently begun to scream whenever I leave her alone for a few minutes, and it is difficult to quieten her.—Heartbroken.

By worrying yourself over this problem, you are not facing it in the right spirit, for you will have to steel yourself to the fact that Baby cannot always have you beside her.

By feeling jealous when your mother or sister offered to nurse her, you have been binding the child to yourself in a selfish manner; now you are both suffering.

Give way in this matter; let her become accustomed to others and let her father take her out sometimes when you are busy, as he suggests. Even if there are tears at first do not heed them; just disappear for the time being and baby will soon settle down to her new friends.

Only Child

Whenever I invite a little friend to play with Bobby he just runs across the room, buries his face in my lap and refuses to go away. If I insist he cries bitterly.—Peckham.

BEGIN now to take Bobby over to see his cousins and leave him there with your sister for an afternoon, explaining the position to her. Do not wait until he has made the matter to your sister.

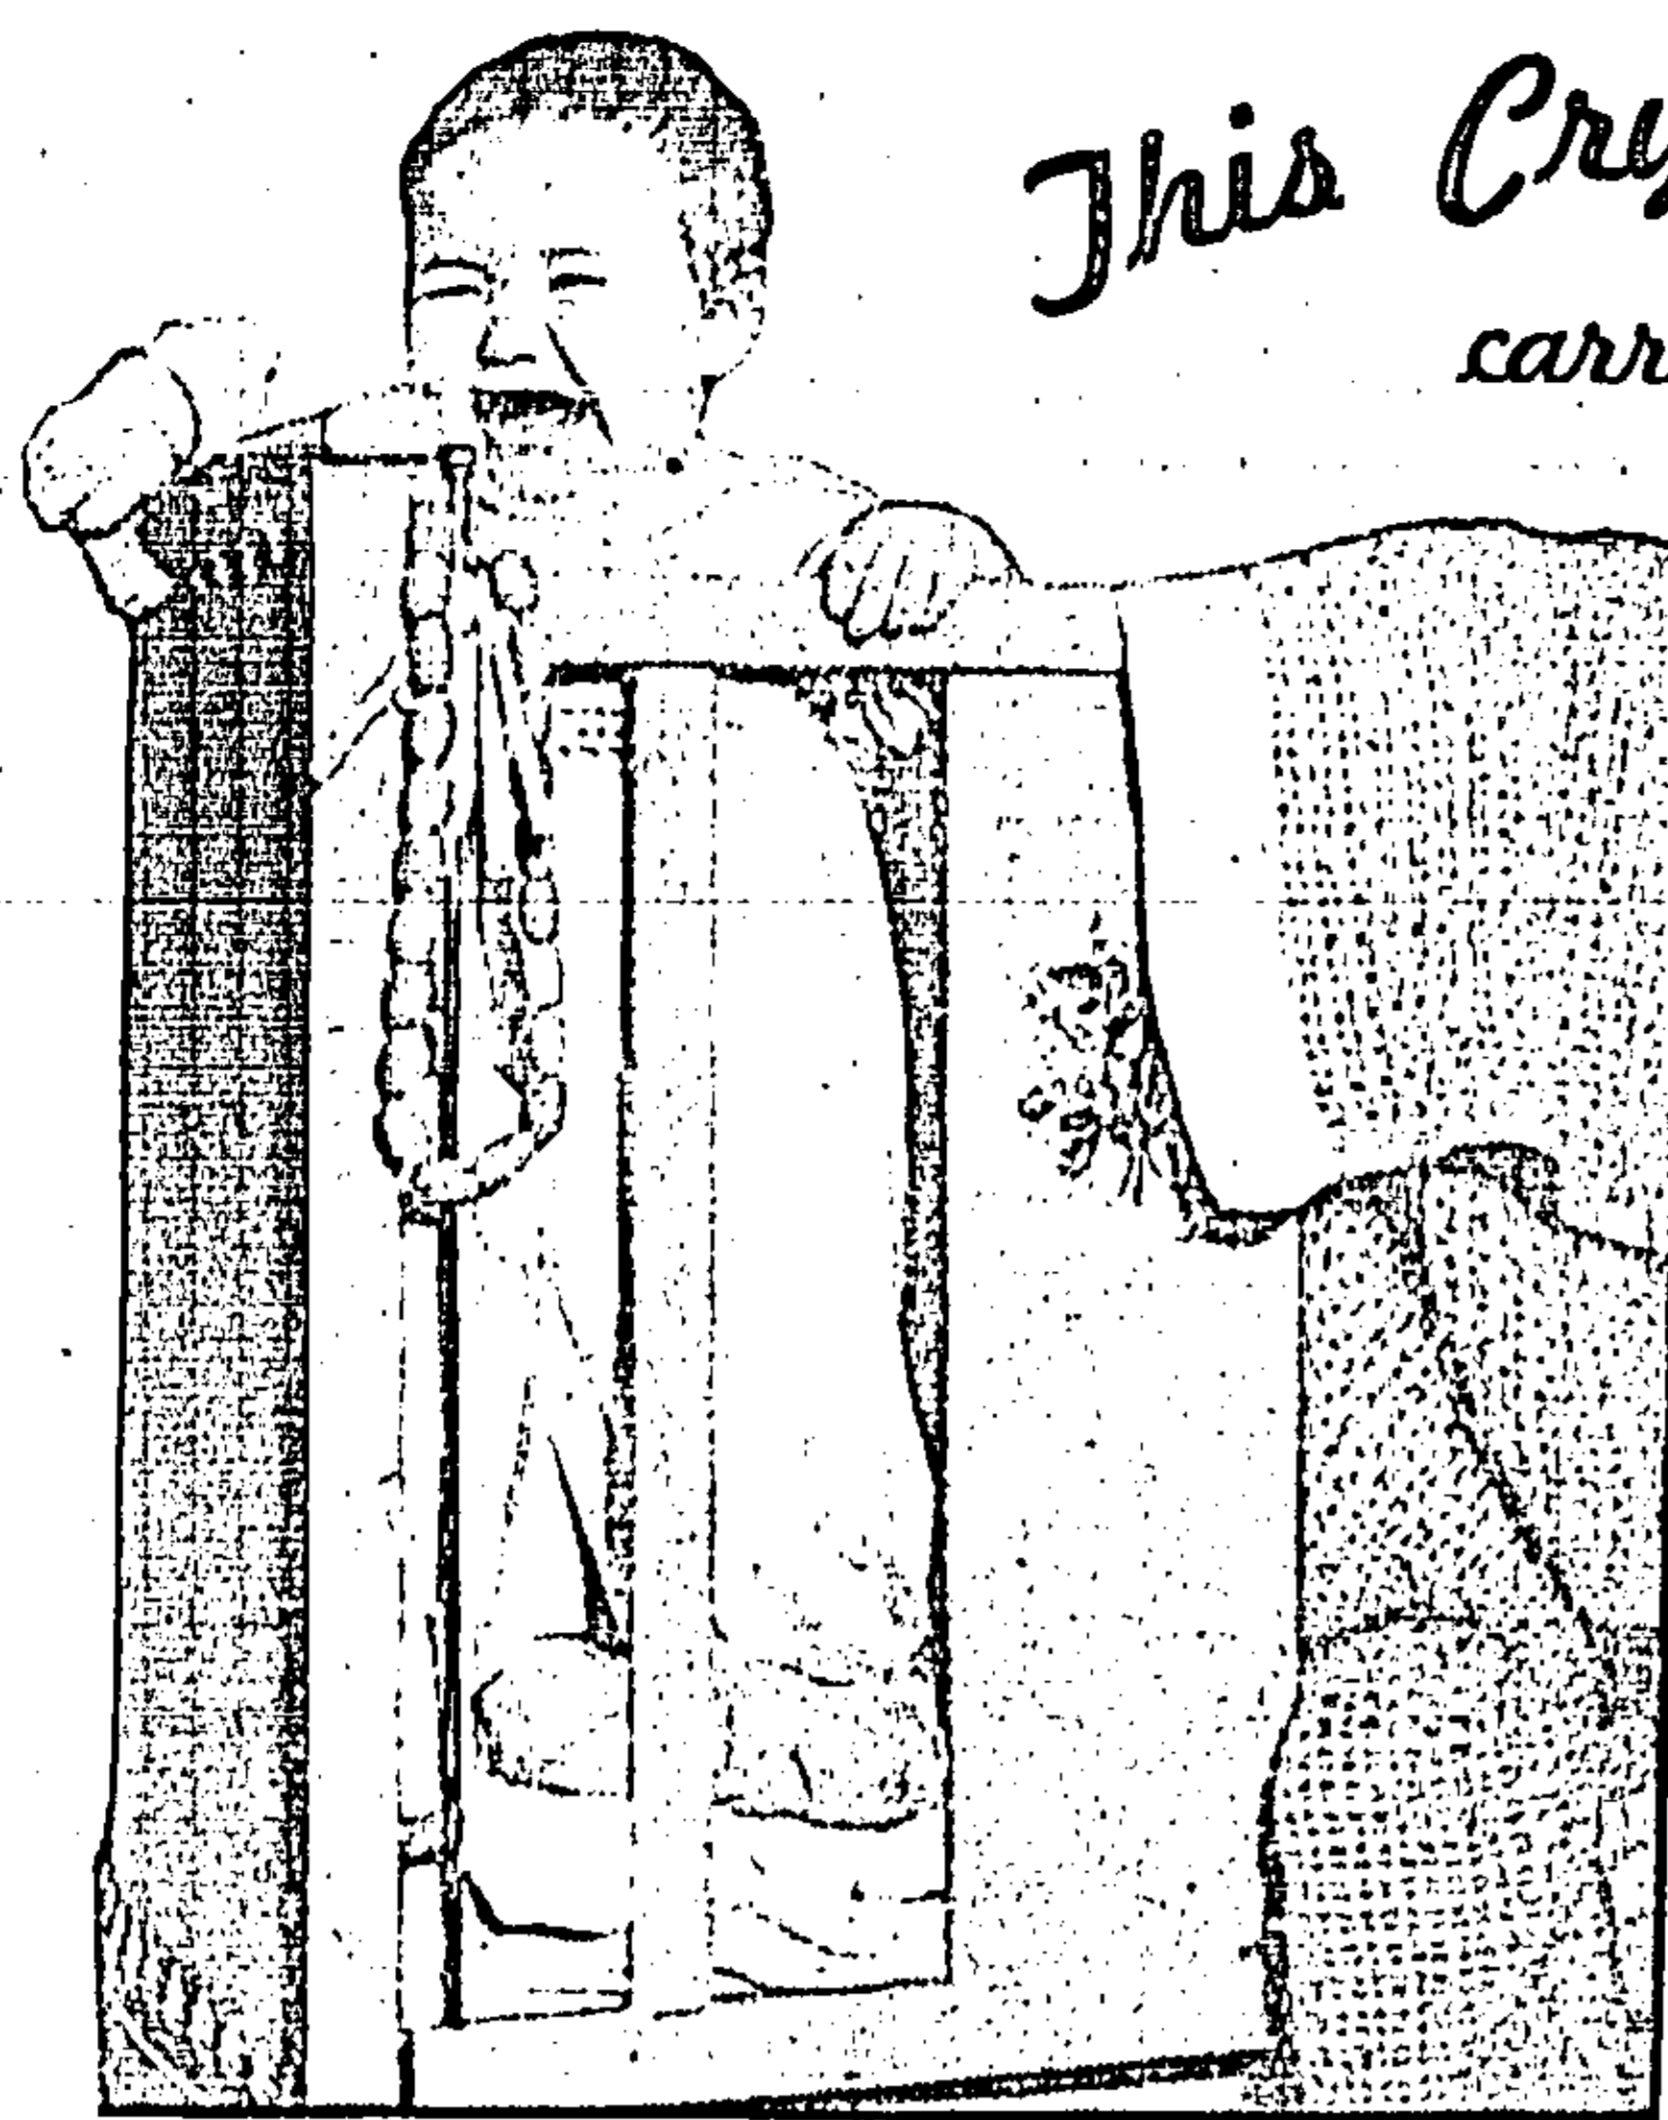

It is likely to settle down quite quickly and to take an interest in their toys. There is an excellent nursery school in your district, and it would be a wise plan to enrol him there so that he becomes accustomed to other children.

I am glad to hear that he is to have a baby-playmate before long. That is the best solution of all.

Son's Confidant

My son of fifteen used to tell me everything, but now he is very silent and goes about with fads of whom I am not sure that I approve.—Fife.

YOUR son has reached an age when male companionship is a necessity to him, and he would be quite abnormal if he avoided the friendship of lads of his own age.

Probably the fact that you do not approve of his going off in this way has made him feel awkward over the whole situation, and that would naturally tend to dry up any easy relationship between you.

If you follow my advice you will make the meetings easier for him, cutting sandwiches perhaps and providing certain funds for cheap train fares for himself and a couple of friends so that they may feel that their newly-found manhood is justified and that you view matters sympathetically.

MIDGE: It's a Bargain

"Nancy says she'll swap one of her new puppies for the baby if I throw in my paint-box."

If you do that the day will surely dawn when they will come to regard you, too, as "one of the gang," and believe me, it will be a proud day for you!

Self-Help

My six-year-old daughter makes no effort to dress herself, but depends upon me all the time.—June Baby.

GATHER that the fault lies in the fact that you have always been ready to feed and dress her. You have not been acting in her interest, however. Give up the time between tea and bed-time now to teaching her to dress herself and offer a small prize once she is able to do so.

Have simple clothes for her with the front of petticoats, knickers and socks marked with a cross in red cotton so that she can distinguish it readily, and let all fastenings be as uncomplicated as possible.

She should learn the order in which the garments come on one of the first evenings. Have patience with her if her fingers are "all thumbs" at first, but be resolute about refusing to dress her any longer.

Home-sick Boy

I am afraid that my boy of nine will miss me badly when he starts school next term. We have always been together.—Blundellands.

AS you tell me that your son is already making himself miserable at the prospect, I fear that you have perhaps stressed the parting in recent conversations. You will have to be firmer now if he is to go away, otherwise he will really suffer, for the first few weeks at all events. Refuse to notice tears, but quietly describe the interest attached to the new life. Tales of young pages who were sent to strange courts to learn the duties of knight-hood may fire his imagination or the thought that he is no longer a baby but must now begin to qualify for manhood like his father. Don't leave Daddy out of this important problem. He will be able to do a lot to help his small son over this rough patch.

Her Own Mistress

I have been offended by the attitude of my only daughter, married at Christmas. For years she never did anything without consulting me. Now she just laughs if I make suggestions about her home.—Housewife.

YOUR daughter has evidently taken up the wise stand of being "daughter in her mother's house but mistress in her own," and no one can blame her in this attitude, for it is dictated by common sense.

If you have trained her well in housecraft she will be putting it all to good use now, but at the same time it is for her to study the particular tastes of her husband and the circumstances of her own home life.

By insisting that your way is the only right way you will be losing ground with these young people, so I advise you to be more forbearing in your attitude and less given to criticism from now on.

Food for Toddler

I have been told that brains are good for toddlers in place of meat. How are they cooked?

BUY a set of sheep's brains from your butcher, price 4d. to 6d. Pour boiling water over them, then peel off the outer skin and any other waste. Simmer in a little slightly salted milk until cooked (no redness about them).

Strain, beat up with a fork and serve with a little mashed potato or with toast. For slightly older toddlers brains fried in butter make a tasty breakfast dish. Cooked according to either method they make excellent fare for invalids.

It's American

THE excellent idea of serving hot toasted sandwiches at a snack meal came from America. Try one with a fish filling.

Take some cooked dried haddock, add a little melted butter, salt, pepper, then stir in a teaspoonful of chopped parsley with a little lemon juice.

Spread between slices of hot buttered toast, and serve hot.

A mixture of minced ham and chopped hard-boiled egg is also exceedingly good in a toasted sandwich.

This lovely evening frock is in fuchsia coloured romaine with blue spots. On the left you see just how it looks when the blouse of the pale blue romaine, spotted with fuchsia, is worn over it.

THE MORNING CATCH

rows away taking with it all Ah Hoi's men folk. Where?

AH HOI waits, numbed with cold and shaking with fear and doubt, for a full half-hour before she dares make known her presence to those on board the junk.

She is drawn on deck with glad surprise, cared for in their rough and ready way. The little fleet sets sadly out for home, full of inward queries for the troubled future; one less craft and three fewer humans than that hopeful outward posse of the morning.

So Ah Hoi, bereft at one wheel's twist of husband, growing sons and all her belongings (those precious, priceless nets!); left with but the toddling two-year old waiting warm-clad and cork-jacketted upon the bench that fateful morning, betakes herself and baby girl away.

The fishers pitied; consulted long and low. But what could they do?

Fearing to fish lest they, too, lose their all; markets becoming rarer and less accessible day by day.

Will they soon revert to type? Follow in the trail of their pirate forebears? And if they do, and when the last account is balanced, to whom the big black debit?

***

HER sombre, brooding, yet soft and pleading eyes seem fitter to the liquid, mellow orbs of Southern India than to this sturdy Hoklo woman.

Ah Hoi squats within the swaying sampan, scans the landing piers in search of tardy passengers too late to board the launch.

Then soothes the tiny girl, fretting her little mind in inability to use her growing limbs upon the tiny craft.

Chicken Sandwich Treat for Everyone

TRIPLE your reputation as a hostess with a three-layer sandwich full of tempting flavours! Chicken, olives, pineapple and almonds combine to produce a party or picnic sandwich everyone will enjoy. To make your sandwiches by system, stack your bread on the left, empty glass jars of filling ingredients into bowls on your right. Spread each slice of bread with softened butter, then progressively from left to right according to the recipe given below:

THREE-DECKER CHICKEN SPECIAL

- (30 large sandwiches)
- 1 0½-ounce jar boneless chicken, chopped
- 2/3 cup finely chopped ripe olives
- 2/3 cup finely chopped pimiento
- 1/2 teaspoon celery salt
- 1 1/2 teaspoon minced onion or onion salt
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon black pepper
- 1/4 cup mayonnaise
- 3 5-ounce jars pineapple cream cheese
- 1/4 cup chopped salted almonds
- 30 slices whole wheat bread
- 60 slices white bread
- Softened butter

Combine chicken, olives pimiento and seasonings with mayonnaise.

Trim the bread and butter lightly on one side. Spread chicken mixture on half the slices white bread. Spread pineapple cream cheese on whole wheat bread and sprinkle with almonds. Place on top of chicken filling and top with remaining slices white bread. Wrap in waxed paper, cover with a damp cloth and store in an air-tight container. When ready to serve, cut sandwiches into triangles or into thin slices for dainty "ribbon" sandwiches for your parties. This makes 30 large whole sandwiches or 120 small sandwiches for your tea or bridge party.

PICNIC SANDWICHES

For the picnic hamper, here are suggestions for quick-as-a-wink sandwiches from the things you keep on your pantry shelf:

Slice bananas over white bread spread with peanut butter.

Blend chopped candied ginger, dates and mayonnaise. Good on whole wheat or nut bread.

Mixed flaked canned salmon celery, chopped hard-cooked egg, on white bread.

BROKER CHARGED

Military Contract Fraud Alleged

EDWARD DAVIES SYKES, broker, appeared before Mr. R. Edward at the Central Magistracy this afternoon charged with (a) obtaining $1,250 by falsely pretending that a tender made by Reliance Motors had been accepted by the Military authorities and (b) obtaining $1,000 by falsely pretending that a tender made by Reliance Motors had been accepted by the military authorities.

Mr. O. E. C. Marton prosecuted and said:

"The complainant, Mr. W. A. H. Duff, with his brother, Mr. J. H. Duff, are Directors of Reliance Motors Ltd.

"Mr. W. A. H. Duff first met Sykes early this year. At this meeting Sykes informed the Duff brothers that he had several propositions he had in mind, but could not do anything unless he had the necessary financial backing.

"Sykes pointed out that he had 'put over' quite a number of profitable transactions previously, and produced documents to prove it. "He managed to convince Messrs. Duff that it was due to bad luck that he was reduced to his present circumstances.

"During this meeting he mentioned casually that he was in a position to tender for contracts for hire of motor vehicles to the military authorities. He said that the contracts were at present held by two firms—the Hongkong Hotel Ltd and United Motors Ltd, and he told the complainants that if they were interested he would probably secure a contract for them.

Great Excitement

"On February 28 Sykes went to the Duff brothers in a state of great excitement and he said he had learnt of a new contract with the military authorities, and that it had been made necessary by the disturbed political situation. "He told the Duff brothers that the military authorities required the use of a number of cars and lorries for one year, and he also mentioned that, through his contacts, he was in a position to quote lower rates than other people could tender.

"At the outset, Sykes refused to take any steps until the complainants would give him an entirely free hand throughout. He explained that he had been cheated by the United Delivery firm out of his commission, and he insisted on being given a free hand.

Had Confidence Of H.Q.

"He also said he had gained the confidence of the military authorities through having got the contract for United Delivery. He added that the military authorities were aware that he had been cheated out of his commission, and they were, as a result, sympathetically inclined towards him.

"Sykes said he could secure this contract and told the Duff brothers he was actually dealing with Colonel Henderson, who, he said, was responsible for the military contracts.

"Sykes was then given an entirely free hand by the brothers.

"On March 2 Sykes called on Mr. Duff and produced a statement showing the number of cars and lorries the military authorities required, and also the rates of hire.

"On the same day, Mr. Duff, with Sykes' assistance, composed a letter to the military authorities, saying what vehicles they could produce if the contract was awarded to them. From this time onwards, Sykes emphasised the necessity of leaving everything to him. He pointed out that confidential information had been given to him at military headquarters and he had been permitted to see confidential documents as a special privilege.

"He pointed out that the manner in which he hoped to obtain the contract was somewhat irregular, and if the Duff brothers were to approach the military authorities, they would embarrass his friends and may have

Eyewitness Tells Of Shooting

LONDON, June 6.—G. Kirkwood, an eye-witness of the alleged attempt to shoot the Duchess of Kent, told an exclusive story to "United Press" of the incident.

Mr. Kirkwood was driving through Belgrade Square with his wife when he saw a man sitting on the sidewalk with a shotgun in his hand. "At that moment a shot rang out. It narrowly missed by cars.

"I asked the man what he was doing. He did not reply. "I then drove to the nearest policeman, and raced him back to Belgrade Square.

"The man was still there, holding the bicycle on which he had ridden to the Square.

"It is understood that the gun was fired from opposite No. 1 Belgrave Square, which is two doors from the house of the Duchess.

Private detectives assisted in the search for the bullet, while his believed to have struck the house and to have fallen between the railings in front of the basement.

The man was later detained. He is described as a middle-aged Englishman who recently returned home from Australia. Police are still withholding his name.—United Press.

G.O.C. Mentioned

"On March 3 he again called on both brothers and said that one of the chief clerk in the R.A.S.C. office had shown him a letter on which appeared the signature of General Grasse.

"He claimed that the contract had actually been accepted, Sykes added that it had not only been accepted but the terms of hire were the same as those quoted by him.

On March 7 and 14, proceeded Mr. Marton, Sykes managed to obtain the two sums of money from the Duff brothers on the strength of having received the military contracts.

On March 15, a letter was written to him, asking what had happened. He was given two options—firstly, to produce irrefutable evidence of the tender having been accepted, or, secondly, repaying in full all sums of money paid out to him.

He was arrested on May 3, and has since been on $3,000 bail.

Mr. J. H. Duff is now giving evidence. Proceeding.

Pact Parleys Meet Impasse

LONDON, June 6.—It is reliably learned that the British Cabinet's Foreign Policy Committee has found several of the Moscow proposals unacceptable.

It is understood that the Committee objects primarily to Russia's demand for French and British guarantees to Estonia, Finland and Latvia. Further delay to the establishment of a triple entente therefore appears inevitable, although authoritative sources discount rumours of an imminent breakdown in negotiations.

A British spokesman to-day reiterated that it was contrary to British policy to ignore the wishes of the Baltic States by promising to go to war in their defence without their consent.—United Press.

Duchess Interviewed

LONDON, June 6.—The Duchess of Portland, who was accompanying the Duchess of Kent when the shot was fired, said this morning: "Her Royal Highness and I went to a cinema shortly before 9 a.m. in the Duchess's car.

"We departed from the cinema at 11.20, a detective accompanying us on the return journey. There was, however, nothing significant about this.

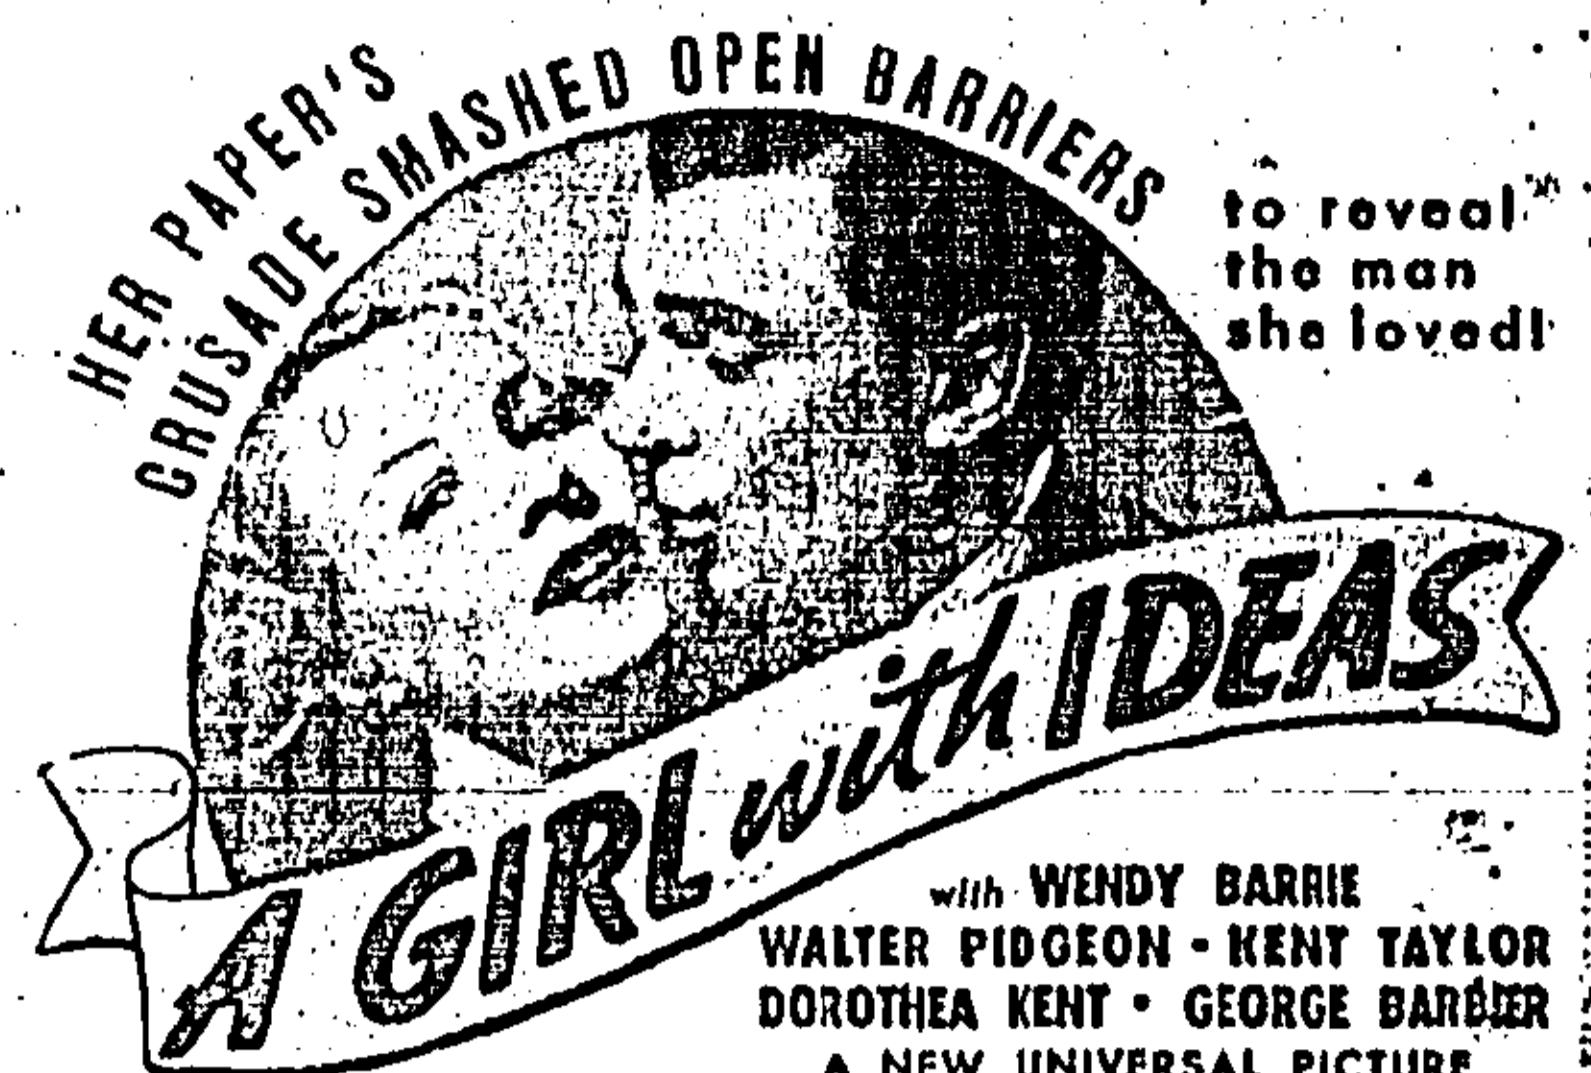

"The Duchess left me at my house in Chesham Place, and then drove to Belgrave Square. If anything happened while I was with the Duchess we were both unconscious of the fact."—United Press.

I.R.A. Man Held

DETROIT, June 6.—Sean Russell, leader of the I.R.A., is reported to have been taken into custody by the U. S. Federal agents. He is reported to be held incommunicado. Police offer no information.—Reuter.
